SWEEPING PLAN OF REGROUPING IS BEING DRAWN

Roosevelt Will Submit His Scheme to Coming Congress.

BASIS LAID BY HOUSE AND SENATE AGENTS

Two Meetings Are Held With Swagar Sherley, Prospective Budget Director.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A plan for sweeping reorganization of Government under Democratic auspices will be presented to the special session of Congress by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Members of House and Senate, in close touch with the President-elect, already are at work on the program. Pending House action on the extraordinary Senate authorization, two meetings have been held with Swagar Sherley, prospective budget director under the Roosevelt regime.

Only two chosen members of House and Senate are cooperating in the preliminary studies, Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, whose amendment to the Treasury-Postoffice bill would give Mr. Roosevelt this power, and Representative Lewis W. Douglas (Democrat), Arizona, a member of the old House Economy Committee.

Economy Drive Pushed.

Charts tracing overlappings of Federal functions, duplications and so-called useless bureaus are being mulled over by the three, preparatory to drafting a memorandum to the President-elect to guide him in his recommendations.

Meantime, the House delayed appointment of conferees on the Treasury-Postoffice bill, carrying not only the reorganization authorization but the Bratton amendment requiring every department head to make 5 per cent cuts in appropriations.

The economy drive continued in the Senate, which yesterday called on heads of departments to report on the cost of departmental activities by April 15. Another resolution directed the Comptroller General to report on economies possible through reorganization of accounting, disbursement, purchasing and warehousing activities. Both resolutions were drawn by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana.

Doubts Congress Action.

Hearty endorsement of reorganization powers for Mr. Roosevelt was given yesterday by Speaker Garner and House Democratic Leader Rainey. They withheld comment on the Bratton 5 per cent cut. It generally was

Mortgagee's Man Rolled In Snow; Sale Is Ruined

Ithaca, Mich., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Several hundred central Michigan farmers, gathered at a foreclosure sale on an $870 mortgage of farm equipment owned by Roy Marzolf, northeast of here, today rolled an agent of the mortgagee in the snow, broke his glasses, and prevented a postponement of the sale.

Then they purchased articles offered, at from 10 to 25 cents, and turned them back to Marzolf.

$43,800,000 PASSED FOR INTERIOR FUNDS

King Assails Administration of Indian Affairs and Demands Reform.

(Associated Press.)

In the smoothest burst of speed so far this session, the Senate yesterday shoved through its second big appropriation bill, carrying $43,800,000 for the Interior Department, with most of the discussion revolving around the $22,000,000 for the Indian Bureau.

The measure, which contains funds for all the Western activities of the department, such as irrigation and the National parks, was taken up at noon and disposed of just at 6 o'clock, after few interruptions.

As consideration began, Senator King (Democrat), Utah, urged wholesale reforms in the administration of Indian affairs—a subject on which he has delivered a long address in each of the last several years when the Interior bill came up.

King contended most of the bureau's expenditures went for "increased and extravagant" salaries, and that the Government "has not been a very just trustee in dealing with the Indians" because of bureau use of tribal funds. He added:

"It is a tragic, pitiful story, the history of the dealings of this powerful Government with the Indians, its wards. The cost of the bureau has been excessive and unjustifiable."

He said about 200,000 Indians were under the bureau's care, with a per capita cost of $55 or $56 for bureau salaries, and assailed the Indian school system as "too expensive" for its achievements.

Hoover Names Matson U. S. Minister to Greece

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday appointed Roderick Nathaniel Matson, of Wyoming, as Minister to Greece.

Matson's name will join those of a long list of other Hoover nominations sent to the Senate but never confirmed, Senate Democrats having decided to block them so President-elect Roosevelt may make the appointments.

Carolina Landslide Crushes 7 to Death

Limestone Quarry Workers Buried Under Thousands of Tons.

Fletcher, N. C., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—An avalanche of rock and dirt crashing down rain-softened slopes without warning, today snuffed out the lives of seven workers in a limestone quarry here and buried their bodies beneath 10,000 tons of debris.

Emergency crews worked steadily in an effort to dig through the scrambled rock and stone, but they were digging without hope of finding any of the seven still alive.

"There is no chance for the men to be alive," said W. T. Gibson, manager of the B. & C. Lime & Stone Co.'s quarry, where the cave-in occurred.

"It might take days to dig their bodies out. There are probably 10,000 tons of rock on top of them. Some of the rocks are as large as small houses."

ZERO BLASTS OF WEST ROUT EAST'S SPRING

Record Mercury Drop Is Accompanied by Many Deaths in Nation.

MINNESOTA REPORTS 50 DEGREES BELOW

Light Snow in Capital Held Part of Coldest Period This Winter.

Sweeping in from the Northwest, with a flurry of snow, winter returned to Washington and the Atlantic Seaboard last night, snuffing out the balmy spring-like breezes and plunging the temperatures to a new low for the year.

The icy blast struck the city shortly before 7 o'clock, and dropped the temperatures rapidly, registering a 50-degree descent in a few hours.

At 1 p. m. yesterday the thermometer registered 66 degrees, 20 degrees above normal for February 6. The blizzard-like wind which continued unabated through the early hours of the night, sent the mercury on a downward flight and was expected to be as low as 10 degrees at dawn.

(Associated Press.)

Leaving Minnesotans new criteria for cold, the big snow hit the Eastern States last night after the warmest February 8 New England ever had.

Temperatures fell 50 degree below zero in northeastern Minnesota and established new all-time low records in the southern part of that State. The storm which preceded the frigidity was above the Appalachians, dooming the balmy breezes which broke heat records Wednesday along the Atlantic Seaboard.

Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont reported new highs for February 8. So did New York City, where thermometers stood at 63 degrees, breaking a record of 43 years. Boston's mark of 66 was the second warmest February 8 in history, but the late afternoon drop had more than the usual evening chill behind it.

Zero Line Moves East.

As the zero line moved east and southeast from its Texas-to-Michigan diagonal, heavy snow engulfed Arkansas, Tennessee and the northern parts of the States bordering on the Gulf. Arkansas had subzero weather for the first time in three years. Temperatures generally dropped 40 degrees, damaging crops and threatening a freeze in northwestern Florida. In California smudge pots were lighted to protect citrus fruit trees.

Northern Louisiana and Mississippi experienced snow and ice that hampered highway traffic. New Orleans, normally basking in balmy winter weather, had freezing temperature.

It was 6 above zero at Memphis.

Will Discuss $93,000,000 Request With R. F. C. Officials Today.

(United Press.)

Alfred E. Smith, Herbert Bayard Swope and other prominent New Yorkers conferred here last night concerning New York's self-liquidating construction projects, totaling about $93,000,000, which will be discussed with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation today.

Smith welcomed a few friends during the evening, but declined to discuss the loan with newspapermen. He likewise refused to comment on the dismissal by the Senate of its sergeant at arms, David S. Barry, for an article he wrote in Smith's New Outlook, accusing some senators and representatives of selling their votes.

When asked if he could see Barry or discuss his case with officials here, Smith said:

"I've not one word to say on the Barry case."

Man Barricades Himself In Home and Ends Life

Locking himself in a bathroom of his apartment at 2138 California street northwest, Edward Hornibrook early today shot and killed himself before members of his family could intervene.

According to a call received by police shortly after 1 a. m., Hornibrook told his family he was going to end his life, picked up a gun and went into the bathroom, locking the door behind him. A frantic appeal to police failed to bring aid until after the man had put a bullet through his head.

Britain's Lump Sum Debt Feeler Meets Icy Congress View

MacDonald Likely Will Head Delegation of Three to Parley.

London, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—It was understood in Whitehall tonight that a provisional arrangement has been made for Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade and—subject to requirements of the April budget—Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain to go to Washington for debt conversations with the incoming administration.

If all three are able to go, the three principal element in the British national government would be represented, National Labor, Liberal and Conservative.

Prime Minister MacDonald has been widely suggested as the logical head of the delegation in recent weeks, and it has been generally presumed that the chancellor of the exchequer would be included if his budget-making work is in such a state that he could leave it for a few weeks.

There has been only little talk of the inclusion of Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, in the group, since the previous debt funding settlement which he negotiated has been under political fire.

A suggestion of £100,000,000 as a

Borah and Rainey Firm in Demand for Concessions in Trade.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Congressional ire bristled in reaction yesterday and exploded the trial balloons that had been sent up by British statesmen with regard to lump sum settlements of the intergovernmental debts owed this country. Republican Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, saw eye to eye with House Democratic Leader Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, the fallacy of the British proposal.

The Democrat denounced the British lump sum proposal as "sheer nonsense" and Senator Borah rallied to the support of President-elect Roosevelt's quid pro quo debt thesis.

Representative Rainey was most categoric in denouncing the proposed British scheme of selling the British debt to the United States on the same basis as Great Britain had settled the German reparations payments at Lausanne; that is to say, at ten cents on the dollar.

"The American people won't stand for it," he said. "It is too bad that England and France can't understand that the United States borrowed the

DISTANCE MARK SET IN 5,340-MILE HOP

Two Britons Fly Nonstop to South Africa; Mollison Nearing Brazil.

Walfish Bay, Union of South Africa, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Great Britain won the world's nonstop long-distance air record today when two officers of the Royal Air Force, Squadron Leader O. R. Gayford and Flight Lieut. G. E. Nicholletts, landed at this little settlement after a 5,340-mile flight from Cranwell Airdrome, England.

They had been in the air 57 hours and 28 minutes, but they showed remarkably few signs of their arduous flight when they clambered out of their giant monoplane after a perfect landing. Freshly shaven and smiling, they greeted the handful of persons who quickly gathered to welcome them.

The fliers explained that they were obliged to come down because of lack of fuel, strong headwinds having reduced the normal range of their monoplane. They personally attended to their machine, which they pushed

New Farm Board Cotton Gift Made to Red Cross

(Associated Press.)

The donation of an additional 350,000 bales of Farm Board cotton to relieve distress among the unemployed was approved yesterday by President Hoover. An act was signed by the President, carrying the additional authorization that the cotton would be distributed as in the past by the Red Cross or organizations designated by it.

The donated cotton may be manufactured into or exchanged for cotton cloth, clothing or bedding provided that the transactions "shall be made without profit to any mill, organization or other person."

UNFAIR COMPETITION BY U.S. HELD PROVED

Shannon Probe Report Says Government Is Guilty in 232 Ways.

The Federal Government yesterday was found guilty of being in competition with private endeavor in 232 ways.

The verdict was rendered in the report of the special House committee on Government competition with business which carried a charge of "pernicious results to private enterprise" repugnant to our fundemental democratic institutions.

With the report, which met with both adverse criticism and total accord in both houses of Congress, were a series of recommendations which if enacted would greatly affect Federal administration.

Their enactment, however, will not be sought at this session. Chairman Shannon (Democrat), of Missouri, said he would seek to get Government out of business at the next session.

It was the finding of the committee, after hearing 625 witnesses, that the Government's diversified activities infringes the earning power of "America Go Bust" Accuses Senators of "Group and Bloc" Influence in Dipping Hands Into Treasury to Scatter Taxpayers' Money.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The Senate, which fired David S. Barry, its sergeant at arms, and is considering action in the courts against him and the New Outlook, the magazine which published the offending Barry article, was given another jolt of criticism from a member of the congressional family yesterday.

The latest, not nearly so severe as the published statements of Mr. Barry that there were members of Congress amenable to financial gifts in appreciation of their votes came from Representative Louis Ludlow (Democrat), of Indiana, for many years a Washington newspaper correspondent.

The Ludlow criticism was contained in a book which made its appearance about the Capitol yesterday. It was entitled "America Go Bust," with the explanatory subtitle that it was "an expose of the Federal bureaucracy and its wasteful and evil tendencies." Although the House member did not accuse members of either House of taking bribes, he joined with Mr. Barry in criticizing the iniquities which have followed the popular election of senators and their subsequent willingness to listen to political blocs and groups.

It was Mr. Barry's reference to demagogy rampant in the Senate and the House which angered the liberals or progressives in the Senate, and it was this which was cited by Senator George Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, white-haired idol of the progressives, as proof that Mr. Barry's Outlook article was an attack and not a defense of Congress. Representative Ludlow found much the same fault with the progressives as did Mr. Barry.

The gentleman from Indiana admitted that "the old-time senator of the special interests was often guilty of reprehensible conduct, highly prejudicial to the public interest, but

CAUCUS BLOCKS HOUSE STEP TO REVISE TARIFFS

CHAPIN SAYS GRAVE EMERGENCY IS HERE

Tells How Goods of Depreciated Currency Countries Are Flowing In.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

As the executive branch of the Government again urged emergency action to protect American industry from increasing imports from depreciated currency countries, House Democrats voted overwhelmingly in a party caucus yesterday to resist tariff adjustments in the remaining days of the short session of Congress.

By a vote of 161 to 4, the party caucus sustained Speaker John N. Garner and Floor Leader Henry T. Rainey in their stand against tariff revision before March 4.

The decision came up on the question of supporting the resolution of Representative Crowther (Republican), of New York, which would provide immediate tariff adjustments to compensate for depreciated currencies abroad. A vote is scheduled in the House next Monday on a petition to discharge the Ways and Means Committee on the Crowther measure, and thus bring tariff legislation before the House at once. By yesterday's caucus vote the entire Democratic membership is pledged to defeat this move.

Held Too Complicated.

Speaker Garner announced after the caucus that the question was too complicated to be dealt with in the short session. Representative Rainey said the subject might be considered in the special session, but not "without careful consideration of all aspects of the problem."

Warning that the increasing movement of competitive imports from depreciated currency countries now presents "an emergency situation" in a number of vital American industries, Secretary of Commerce Roy D. Chapin disclosed yesterday that no less than 232 commodities recently have been flowing into the country in larger volume than a year ago.

So grave has this competition become in some important industries that in recent weeks even the normal amount of domestic buying has been withheld in the hope of still cheaper prices abroad, thus aggravating in many directions the immediate distressing influence of the competitive imports.

He cited the complaint of one American producer, whose January orders had been cut to about one-tenth of normal, not because foreign competitive goods actually had been landed in this country but

Canal Is "Bombed" By 14 Navy Planes

Gatun Locks Theoretically Destroyed, in Spite of Defending Army.

Balboa, Canal Zone, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Fourteen Navy torpedo planes eluded a defending Army air force today and theoretically "destroyed" the Gatun Dam locks, of the Panama Canal, in Army maneuvers. Last night three successive "attacks" by Army planes succeeded in bombing the locks from a 12,000-foot altitude.

Army officers said that the maneuvers showed the need of a large and well-trained defending air force and antiaircraft units for proper protection of the canal.

CULT DISCIPLE KILLS MOTHER AS 'SACRIFICE'

Son Accused With Six Others in Family.

WILD DANCING PRECEDES ACT

Body of Victim Saved From Pyre; "Divine Command" Cited.

Inez, Ky., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—From the hills of Kentucky today came the weird story of an alleged human sacrifice, offered up in the bizarre rites of a mountain cult.

Praying and shouting, eight members of a family are in the Martin County Jail here tonight in connection with the death of Mrs. Lucinda Mills, 72-year-old mountaineer mother.

Officers who arrested them near Tomahawk, west of Inez, charged the aged woman had been strangled with a chain, drawn tightly about her throat. They said they broke into the barred home of the Mills family, far in the mountain fastnesses, as plans were being made to place the body on an altar.

Praying and Dancing.

Rites that culminated in the alleged sacrifice lasted for many hours, officers said, and were preceded by a period of fasting that began in the Mills home on Friday. Similar rites had been held frequently in the little mountain settlement, the officers asserted, since a revival meeting last year when the village was aroused to a height of religious frenzy.

Officers charged that two daughters, a daughter-in-law, two sons, a grandson and two sons-in-law of the aged woman took part in the weird rites performed behind locked doors and shaded windows. All were arrested, seven of them charged with the slaying and one as a material witness.

Hours of praying, shouting, singing and dancing, cult members told officers, brought "divine commands" to offer the life of a human as a sacrifice.

Burning Is Prevented.

Mrs. Mills was chosen, they said, and her son, John, clutched her by the throat while others stood by, watching.

Blaine McGinnis, son-in-law, told officers in the jail where he and the others are held, of wanting to prevent the sacrifice but feeling impelled to stand back.

Time after time, he said, John pressed his fingers into his aged mother's neck. Then, the sacrifice completed, chains were tied about her throat and plans were made for a burnt offering.

A cross or an altar he said, was to be erected and her body was to be placed upon it and burned. Officers said their discovery of the alleged sacrifice halted the burning.

Those arrested are: John Mills, 36, and Fred, 34, sons of the woman; Ballard, a 25-year-old grandson; Blaine McGinnis and Tom Boyd, sons-in-law; the aged woman's daughters,

The host was Supreme Court Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, prominent among the portfolio holders of the "cabinet," and the hostess, Mrs. Stone.

The President received a memento, a medicine ball, bearing the signatures of all his cotossers.

Mrs. Hoover's gift from the women was a long string of fossilized ivory beads.

DECREE ENDS LONG PEPCO RATES FIGHT

New Sliding Scale Set for Reductions Each Year by P. U. C.

The final chapter in the prolonged negotiations for establishment of a new basis for fixing electric rates in the District was written late yesterday when Justice Oscar H. Luhring signed a new consent decree in District Supreme Court. The document was signed upon petition of counsel for the Public Utilities Commission, the Potomac Electric Power Co., and People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

Under the terms of the new decree a new sliding scale for rate adjustment each year is established, but the commission is not bound by this decree as it was by the old consent decree under which rates were lowered each year between 1924 and 1932.

The document which was substituted yesterday for the Luhring decision sustaining, with modifications, the sliding scale set up more than a year and a half ago by the commission, carries a specific clause recognizing that the utilities body may fix rates on its own initiative at any time providing its action is reasonable.

Actually, the present arrangement probably will stand for several years and should provide a smaller reduction each year until the minimum is reached.

The present household rate of 3.9 cents per kilowatt hour is one of the lowest in the country, but the commission believes that it may be brought still lower for several years to come. In fact, this initial rate doubtless will be cut after the hearing next Thursday, but not as substantially as it was last year when $860,000 was applicable to rate reduction. The drop last year was .3 of a cent. This year there is only $562,000 to be saved, so reductions will be proportionally less.

High Court Defied By Obscure Judge

Creates Pacifist Citizen, Challenging Decision of Supreme Bench.

Lima, Ohio, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—A mild-mannered, gray-haired county judge tonight explained why his conscience made him challenge the United States Supreme Court in creating an American citizen by court action. He said he expected to do it again.

The jurist is E. E. Everett, of the Allen County Common Pleas Bench, who yesterday granted citizenship to Prof. John P. Klassen, of Bluffton College, in the face of the latter's refusal to take the oath to bear arms in defense of his country. By so doing, he opposed the celebrated Supreme Court ruling in the McIntosh and Bland cases.

"This case was a little different," the judge said, "so I concluded I wouldn't follow the Supreme Court. Their decision was five to four and maybe this case will give them a chance to change their minds. The constitution provides for religious liberty; then we make rules that all citizens must bear arms. In a case like this, the rule is contrary to the Constitution's guarantee of religious freedom."

50 LEADERS ACCEPT BIDS TO SAVE NATION

Baruch and Teague to Give Views on Trade Slump Next Monday.

(Associated Press.)

More than 50 prominent Americans in all lines of endeavor, including Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential candidate in 1928, have accepted invitations to give their views on how to improve economic conditions to the Senate Finance Committee.

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, a sponsor of the far-reaching investigation in the hope of obtaining data that may assist President-elect Roosevelt in formulating relief policies, announced the acceptances yesterday and said 180 additional invitations had been sent throughout the country, making 250 in all.

The inquiry will start next Monday with Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier, and C. C. Teague, former Farm Board member from Santa Paula, Calif., giving their views.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, also had been scheduled to be heard Monday, but he sent word he would have to appear later.

To Take Several Weeks.

Harrison said he expected the hearings to last well beyond March 4, and that morning and afternoon sessions would be held.

Some witnesses have expressed a desire to make their statements behind closed doors. Harrison said this permission would be granted whenever requested.

Among those willing to give confidential testimony are Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago; Frank A. Vanderlip, New York banker; Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.; Jackson E. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of New York; Robert E. Wood, president, Sears Roebuck & Co., Chicago; Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee, United States Steel Corporation, and Sosthenes Behn, International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Smith to Talk Publicly.

Smith said he would make a statement in open session. He will appear February 28 with George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Senator Harrison said several prominent men had declined to appear for one reason or another, but he would not make public their replies. He said he would place them in the Record Monday when they would be given out.

Declinations came from such men as John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee in 1924; Owen D. Young, New York industrialist; George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post; Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president of General Motors, and Roy W. Howard, chairman of the board of Scripps-Howard newspapers.

James M. Cox, Democratic presidential candidate in 1920, was sent an invitation, but he has not replied.

Willard and Durant.

Included in the additional 180 asked to appear since the original list was announced are Theodore W. Noyes, editor of the Evening Star; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad; Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph Co.; Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale; Nathan Adams, Dallas banker; William A. Brady, theatrical producer; Will Durant, philosophy instructor at Columbia, and the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit Catholic priest known for his radio talks.

Besides Baruch and Teague, those who will appear next week include Paul Block, New York publisher; Alexander Legge, International Harvester Co.; John F. Hylan, former Mayor of New York City; Alvin MacCauley, president of the Packard Motor Co.; E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, Pittsburgh; David F. Houston, Secretary of the Treasury under Woodrow Wilson; John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; Thomas W. Lamont, New York banker, and L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange.

E. D. Duffield, president of the Prudential Life Insurance Co., Newark; L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, and Dr. Lewellys F. Barker, ermitus professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University, will appear the last day of the week.

Election Formally Found Of Roosevelt and Garner

Congress in Joint Session, Amid Rebel Yells, Counts Votes of Electoral College; Curtis Greets His Successor, Sorry to Leave House.

(Associated Press.)

Congress met in ceremonious joint session yesterday and solemnly informed the country that the Roosevelt-Garner ticket won in November's elections.

Unworried over the outcome of the day's polling of the electoral college, Franklin D. Roosevelt was happily fishing in the Gulf Stream. But John N. Garner was present to be one of the first to get the election returns and look forward, somewhat lugubriously, to four years of presiding over the Senate.

Vice President Curtis, who presided gave him the official result, and congratulated him, while the rebel yell resounded from enthusiastic Southern Democratic throats.

Smiling rather dourly, and speaking in a controlled voice, Garner, who is rounding out 30 years as a representative from Texas, said:

"I do not think it out of order for me to say publicly what I have said privately—I would rather remain in the House of Representatives than go to the Senate. I have enjoyed my service here. My ears and my eyes and whatever intellect I may have may be over there, but my heart will always be in the House of Representatives."

The House stood and applauded.

Drawing large envelopes containing the ballots from two dark mahogany boxes, Vice President Curtiss presented them to the official tellers, who read the results of the election in the various States. The first was from Alabama, which he handed to Representative Jeffers (Democrat), Alabama, who read that 11 votes had been cast for Roosevelt and Garner and that the "certificate seems to be regular in form and authentic."

The Democrats yelled and applauded and the entire assemblage broke into laughter as Curtis loudly pounded for order. Then in quick succession he handed the remaining ballots to the other tellers, who besides Jeffers were Senators Glenn (Republican), Illinois; King (Democrat), Utah, and Representative Gifford (Republican), Massachusetts.

Connecticut was the first State reached which went for Hoover and Curtis, the Republicans began applauding and the Democrats joined them and began to stand when Curtis pounded for order. In a second, nearly all the assemblage was standing.

Curtis apparently disapproved the yells and the loud applause the Democrats gave the announcement of their candidates' victory, especially in the usually Republican States, and particularly in his own. Repeatedly he rapped his gavel for order, but when the nine Kansas votes were announced he graciously shook Garner's hand, and then again when the 23 votes from Texas were recorded.

SHANNON REPORT DENOUNCES U. S. COMPETITION WITH TRADE

taxpaying endeavors while it increases the taxes upon them and serves to reduce private initiative and stifle private opportunity.

Several recommendations of the committee would vitally affect policies and practices in Washington. Briefly these are:

That Government building space should not be devoted to restaurants without compensation to the Government and that Government personnel should not be devoted to such undertakings.

That the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Bands should not tour the country, that they should not play at private functions and that they should not perform at public functions for extra pay or when an admission charge is made.

That all architectural supervision in all departments be centralized and stress placed upon general administration and that the drawing of plans for projects in different parts of the country provisions be made for the employment of resident architects of ability.

Commissaries Rapped.

That post exchanges and commissaries in Army and Navy posts be abolished, except in isolated and remote localities.

That the Government Printing Office discontinue the manufacture of paste, mucilage, blank books and other "shelf items."

Representative Shannon said that he hoped the committee's program would be linked with the economy program, which is to be put forward by the Democrats of the new Congress.

In all, the recommendations of the committee totaled 27, the last of which asked that a standing committee on Government competition be created.

There was one dissent in the committee report. That was of Representative Cox (Democrat), Georgia, who did not concur with the opinion of the other five members that farm cooperatives should compete with private middlemen on the same terms.

Private Business Warned.

The recommendations that the Government sell its barge lines to private enterprise was not agreeable to Chairman Mansfield, of the Rivers and Harbors Committee. He said, "before they approve the sale of the barge lines, they should know what is involved."

In making its report the committee passed a warning to private business, saying that it must not work employes longer than the Government, allow labor organization, pay prevailing wages and meet public health requirements.

The committee declared that parcel post rates should be raised so that the service would be on a paying basis and recommended that the Postoffice Department stop solicitation of parcel post business.

A conclusion of the committee's report was that the heads of departments make surveys of the business activities and be ready to report to Congress whether their discontinuance would be practicable.

Among activities the report proposed to eliminate were the Army Transport Service, the manufacture of uniforms and leather goods by the Army and Navy, the sale of stamped envelopes bearing the return address of the sender by the Postoffice Department.

The committee asked that a uniform cost-accounting system for the Government be established so that a comparison of public and private costs would be possible.

Competition Varied.

Among the other recommendations were:

That part of the helium needs be filled through private purchases; that the sale of timber from public lands be stopped when the lumber industry is depressed; that Federal agencies stop the manufacture of biological and pharmaceutical products; that manufacture of paints and varnishes at certain navy yards be ceased; that private and municipal hospitals be used for veterans rather than have more Federal hospitals constructed; that private physicians, surgeons and dentists be used for treating veterans where possible, and that warehousing of all goods, except those held for Government use, be discontinued.

Commenting on the recommendations the committee stated:

"The agencies involved represent only a small part of the chain maintained by the Government which are engaged in competitive activities with private business. Subdivisions of a competitive character exist and operate under the supervision of many other departments of the Government.

Universal Movie Studio Closed; 300 Laid Off

Hollywood, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Notification of a complete shutdown of the Universal movie studio, effective next Saturday, was received today by employes. It was unofficially reported the shutdown will last at least six or eight weeks. Closing of the gigantic plant will affect between 300 and 400 persons.

The announcement said the studio is so far ahead on production that the shutdown became imperative. Some 200 persons will be left to control physical operation of the plant. Fifteen writers will remain to work on future production.

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 9.

WHO IS THE HEAD OF A FAMILY?

A taxpayer, though single, who supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based upon some moral or legal obligation, is the head of a family and entitled to the same exemption allowed a married person —$2,500. Also he may claim a $400 credit for each dependent. For example, a widower who supports in one household an aged mother and a daughter 17 years old is entitled to an exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family, plus a credit of $400 for each dependent, a total of $3,300. The $400 credit, however, does not apply to the wife or husband of a taxpayer, though one may be totally dependent upon the other.

Several factors are involved in determing whether a person who files a return as the head of a family is to be thus classified. The element of either legal or financial dependency must exist. A taxpayer who supports in his home minor children over whom he exercises family control is classified as the head of a family, even though the children may have an income of their own sufficient for their maintenance. If he does not support them, by reason of their own income, but does exercise family control, he can not be classified as the head of a family.

If an individual supported is an adult and there rests upon the taxpayer a moral or legal obligation to provide a home and care for such individual, the exemption as the head of a family is allowed, provided the individual is financially dependent. If the individual is not financially dependent, the exemption, even though the taxpayer maintains the common home and furnishes the chief support, does not apply.

For income tax purposes there can be only one head of a family and the exemption can not be divided. Not infrequently claims for the $2,500 exemption are received from two or more members of a family.

It should be remembered that a single person, whether or not the head of a family, is required to file a return if his or her net income for 1932 was $1,000 or more, regardless of whether the return is nontaxable by reason of the $2,500 exemption.

U.S. STORES BLAMED IN BIG VIRGINIA LOSS

ShannonCommittee Charges Fort Area Commissaries Divert Millions.

(Associated Press.)

The Shannon Committee, investigating Government competition with private business, told the House yesterday that merchants and others in the Norfolk-Portsmouth area had estimated their losses from activities of commissary stores and their subsidiary operations at from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 annually.

The committee recommended abolition of a number of Government activities and the placing of restrictions on others. Operations of Government stores, on military and naval stations, especially their sales to civilians, were criticized in the report.

The committee said witnesses from the Norfolk-Portsmouth area testified that merchants who have catered to the Navy trade would be forced out of business if the ship and shore naval stores are permitted to continue unrestricted operation.

The committee found Army post exchanges in operation at Forts Monroe, Humphreys and Myer, Langley Field and the Nansemond Ordnance Depot, and a service store at the Quantico Marine Base, in addition to the ship and commissary stores around Norfolk.

Another committee recommendation was that ervice laundries be restricted to "actual service requirements." There are laundries at Norfolk and Forts Monroe, Humphreys and Myer.

Delving into the manufacturing activities of navy yards, the committee urged closing of the paint factories at Norfolk and other yards.

It also suggested a study of navy yard operations to determine whether some of the work might not be done by private contractors, if such was not incompatible with national defense.

Friends 50 Years, They Go to Altar

Miss Caroline Sutherland, Former D. C. Resident, Weds J. Q. A. Johnson.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Half a century ago Caroline Sutherland, of Washington, and John Quincy Adams Johnson, of Yonkers, both 74 now, were playmates in Washington, D. C., and in Newburyport, Mass. Today at the Little Church Around the Corner they were married and they plan to sail tomorrow on the Duchess of Bedford for a honeymoon in Bermuda.

It wasn't any case of a youthful engagement, estrangement and belated reconciliation, they both said. The bridegrooom married as a young man, and the bride has through the years been a friend of both himself and his first wife, who died last October. He has four sons and three daughters.

Johnson is the great-grandson of John Quincy Adams, sixth President of the United States, and the bride is descended from several old New York families, including the Barclays Roosevelts, Baches and Lispenards Her father was a major in the Marine Corps. For years she held a civil service position in the Department of Justice, at Washington.

MOTHER IS SLAIN AS CULT "SACRFIICE"

Mrs. Mollie McGinnis and Ora Mills and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John H. Mills. All but Tom Boyd, officers said, were held on murder charges.

Claim Miraculous Powers.

An inquest conducted by Judge T. J. Hardin brought a verdict that Mrs. Mills died "at the hands of her son, John, and others."

Previously, Judge Hardin said, numerous meetings of the cult had been held in the isolated sections but no intimation ever had been given that its strange rites might lead to a "sacrifice."

The cult rites were described by officers as gatherings at which men and women met, sang and prayed until they received a "blessing." Then they begin shouting in the "unknown tongue," described by officers as an unintelligible mixture of sounds, which the cultists contend is the correct language for prayer.

Members claim power, officers said, to perform miracles, saying that they can convert water into wine and transform grapevine stalks into living snakes.

Sun Finally Goes Down On Senate's January 10

(Associated Press.)

The Senate concluded a long day's work yesterday with passage of the $43,890,000 Interior Department appropriation bill. Its official calendar showed the day to be January 10.

A recess, instead of an adjournment, each night since that date has made what the senators refer to and what the record lists as "the legislative day" nearly a month long.

The "day" was ended last night by adjournment.

Police Hold Two In Skeele Riddle

Former U. S. C. Students Are Being Hunted for Kidnaping.

Los Angeles, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Police said tonight they were detaining a man and a woman in pursuing a theory that former students of the University of Southern California engineered the sensational kidnaping of a 65-year-old woman here Sunday and attempted to abduct a girl in Pasadena two weeks ago.

Mrs. Mary B. Skeele, wife of Dean Walter F. Skeele, of the university college of music, was held 24 hours—from 8 p. m. Sunday until 8 p. m. Monday—by a gang of four men and a woman. January 27 persons of similar description attempted to lure Isobel Smith, former college of music student, from her Pasadena home.

New Zealand's House Boosts Custom Duties

Wellington, New Zealand, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The House of Representatives today approved an increase in customs duties as one of several measures by which the Government hopes to reduce the national deficit of £9,500,000.

The gasoline tax will be boosted three pence a gallon, an additional half penny a pound will be levied on raw and refined sugar, the tax on pipe tobacco will be increased eight pence a pound, and an export duty of 12s 6d an ounce will be levied on gold.

Illinois Guardsman Slain By Man Cleaning Rifle

Taylorville, Ill., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Private Thomas Jamison, 19, of Peoria, was instantly killed today. He was accidentally shot through the head by an automatic Army rifle in the hands of John C. Durston, of Peoria. Both militiamen were on duty in connection with recent coal mine disorders.

While Jamison was sleeping on a cot the rifle which Durston was cleaning was discharged. Officers said it was an accident although a court-martial inquiry will be required.

Oklahoma House Votes 3-Cent Cigarette Tax

Oklahoma City, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—A bill placing a 3-cent per package tax on cigarettes was passed by the Oklahoma House of Representatives today. The measure now goes to the Senate where administration leaders may make an effort to increase the tax to 4½ cents as originally proposed by Gov. W. H. Murray.

The House voted 95 to 6 to slash heavily the salaries of the presidents of all State and junior colleges.

Walsh Offers Beer Bill Advertising Amendment

(Associated Press.)

An amendment to the pending beer bill to permit advertising of the 3.05 per cent beverages it proposes to legalize was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, on behalf of a minority of the Senate Finance Committee.

The Senate Judiciary Committee adopted an amendment to prevent advertising the beverages in States where it was not permitted, which would have placed a prohibition on radio and newspaper advertising.

Missouri Jurist Dies.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Judge Clarence A. Burney, 56, one of the new members of the Missouri Supreme Court, died early today, apparently of heart disease. For many years a circuit judge at Kansas City, he was elected to the supreme court bench in the Democratic landslide in November.

ALIBI OF CRAWFORD IS SUPPORTED BY 7

Witnesses Swear He Was in Boston When Mrs. Ilsley Was Murdered.

Boston, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The whereabouts of George Crawford, Negro, in January, 1932, was a major problem facing Massachusetts authorities tonight, at the close of a hearing on the request of Virginia that Crawford be returned to face trial for murder.

Virginia wants Crawford to face trial in connection with the murder of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley, wealthy sportswoman, and her maid, Nina Buckner, January 13, 1932, in a cottage on Mrs. Ilsley's estate in Middleburg, Va.

During the hearing the testimony of witnesses from Virginia was introduced to show that Crawford was seen in the vicinity of Middleburg shortly before the slayings.

Counsel for Crawford, opposing his extradition, called seven Boston Negroes to testify that Crawford was in Boston from the fall of 1931 until his arrest a month ago on a charge of breaking into and entering a Boston store. Three of them said definitely that Crawford was in Boston in January, a year ago.

Repudiates Confession.

Crawford himself denied on the witness stand today that he had made an alleged confession now in the hands of Commonwealth's Attorney John Galleher of Loudoun County, Va. The purported confession contained statements attributed to Crawford to the effect that he went to the Ilsley cottage with a companion, Charlie Johnson, with intent to rob, and that Crawford heard screams and later saw Mrs. Ilsley apparently dead, and his companion, Johnson, holding a brick in his hand.

Admitting some of the questions and answers to be true, he denied he had been placed under oath, or had made a statement voluntarily, and insisted he had made none of the statements in the record which placed him in Virginia in January, 1932, or associated him with the crime.

Crawford maintained he had been in Boston uninterruptedly since the autumn of 1931 when he came to the city with a woman named Berta de Neel, who had been a cook at a place where he was employed.

Hearing Moves to Jail.

The dates he gave and his statements as to his whereabouts at the hearing today coincided with those of witnesses produced by his counsel to establish an alibi.

The hearing was moved today from the Statehouse to the Suffolk County Jail in order to obtain Crawford's testimony. Assistant Attorney General Stephen D. Bacigalupo was appointed by Gov. Joseph B. Ely to hear the questions involved, which included whether or not the prisoner was the man wanted in Virginia and whether or not he was in Virginia at about the time of the killings and was a fugitive from justice. Another question was raised in the course of the hearings by defense counsel, who sought to show by the testimony of an investigation that Crawford might not obtain a fair trial in Virginia.

Assistant Attorney General Bacigalupo at once began preparation of his report to the governor, which he expected to have ready probably by Thursday afternoon.

Special to The Washington Post.

Middleburg, Va., Feb. 8.—Middleburg people are anxiously awaiting the outcome of the extradition hearing in Boston as to whether George Crawford will be returned to Virginia.

Representative citizens feel that the statements of Miss Helen Boardman, of New York City, an investigator for the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People, who came to Middleburg to get evidence, did not at all represent the true feeling of the leading citizens of this place. Miss Boardman, when placed on the witness stand by counsel for George Crawford at the hearing yesterday, declared that influential people of Middleburg were so anxious to shield some one that they would be glad to have Crawford convicted.

Mayor W. J. Luck declared this morning that Miss Boardman did not interview him although there she used alleged direct statements by him. He did not even see her, he says.

Hoovers' Effects Sail on Transport

Four Autos in Shipment Now En Route to Palo Alto.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Personal effects of the Hoover family—60 packages ranging from handbags to automobiles—are preceding the retiring Chief Executive to California aboard the naval transport Henderson, which sailed from Hampton Roads today. The Hoover chattels, including many gifts to the President, arrived in Norfolk by freight and were loaded aboard the transport last night during a storm which at one time blew the transport 20 feet away from the dock.

The shipment, addressed to "Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Palo Alto, Calif.," will be unloaded at San Francisco and proceed to the Hoover home by rail. The shipment included four automobiles.

The rails of the transport were packed with marines as she was warped away from the dock at 10 o'clock. A detachment of 150 leathernecks is bound for Shanghai. Other detachments included 25 for Guantanamo Bay, 20 for Port au Prince, 15 for Cocosolo, 40 for San Diego, 15 for Guam and 20 for the Philippines.

4 Killed in British Bomber.

ROOSEVELT WILL PRESENT SWEEPING REGROUPING PLAN

conceded, however, where members gathered to discuss the drastic economy, the House will accept the cuts without a struggle.

Speaker Garner, discussing reorganization, said he is in favor of going still further, giving Mr. Roosevelt authority to reduce compensation.

"Reductions will never be accomplished by Congress," he said. "Of course, it would mean a sacrifice of the powers of Congress, but you can not do it otherwise. Congress just will not reduce the expenditures of this Government."

He said he favors reorganization of the Federal structure, "even if it reduces pay or costs some jobs."

Wholesale Dismissals.

The belief was general yesterday that the Bratton amendment will cost many jobs, and a reorganization program will cost still more.

Representative James M. Mead (Democrat), New York, chairman of the House Postoffice Committee, characterized the cut as "impossible."

"The only thing they can do in the Postoffice Department, where 71 per cent of all appropriations go for salaries, is to dismiss thousands and thousands of men," he said.

Senator Byrnes said it is impossible for him to estimate the saving under the proposed reorganization program until the proposals take form. He said they would be far in excess of the savings under the Bratton amendment, estimated at $143,000,000.

He pointed out that some of the 5 per cent reduction might be made by means of Federal reorganization. Senator Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, is believed to have drafted his amendment with reorganization in view.

The diminutive but influential South Carolinian said it is possible the entire reorganization program of the President-elect might be covered in one executive order. In that event, he said, it would be just as easy to revoke the President's reorganization authorization as to stop the proposed program.

Speaker Garner is awaiting the return to the city of House Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns before appointing conferees on the bill. Byrns will head the House conferees.

Not least of the problems to be decided by conferees on the Treasury-Postoffice bill is how much of the $19,000,000 for air mail contracts, stricken by the Senate, will be put back in the measure. It has been suggested the President might veto the bill if the action is not reviewed.

Wages and Price Level.

Another item, not in the House bill, is an authorization for the President-elect to require the Civil Service Commission, the Secretary of Labor and any others he might see fit to study and report on a system for adjusting the compensation of Civil Service employes "on the basis of the prevailing retail index or price level, including rents."

"Denmark has had this plan in operation for years and I am advised by the American Legation at Copenhagen that it works successfully and satisfactorily," said Senator Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, author of the amendment.

He cited a letter from F. W. B. Coleman, American Minister to Denmark, pointing out advantages of the plan, which he said would regulate wages on the basis of the price level, and establish a balance in the social standard of living between the Government employes on one side and the rest of the population on the other.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS BLOCKS EFFORTS TO CHANGE TARIFFS

merely because a small amount of the new import at drastically reduced prices had delayed normal domestic buying at domestic prices. The immediate result of such a situation, he added, is the curtailment of domestic operations and the further contraction of employment and domestic business generally.

In behalf of President Hoover it was said yesterday at the White House that the problem of depreciated currencies abroad will continue a disturbing factor in American economic life until some effective action is taken to restore normal trading relationships.

Developing this suggestion, Secretary Chapin's review of recent developments in world trade pointed out that prices abroad, as measured in American dollars, have declined so drastically during the last two years that in many cases the flexible provisions of the tariff act no longer afford equalizing rates, even when the maximum executive increases of 50 per cent are applied to American valuation of the imports.

First Official Warning.

"Until costs of production and prices of some of our commodities are further reduced, or some tariff adjustments made, imports should tend to supply an increasing proportion of our domestic needs," Secretary Chapin warned.

This statement marked the first official declaration from a Government source that American industry faces the early prospect of keen competition with foreign producers on the basis of foreign wages and standards of living.

"Serious concern over the depreciated currency situation which exists today in about 40 principal countries is indicated by the rapidly increasing volume of correspondence reaching the department, supplemented by an unprecedented number of personal visits by business men," Secretary Chapin said.

He emphasized that the increase in imports recently has been particularly marked in products which are largely competitive with domestic manufactures. Out of the 232 items showing an increase in import volume, only 75 were on the free list, while 157 are on the dutiable list.

Havoc Only Indicated.

"The extent to which import competition in our domestic trade has developed during the last year as a result of depreciated currencies is not an adequate indication of the potential development," the Commerce Department survey continued. "From the standpoint of mechanics alone, a lag of several months must occur between the time a foreign currency begins to depreciate and the time when imports of individual commodities begin to increase. * * * Statistics for 1932 should, therefore, be taken not as a measure of effect but merely as an indication of the direction in which these forces are working.

"The wholesale price level in the United States is far out of line with levels prevailing in the principal depreciated currency countries."

President Hoover's recent personal study of the problem also emphasizes the point that the immediate effect of increasing imports often is not revealed in the comparative statistics, for these figures are compiled on the basis of dollar value and do not, therefore, take into account declining American prices.

In this connection, Secretary Chapin pointed out that under world conditions existing today competitive export prices tend to work down to the poorest non-gold base, which means that American producers are under greater handicap in the export market than in their efforts to maintain their own domestic trade.

RESOLUTION LAUDS PAY CUT'S FAILURE

U. S. Employes' Federation Says Congress Indorses High Living Scale.

A resolution pointing out that the refusal of both houses of Congress to impose an additional pay cut on Federal workers "is an indication that our national legislators are cognizant of the need for maintaining a high standard of living" was adopted by the District department of the American Federation of Government Employes last night.

The resolution, introduced by C. M. Mears, president of the Washington office, Panama Canal Lodge, and reported by Chairman George J. Simmons, of the resolutions committee, called attention to the fact that living standards "would be seriously threatened if the Government gave its approval to further pay reductions for its own employes." It commended the "effective work of our legislaive representatives and the whole-hearted cooperation of the American Federation of Labor."

Clark J. McLane, chairman of the credit union committee, recommended the establishment of such an institution to be sponsored by the department which comprises 30 lodges in Washington. Further action will be taken at a meeting two weeks hence.

Miss Ethel M. Smith reported for the legislative committee. Samuel Sacco, chairman of a special committee appointed to find new headquarters for the National and District offices, reported that several central locations are under consideration. Michael D. Schaefer presided.

Ohio House Votes Bribe Offer Probe

Member Claims He Was Promised $1,000 to Withdraw Bill.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb 8 (A.P.).—The Ohio House of Representatives voted unanimously today to investigate what one member describes as "the first charge of bribery made in this house in twenty years."

Investigation of the case was ordered immediately after State Representative Forest W. Hall named Edward Shively, of Cambridge, as the man who "approached" him concerning an alleged offer of $1,000 to withdraw a legislative bill.

Hall told the House that Shively claimed to represent Harlan W. Matthews, also of Cambridge. The bill involved was a proposal to reduce interest rates on short-term chattel and mortgage loans from 36 to 18 per cent. Referring to Shively, Hall shouted to the assembly, "I was called to this man's house and he said to me, 'Hall, there is not another soul in this house,' and then he made me the proposition. I told him I was not for sale."

Mother of First Navy Man To Die in War Voted $5,000

House Approves Payment to Mrs. Annie M. Eopolucci, Who Gave Two Sons to World Cause; Measure Now Goes to Senate.

Gazing with a tearful eye at two bright golden stars on a faded velvet cloth, Mrs. Annie M. Eopolucci, of 649 I street southeast, last night haltingly told how she lost one son, the first United States Navy man to die in the World War, and a second in the same war a year later.

The House of Representatives yesterday approved unanimously a $5,000 payment to her, for the loss of one of her boys. The bill was sent to the Senate for their approval.

The sailor was John E. Eopolucci, who joined the Navy in 1907 and 10 years later, April 1, 1917, five days before the United States declared war, was an armed guard on the steamer Aztec, which was torpedoed and sunk. In a rowboat near his ship, Eopolucci lost his life as debris swamped the craft.

Under the existing law his mother is entitled to no compensation beyond six months of her son's seaman's salary. The bill was introduced to correct this condition.

A year later, the seaman's brother, Willie, was killed in action. A third son and four daughters survive.

Josephus Daniels, when Secretary of the Navy, said of the seaman:

"He was the first American sailor who lost his life in the World War. His mother gave more to the country than the richest man in the country. She gave her son."

LUDLOW'S BOOK JOINS BARRY IN SENATE AND HOUSE ATTACK

as a type he did not dip his hands deeply into the Federal Treasury to scatter the money of the taxpayers far and wide as does the latter-day senator of the 'groups and blocs.'"

"Bloc control" was described as the most costly evil which has been foisted on the taxpayer, and popular election of senators has made it easy for the various blocs to capture senatorial ears to the harm of the taxpayer.

"The senator no longer represents the state as a unit, in accordance with the theory of the fathers," Mr. Ludlow said in his book. "In a broad way, it may too often be said truthfully that he represents those blocs of voters who are most proficient in the poitical sense, most highly organized and most vocal." Popular elections have destroyed the independence of senators and made them supersensitive to domination of blocs "that are seekers of special favors" and he has opened the floodgates of the Treasury.

Discussing the decadence of the stamina of the House of Representatives, the Indiana member criticized too large funeral expenses, adding to the taxpayers' burden by putting into the Congressional Record "extensions of remarks" never made on the floor, the growing cost of free medical service provided House members and some other items. So far as the Senate is concerned, Mr. Ludlow said its members far outshone House members in their costly padding of the expensive Congressional Record. One senator, he said, had put into the Record matter costing the taxpayers $7,000.

Whether any formal notice is taken of the Ludlow criticism of both chambers, some members of the House, if not the Senate, are expected to take their colleague to task.

What the Senate is going to do about launching libel action against Mr. Barry and The Outlook remains to be determined. Chairman Norris has called a meeting of the Judiciary Committee for 10:30 o'clock this morning to consider the resolution of Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Democrat), Montana.

The Walsh resolution proposes that the offending magazine article shall be called officially to the attention of the United States district attorneys of the District of Columbia and of New York, with a view to having court action initiated against the writer and the publisher. Alfred E. Smith is editor of the magazine, but Mr. Barry has testified that he had no dealing with Mr. Smith about his articles.

Although the Judiciary Committee was rather widely divided about the Walsh resolution at its last meeting, the statement issued by Francis Walton, managing editor of the magazine, has caused additional resentment. Mr. Walton said he believed the truth of the Barry charges and was glad that their publication had caused such a Senate rumpus as to turn the spotlight of public notice on the shadier activities of Congress.

INSANITY GAIN BARED SINCE RISE OF LONG

Innocent Remark of Louisiana Doctor Ends Vote Probe in Gale of Mirth.

New Orleans, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—An unwitting remark by Dr. Joseph A. O'Hara, president of the State Board of Health, that insanity had increased 50 per cent in Louisiana since the Huey P. Long faction came into power, broke up today's session of the senatorial election investigation.

The riotous outbreak of laughter from the crowd, which came to regard the whole proceedings as a theatrical performance, continued for several minutes. Chairman Robert B. Howell of the Senate subcommittee investigating charges of fraud entered against the Long faction, adjourned the hearing until tomorrow.

Long, defending his forces' activities in the last senatorial election, was cross-examining Dr. O'Hara, who is also president of the elusive Louisiana Democratic Association, termed the "Kingfish's" lodge. Long was attempting to show the good work done in his administration.

Insanity Grew Too.

"Tell the committee how much attendance was increased at charity hospitals under my regime," Long instructed the conscientious doctor.

"Oh, about 40 or 50 per cent," replied Dr. O'Hara. Then, as an afterthought, he added: "And the insane asylums about the same amount."

There were few dull moments during the afternoon's testimony. An argument arose at the outset over the correct time. General Ansell, counsel for the committee, protested that witnesses were late. Long replied: "Your watch is wrong, general. We'll have to take up a donation and have it fixed."

"Yes," retorted the general, "I seem to be about the only one around here who hasn't had a donation."

Dummies' Parade.

A parade of the "dummies," as a feature of today's session, failed to develop. The "dummies" are the candidates who had no intention of taking office, but whose names were filed so they will have a vote in naming commissioners favorable to their groups.

Nine admitted "dummies" for the Long faction were sworn in to testify, but after the first, Hubert A. Lafargue, told the committee how the system worked, Long admitted that the others would testify the same thing and the committee counsel accepted the admission.

Lafargue said campaign managers for John H. Overton, the Long-picked and successful senatorial candidate, had induced him to run for a public service commissionership, so he could vote for Long election commissioners.

3 Airport Workers Die In Detroit Plane Crash

Detroit, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Three employes of the Stinson Aircraft Corporation were killed instantly this afternoon when their plane crashed into a field near the Wayne County Airport here.

The dead were Owen Pinaire, chief test pilot; Arthur Saxon, chief engineer, and Sam Benson, assistant chief engineer. Airport officials said the three were making tests with an experimental tri-motor plane, and that they plunged to their death from a height of 700 feet after circling the airport. The plane was demolished.

BRITISH FEELER ON SETTLING DEBT GETS COLD RECEPTION

money from its nationals so that they could continue to exist."

Senator Borah was found on the same side with his political opponent, so far as acceptance of the British lump sum proposal was concerned. The Republican chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee declared:

"I am not interested in any plan which deals with the debts that does not include the adjustment of the currency question and certain other problems which stand in the way of opening up world markets and restoring trade and commerce.

"A lump sum payment would not do us any good of a permanent nature unless we can find markets and restore the purchasing power of the people."

Cause of Outbursts.

These congressional outbursts had been occasioned by the cabled reports from London that the British cabinet had discussed with Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay the technical details of a lump-sum settlement of the British debt to the United States. However, the London discussions between Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Neville Chamberlain, the chancellor of the exchequer, and Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, revolved chiefly around the financial operation of funding the complete British debt to this country in this fashion.

A still more unusual corollary of the British discussions involved flotation of the British debt bonds in the United States. This angle of the conversations provoked Representative Rainey to remark:

"The American investors won't buy British bonds. They have been stung enough on foreign bonds here."

Roumanians Invited.

A more agreeable angle of the debt problem developed yesterday with the invitation of President-elect Roosevelt to the Roumanian government to send a representative or representatives to the United States to discuss revision of the Roumanian debt to this country.

Roumania is one of the countries that have maintained payment of their obligations to the United States, the last payment having been made last year on the annual basis which determines Roumanian payments. The next payment is due June 15 and preparations are being made now by the financial authorities of the Roumanian government to make the payment unless some revision is accomplished by that time.

It is believed here that Roumanian Minister Charles Davila will be a member of the special delegation which will negotiate with President-elect Roosevelt on the same basis as the British, the Italians, the Czechs, the Lithuanians, the Finns and the Letts. There was some talk last night in diplomatic circles of the nomination of either the present Roumanian finance minister or the minister of commerce in the present cabinet to come to Washington to assist in the debt negotiations.

Boncesco Qualified.

It is believed practically assured that the high competence and broad financial experience of Financial Counselor George Boncesco will practically assure his presence as technical adviser to the Roumanian delegation. Mr. Boncesco was for many years in the Roumanian Legation in London as financial counselor and has been in close contact with American financial chiefs since his arrival here five years ago.

The lump-sum settlement advocated in London for the Anglo-American debt will encounter an extremely unfavorable reception here unless it is implemented by concessions of a very specific and very generous nature. The United States does not intend to go into the debt conversations with Great Britain on such a basis, which would have the additional effect of encouraging similar untenable proposals from every other debtor nation which has satisfied its December 15 payments. It is pointed out that these preliminary conditions bruited from London in advance of the debt conference can have only the most deplorable consequences with those countries like France and Poland and Belgium who have not yet made their payments and are awaiting the outcome of the first debt negotiations before taking any steps to repair their fiduciary omissions.

DE VALERA PLEDGES UNITED IRISH NATION

New Strength of His Party Is Reflected in Dail Vote of 82 to 54.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The desire of Free State Republicans for union with Northern Ireland in a republic which would take in all the 32 counties was reflected in the opening session of the new Dail Eireann today, at which Eamon de Valera was reelected President.

The galleries and front benches cheered when Sean Moylan, of Cork County, in his speech nominating Mr. De Valera, expressed the hope that the next time he was reelected it would be "as President of an Irish republic of 32 counties."

The Dail continued Mr. De Valera as president of the executive council by a vote of 82 to 54, which reflected the new strength of his Fianna Fail party, shown in the recent general election. Frank MacDermott, head of the new Center party, announced that he and his followers could not support Mr. De Valera for the presidency, and they refrained from voting.

The new cabinet, in which there were only three changes, was immediately announced. James Geoghegan was dropped from the department of justice, P. J. Ruttledge, former minister of mines and fisheries, being named to his place. The ministry of mines and fisheries went to Joseph Connolly, former postmaster general. The only new minister is Gerald Boland, who has the portfolio of posts and telegraphs. He was the party secretary to the ministry of finance in the last government.

DELOS SMITH TALKS ON MODEST HOMES

Brick Manufacturers Hear Capital Expert Urge Cost Reduction.

The creation of better homes in the $5,000 class was the consideration occupying the sixteenth annual convention of the Common Brick Manufacturers Association at its second-day session at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday.

The principal talk along this line was made by Delos H. Smith, of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, who told of ways to develop the modest home and reduce construction costs.

Dr. J. M. Gries, of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, told the 150 delegates that the board had made home loans totaling $75,000,000 during the first six months of its existence.

David Lawrence, publisher of the United States Daily, was the principal speaker at a banquet last night. W. Gardner Long, vice president of the association, was toastmaster.

The convention will close with a morning session today. Among the speakers will be Col. Nelson B. Gaskill, of Washington; Joseph Ulmer, of the Department of Commerce; Jordan A. Pugh, manager of the local unit of the association, and Edward T. Mankin, general manager of the Associated General Contractors. Officers will be elected.

LUMP SUM DEBTS PAYMENT IS URGED

lump-sum settlement of the British war debts to the United States, made in the House of Commons today by Geoffrey Mander, a Liberal "back bencher," roused new interest in the debt situation. At current rates of exchange £100,000,000 is approximately $339,000,000.

Mr. Mander's proposal, made in the form of a question to the chancellor of the exchequer, was the first definite figure for a lump-sum settlement that has been made on the floor of the House of Commons, but it failed to draw a statement from the government's spokesman regarding the progress of consultations that are being carried on by Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador to the United States, and the "big five" of the cabinet.

Another Long Discussion.

Sir Ronald held another two-hour discussion with the cabinet this afternoon. He is expected to start back to Washington late next week.

When the lump-sum suggestion was made in the House, Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain was not present. A noncommittal answer was made him by Maj. Leslie Hore-Belisha, financial secretary of the treasury.

"The chancellor," the major said, "is aware of various suggestions of the nature of that referred to, but he does not think it desirable yet to express any opinion upon them pending the forthcoming negotiations at Washington."

Present British Debt.

The present British debt to the United States is approximately $7,499,820,000.

The Mander proposal was that the suggested lump sum would include the $95,550,000 debt installment payment made by the British last December 15. The suggestion was not considered to be an attempt by the government to sound out opinion, for Mr. Mander is a "back-bencher" and a plain liberal, unaffiliated with any sections of his party and, so far as is known, he is not in touch with the "big five" of the cabinet who are directly charged with formulating Britain's debt policy. The proposal, therefore, was taken as a suggestion by a private member of the House, acting on his own responsibility.

A reorganization of the Farm Board is under study and through this medium undoubtedly other possibilities for the Agriculture Secretaryship will be taken care of.

It is known that Mr. Roosevelt has in mind in addition to Wallace such men as Frank Murphy, of Minnesota; George N. Peake, of Illinois; William Hirth, of Missouri, and Fred Freestone, of New York State.

One vacancy already exists on the Farm Board. Another will occur within a few months by the expiration of a term.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

"Keep Your Face Toward the Sun and the Shadows Will Fall Behind."

FOR those living in high gear who have trouble "coming down to earth," allow us to suggest the method adopted by a miss in Interstate Commerce Commission, who bailed out via parachute just to register her emotions. She is Miss Emily Steele, Indices, I. C. C.

Emily Steele.

Miss Steele had been taking flying lessons down at Hybla Valley Field. She had used most of her leaves going up and coming down and insisting it was her time to make a parachute jump.

"They must have thought I was a candidate for a whel chair, the way they kept telling me, 'Oh, you're not the athletic type fitted for parachute jumping, you're not suited,'" said Miss Steele.

"I soon found I'd have to fight every inch of the way till I got on a parachute and then I wasn't sure the instructor would allow me to go up. I had jumped out of trees and off haymows when I was a kid and had my share of rough and tumble, and then to be told I was not the athletic type! Then I had gone in for long-distance track work when at school."

WHAT sensations did Miss Steele experience? Practically none, that is after she finally won consent to climb out of the cockpit, with the aid of a foot from the pilot, for it was one of those close-fitting pits where they need a shoehorn to wedge one in.

"I had been told to dive off the wing. I never could dive swimming and I couldn't learn diving from a plane wing, so I jumped. I soon pulled the ripcord. It was longer than my arm expanse, so I began taking in slack with both hands. The 'chute was on snugly and my 108 pounds caused no jerk as the 24-foot 'chute opened, so I missed that thrill. As I floated easily downward I should have enjoyed a cigarette and coffee. No sensation. The earth gradually became more vivid. I swayed the big silk 'chute and almost missed the field. It was my first and so far my only leap."

Miss Steele confides she hopes to see a glider club perfected here. Perhaps it's the Scotch, but she's going in for bagpipe playing. But that's another story.

FROM Elmer C. Helm, G. A. O.: In the spelling bee, of first importance, I should say, is a well-graded list of words. The first words should be easy. The spelling should continue at least 30 minutes without any casualties. Then they should grow more difficult gradually. During the next 30 minutes at least 25 per cent of the contestants should be eliminated. By this time there should be given no simple words. Every word should present some difficulty. They should be familiar words, it is true, but those frequently misspelled. Finally, when it is necessary to close the contest, only the most difficult words should be given. It is a mistake to have a few very difficult words at the beginning, and it is unfair to have a few simple ones among the jawbreakers.

Second in importance, is the selection of a pronouncer. The best qualified man with whom I am acquainted is Dr. George B. Woods, dean of the American University.

In a free-for-all contest, we have found the "catch" method very satisfactory. There are some serious objections to this method if the words are not well graded, but they practically disappear when that defect is remedied.

More spellers entered:

A. D. Pittman, Weather Bureau; B. P. Foote, Justice; G. P. Sanders, dairy industry, Agriculture; Paul T. Cheek, G. A. O.; Frank Haughawout, Navy; H. Welland, G. A. O.; J. P. Haverty, G. A. O.; Clay G. Walker, G. A. O.; J. F. McCarthy, G. A. O.; E. W. Baker, Federal Reserve Board; Ora E. Haines, Patent Office; Willard B. Smith, Navy; H. E. Brockway, Agriculture; J. ROBERT.

HEAR the story of Robert:

Robert is a little boy, bright of eye, 3 years old, hoping for his chance in this man's world. His chance has been way below par, but his chance now is brighter. Robert lives in a basement with mother and father. The mother is a college graduate. What price higher education? His father is a former soldier. What price glory?

Mother and father could obtain but a pint of milk a day. Most of that pint went to little brother, and Robert cast his eyes of want toward little brother's feeding time.

Daddy has been out of work since October. He still has his honorable discharge papers, but paper never was meant for human digestion, gastronomically speaking.

The family has been given a helping hand when there was a helping hand. That still didn't get milk for Robert. The case was heard of in Customs Bureau. Clothing was supplied. That still didn't get milk for Robert. Now 10 cents each pay day is being subscribed. That should buy some milk.

We haven't seen Robert. We'd prefer to think of Robert as the bright little boy, hoping for a chance in life.

ONCE upon a time, a long time ago, a French king is said to have had three very fine and renowned guardsmen—Athos, Porthos and Aramis. These gentlemen loved nothing better than to search out and do battle with the king's enemies. We have guardsmen today who are just as wary and quite as keen for a good fight against conditions that threaten as were the king's musketeers.

To L. B. Olmstead, Harry Bryan and Roy L. Hunt—all technical men in the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils—in addition to their regular duties, is entrusted the bureau's lookout post from which to survey potential fire hazards and other danger spots. And if things visible or things unseen, anywhere within the bureau's extensive bailiwick, do not seem good to these keen-eyed gentlemen, recommendations as to changes, clean-ups and whatnot are promptly set in motion. Not only are recommendations made to insure safety throughout the bureau, but they are put rigorously into effect.

Keeping vigilant watch over Uncle Sam's property is in no way a spectacular line of endeavor. Plainly, however, it is most important to many people and things, and a word of gratitude concerning these guardians against misfortune is not out of place.

CHEVY CHASE LODGE GETS LEBANON GAVEL

Masons Are Presented Tool Carved From Precious Palestine Cedar.

A gavel, hewn from the cedar of Lebanon and believed to be the only one of its kind in existence, last night was presented to the Chevy Chase Lodge of Masons at ceremonies in the Avalon ballroom, 5612 Connecticut avenue northwest.

The presentation was made to Robert H. Simpson, master of the lodge, by Representative Maurice H. Thatcher, of Kentucky, who spent much of his time searching for bits of the rare wood throughout Damascus and Beirut, chief seaport of Syria.

More than 500 members of the lodge were in attendance to hear Representative Thatcher tell of his experiences while in search of the "sacred wood." They were told how an American consul accidentally stumbled upon six planks in the attic of an old furniture maker's shop in Syria. It was from this that the gavel was made.

A member of the lodge, Axel H. Oxholm, director of the national committee on wood utilization, was instrumental in obtaining the cedar of Lebanon in its natural and crude state.

Charities Society Reports Less Aid

January Figures Reveal Fewer Clients Than in December.

For the first time in many months, reports submitted to the board of managers of the Associated Charities yesterday showed a decrease in the number of clients in January, as compared with the preceding month. In December a total of 1,628 families received care and treatment, while last month the total was 1,482, a decrease of nearly 9 per cent.

The financial assistance rendered in January by the Associated Charities was $22,441.62, against $26,999.92 the previous month, or a decrease of 22 per cent. In addition to the 1,482 families given care and treatment, the visitors of the Associated Charities gave temporary and incidental assistance, advice or direction to 482 other families, making a total of 1,964.

Still further reductions must be worked out, it is announced, if the Associated Charities is to live within its budget as allowed by the Community Chest for 1933, as the society will probably have not more than 55 per cent of the funds available last year.

Volunteers May Limit Number in Breadline

Fear that the breadline of the Volunteers of America will have to be restricted was expressed last night by Staff Capt. Arthur E. Wise. Revenues have recently suffered a severe decrease while the activities among the needy have increased, he reports.

Officials are considering limiting the men to be fed at the Relief Mission to those holding "helping hand" tickets distributed through contributors of the Volunteers. The reason for the prospective curtailment is that the feeding of lunch to more than 100 students a day has made inroads upon the finances of the Volunteers.

Boost in Compensation Insurance Strikes Snag

Citing heavy losses claimed by compensation insurance companies, delegates from the Washington Chamber of Commerce headed by Dr. George C. Havenner yesterday approved a report opposing any but a slight increase in the present District workman's compensation rates.

A committee investigating a proposed 26.9 per cent rate increase advocated that a public hearing be held before any action is taken. An investigation of charges for medical services for injured workmen was advocated in the report. It also was recommended that launching of an accident prevention campaign be investigated.

Father Confesses Theft That Sent Son to Prison

New York, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Vittorio Grillo, 72, went into Federal court today and confessed he was guilty of a crime for which his son was convicted and sentenced to prison.

The son, Angelo, operated a drug store which included a postal substation. Registered letters disappeared and an investigation led to his arrest. He was convicted last October and sent to the Federal penitentiary in Atlanta for 2½ years.

His father became conscience-stricken and today went to the attorney who represented his son. After telling his story, he agreed to repeat it in court. He stole the registered letters, he said, to get money to buy wine.

QUIZ TO EXTRADITE WAMPLER PUT OFF

Indictment in Income Tax Case Found Charging No Crime.

Continuance of the extradition hearing of T. Morris Wampler, prominent Washington attorney, indicted for income tax evasion, until today, was ordered yesterday by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage after William E. Leahy, Wampler's attorney, had attacked the indictment, pointing out that it charged no crime.

Charles G. Page, assistant United States attorney from the Baltimore district, asked the continuance in order that he might obtain a correct copy of the indictment, saying that the copy offered in the case yesterday, although it was certified by the Baltimore court, was incorrect due to a clerical error.

Leahy's motion to dismiss the extradition hearing was based on the phrasing of the indictment copy. It stated that Wampler had failed to make income tax returns on March 15, 1931, for the year 1931. Leahy pointed out that returns for 1931 were not to be made, according to the law, until March 15, 1932.

Wampler was indicted in Federal court in Baltimore several weeks ago.

The only witness at the hearing yesterday was Donald G. Sutherland, of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, who identified Wampler as the person named in the indictment.

Inquiry Demanded On Veteran Relief

West Virginia House Asks Better Treatment for Former Soldiers.

(Associated Press.)

Members of the West Virginia congressional delegation last night were awaiting official notification of the demand of the West Virginia House of Delegates for an investigation of the Veterans Administration in the State before taking action.

A resolution adopted by the House called on the West Virginia members to ask the Veterans Administration to investigate its West Virginia branch "with the view of increasing its efficiency to the point where unfortunate veterans of West Virginia will be accorded treatment, relief and aid similar to those received by men of other States."

Wisconsin Milk Pool Preparing for Strike

Appleton, Wis., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool today committed itself to a milk strike which it hopes will spread throughout the Middle West.

The date on which farmers were to refuse to market their milk unless certain minimum prices were paid was left by directors of the pool to the discretion of the organization's president, Walter M. Singler, farmer, of Shiocton. Singler has favored February 15, but will not set a definite time until after conferences with farm leaders here tomorrow.

BLIZZARD'S VANGUARD ARRIVES FROM WEST WITH SNOW FALL

Tenn., early today, and there was a blanket of snow. Nashville, Tenn., had more than an inch of snow.

Northern Alabama also was under snow and the mercury went down to 19 above at Birmingham, the low mark for the season.

Light snow fell in Atlanta during the forenoon. The mercury was sagging around 24 degrees above late yesterday and 10 degrees was forecast during the night.

The effect of the storm had not reached the Carolinas and Virginia early last night. Richmond, Va., reported the sun shining and a temperature near the 60s.

The Midwest, not yet dug out of a foot of snow, expected temperatures even below the zero readings, which had been the rule for 36 hours. Skies were clear and even sunny, but no relief from cold was promised before the week-end.

30 Legislators Marooned.

Few deaths were reported. Oklahoma had three, Illinois six, Minnesota, Kansas and Texas one each, and Missouri two.

An afternoon sun raised Chicago's temperature to plus 3 degrees, but it was expected to be 15 to 20 degrees below today, and to remain below zero all day. Seventeen million tons of snow fell in 200 square miles around Chicago, the Weather Bureau estimated, but robins were sighted for the first time this year. Four men died of freezing during the day.

Thirty Utah legislators on an inspection trip were snowbound near Logan, on short rations, all day. The Jackson, Mich., High School basket ball team spent Tuesday night in a farmer's home on their way home from a game at Owosso. Orville Johnson, 40, a school bus driver, was pinned under his overturned bus for seven hours near Kenmare, N. Dak., at 25 degrees below zero. He was not expected to live.

Little farm work could be done in the Central States. Farmers stayed indoors, while prices of grains and live stock rose markedly, due to damage from the storm and difficulty of transportation to markets. Winter wheat was reported hurt in Nebraska.

Widow Freezes to Death.

O. W. Roberts, Federal meteorologist at Bismarck, N. Dak., said the weather was the severest in his 30-year residence in that State.

The Milwaukee road hired 500 unemployed Chicago men to clear its track of snow and paid them 25 cents an hour.

Omaha residents used 12,100,000 feet of gas in 24 hours, 1,000,000 more than the company ever furnished in a similar period.

Pikes Peak thermometer said 45 below, the lowest ever recorded in that region. It was 41 at Leadville, Colo.; 49 at Bemidji, Minn.; 35 at Minot, N. Dak.

Mrs. Mary Millard, 83, a widow, froze to death when she ventured out for firewood at Pleasant Hill, Mo. John Selbenorn, 58, a farmer near Belleville, Kans., was found dead of cold. Frank Hackney, a Dallas, Tex., newsboy, died under a trestle. His body was covered with snow.

Baby Is Born in Auto Blockaded by Blizzard

Gary, Ind., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—A baby was born in an ambulance, blockaded by snowdrifts near a hospital in East Chicago today, after the driver had made a two-hour fight to break through a blizzard.

The mother, Mrs. Lucille Dukes, was attended by nurses and an interne in the ambulance. She and the infant then were carried through the snow to the hospital, where they were reported "doing well."

ARLINGTON CITIZENS ORDER TAX INQUIRY

Arthur Orr Made Chairman of Group to Study and Suggest Economy.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509, Clarendon, Va.

Pursuant to a resolution offered by Arthur Orr, delegate to the Arlington County Civic Federation from the Lyon Park Citizens Association, at the meeting of the federation last night, calling for a special committee on economy and tax reform, which was unanimously adopted, the following committee was appointed:

Arthur Orr, chairman; Horace L. Woodward, Roy Miller, F. E. Mann, William D. Medley, Mrs. Dorothy Dunn and Hugh J. McGrath.

The duties of the committee as set forth in the resolution are as follows:

"To make a study of the necessary functions of the government of Arlington County, the cost thereof, and the sources of revenue available under the law for meeting such costs.

"To report at the March meeting its findings and recommendations respecting the pending county budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934.

"To further report at the earliest practicable date its findings respecting (a) what functions of county government should be continued and on what scale; (b) what functions, if any, now exercised, should be dropped or continued on a diminished scale; (c) what sources of revenue are available under the law for meeting the costs of county government, and to what extent each of such sources should be drawn upon, and (d) what amendments, if any, to existing law should, in the opinion of the committee, be sought, respecting either revenues or expenditures under the county government, or respecting any reorganization of the latter which may be calculated to increase the efficiency or lower the cost of its operation."

The federation overwhelmingly indorsed the Washington avenue approach to the Arlington Memorial Bridge over the proposed extension of the Wilson boulevard.

Another resolution, offered by William C. Hull and adopted, provides for the appointment of a committee to study the feasibility of the establishment in Arlington County of a central postoffice for the entire county. The committee appointed by President Robert N. Anderson consists of Dr. Victor Myers, chairman; R. C. L. Moncure and Mrs. R. E. Groettum.

George A. Collier, of Arlington, was named as general chairman of the committee on arrangements for the annual banquet.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed a vacant house on Detroit street, Ballston, last night causing damages estimated at $5,000. County firemen responding to the call experienced much difficulty in reaching the fire, due to condition of the roads.

The Business and Professional Men's Association of Clarendon will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the offices of H. W. Beattie, Wilson boulevard, Clarendon.

The February meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Patrick Henry School will be held tomorrow night in the school auditorium.

Arlington County Health Department will hold a tuberculosis test clinic at the Jefferson Health Center, at Aurora Hills, today from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. The clinic will be conducted by Dr. H. A. Latane, of Alexandria. Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, says he is particularly anxious that all children who are in homes where there is a known case of tuberculosis be examined. No fee is charged.

Continuing its study of cost of county government with the view of making recommendations for a decided reduction in taxes, the special committee of the Arlington County Bar Association meets tomorrow night in the office of the chairman, Emery N. Hosmer, opposite the county courthouse. Mr. Hosmer announces that all members of the county board have been invited to attend.

to a place of safety. Then they went to a hotel and soon were fast asleep. They said they might remain here until Friday morning.

Gayford and Nicholetts, who took off from Cranwell Monday morning, exceeded by 328 miles the distance record set by Russell Boardman and John Polando, Americans, in a flight over the Atlantic from the United States to Turkey in 1931.

They had intended to make Cape Town nonstop, but with fuel exhaustion only a few minutes away they had to come down 800 miles short of their goal here on the Atlantic coastline.

Under international regulations it was necessary for them to exceed the Boardman-Polando record by at least 62 miles before their feat would be recognized officially. The first settlement to spot them after they had fulfilled that requirement was Zesfontein, Ovamboland, 5,120 miles from Cranwell.

Thies, Senegal, West Africa, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Capt. James A. Mollison, lone Scottish flier, refueled his tiny moth plane here tonight prior to his scheduled start over the South Atlantic toward Brazil at dawn.

Mollison arrived at 8 a. m., and spent the day going over his plane. He landed just two days almost to the minute from his departure at Lympne Airport outside London, on his projected flight over the South Atlantic to South America, thence to New York and ultimately back to England over the North Atlantic.

Oran, Algeria, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Victor Smith, 19-year-old South African flier, attempting to better Amy Mollison's flight time from England to Cape Town, crashed in landing at Senya Airdrome today. The plane was demolished and Smith slightly injured about the face.

HOW TO STOP A COLD QUICK AS YOU CAUGHT IT

A New Method Doctors Everywhere Are Advising

Take Bayer Aspirin according to directions in package.
Drink Full Glass of Water.
If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of warm water and gargle according to directions.

Almost Instant Relief In This Way

If you have a cold—don't take chances with "cold killers" and nostrums. A cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

The simple method pictured above is the way doctors throughout the world now treat colds.

It is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

That is because the real BAYER Aspirin embodies certain medical qualities that strike at the base of a cold almost INSTANTLY.

You can combat nearly any cold you get simply by taking BAYER Aspirin and drinking plenty of water every 2 to 4 hours the first day and 3 or 4 times daily thereafter. If throat is sore, gargle with 3 BAYER Aspirin Tablets crushed and dissolved in a half glass of warm water, repeating every 2 or 3 hours as necessary. Sore throat eases this way in a few minutes, incredible as this may seem.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get the real BAYER Aspirin Tablets. They dissolve almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets dissolve with speed and completeness, leaving no irritating particles or grittiness. Get a box of 12 or bottle of 24 or 100 at any drugstore.

Ask your druggist about the recent price reduction on the 100 tablet size Bayer Aspirin.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

THERE'S just one good substantial and undeniable reason why we will never give up the summer frock of wistful flower print. Three guesses—and I'll bet you guess it the first, second and third ones. 'Tis that men like 'em!

And worse than that—in the eyes of the style creators, we like 'em ourselves! No matter whether we feel like the utterly last word in fashion or not—dare you deny that secret, inner satisfaction with yourself when you are in a flowered chiffon frock?

So it isn't difficult to tell you that you needn't give that beloved flowered chiffon to the maid—'sif anyone ever did that any more! You might have to do this and that to it to make it look like it came from the last Paris collections, to be sure. Mostly you might have to cut out a few flowers and have a bit more flowerless background, as the new printed chiffons are not too lavishly flowered. And it would be awfully smart of you to have those that you cut out picot all around their design, and appliqued back onto a plain chiffon with fine hand stitches. Because the newest flowered chiffons for summer nights will be very much this way—a few flowers, on a plain background, and these appliqued where the designer wants them to be rather than happening where they will on the model!

Au revoir!

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

A READER from an exclusive residential section in a New York suburb has written me rather pathetically of her situation. She feels that she is the only one in the world suffering from a "beauty depression" and wonders if I will "assist her in getting out of her beauty rut?"

One of the woes my reader has listed is that she can no longer afford regular turkish baths. I know she enjoyed the steam room and the vigorous scrubbing, slapping and pounding; a lazy, luxurious, and I grant, beneficial habit. But with a little effort, an equally effective turkish bath can be taken in your own bathroom. Turn the hot water on full force and when the room is completely steamed, get into the tub and relax for ten or fifteen minutes. Next you must wrap yourself in blankets, lie down and rest for half an hour or so in a warm room. Return to the bathroom and take a warm shower, lathering yourself generously and scrubbing with a stiff brush or "loofah" mitten. Gradually allow the water to become cool and then as cold as you can stand it. Have you ever tried giving yourself a salt rub down? Get under the shower so that your body is dampened, take handfulls of plain table salt and rub the entire body, starting at the neck and down to your very toes. You will be in a glow—refreshed and rejuvenated. And satisfied that you are keeping within your reduced budget!

What Today Means

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 a. m. to 8:50 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 9:30 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 12 noon to 1:15 p. m. and from 4:30 p. m. to 5:20 p. m.

Personal relationships will seem particularly complex on this day. In all probability you will experience considerable difficulty in understanding the other person and in making yourself understood. Tempers will be lost and feelings will be hurt. Patience will be at a premium. When the mist clears, you will quite likely find no lasting damage done.

The child born on this February 9 will invariably seem to go the long way around to accomplish anything. He will create his own difficulties throughout his entire life. These mental hazards or barriers, he will not be able to hurdle. He will have to take his "hard knocks" until he learns. A fair student with an alert and active mind, he should be found to have a good memory for details.

If February 9 is the date of your birth, you fall in that rare group of people who seem to have no troubles.

Successful people born on February 9:

William H. Harrison, ninth President of the United States.

Samuel J. Tilden, former Governor of New York.

William T. Sampson, naval officer.

Nathan Goff, jr., lawyer.

George Ade, author.

INFERENTIAL FORCES.

IN addition to the strictly Forcing bids in the Culbertson System, which partner may not pass, there are a number of bids and bidding situations which, by correctly drawn inferences, are Forcing. Good players instinctively recognize these inferential Forces and respond to them as readily as they do to the bids which in themselves compel a further bid. Inferential Forces usually occur in situations where the hand making the inferential Force is in doubt whether the cards held by him and his partner should be played in a game at notrump or at a suit previously named, and in other cases may require a selection between suits, even at such times as a Jump Rebid has not been made by the Opening Hand.

An example of an inferential Force, requiring a choice by the Opening bidder between a game contract at notrump and a game contract at spades is shown in the hand below.

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

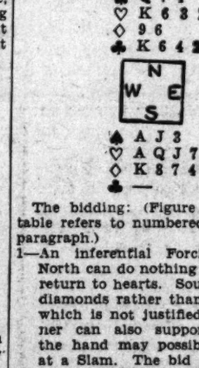
The bidding: (Figure after bid in table refers to numbered explanatory paragraph.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2NT	Pass	3♠(1)	Pass
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—This bid, by inference, is a Forcing bid. North, after his partner has opened with a bid of one spade, makes a regulation Takeout of two clubs. South, in response, discloses that his spade suit is not of Rebid strength and that his hand is more than a bare minimum by his bid of two notrump. If the hand is to be played short of game, it may quite likely be played as well at notrump as at spades. Hence when North now bids three spades the inference is clear. Lacking the honor strength to force, he is requiring South, who opened the bidding, to decide whether the partnership should contract for game in spades or at notrump. Holding a five-card suit and knowing that his partner has adequate support for that suit, South's next bid is simple.

Another example of an inferential Force, where there has been no Jump whatever in the bidding, is shown on the following hand. Here, after the Responding Hand has supported the Opening bid by raising once, the Opening hand continues the bidding by showing another suit. Obviously the Responding Hand must bid further, and this he does by bidding three hearts, although the bid of two hearts completely portrayed the story of support that he holds. The hand is:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figure after bid in table refers to numbered explanatory paragraph.)

1—An inferential Forcing bid. If North can do nothing else, he must return to hearts. South bids three diamonds rather than four hearts which is not justified, as, if partner can also support diamonds the hand may possibly be played at a Slam. The bid is quite safe, as an intelligent partner can not pass South's inferential Force, and thus the Opening Hand may contract for game later.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The four and five notrump bids, in the eager search for makable Grand Slams, while risking possible dangers in unfavorable distribution, are among the most fascinating bids in Bridge.

How would you bid the combined hands below to reach a Grand Slam? The process will be described tomorrow.

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

ALEXANDRIA TONIGHT TO SEE GALA REVUE

Rotarians and Kiwanians Are Backing Charity Event; Red Men Meet.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

An elaborate program of fun and entertainment will be presented to the public at the Maury School, Alexandria, tonight and tomorrow night, by members of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, in the "Ki-Ro Revue." The final rehearsal was held last night in the school auditorium. Loud speaker equipment, with which it is planned to amplify orchestration and also to serve as broadcasting equipment for the cabaret scenes, has already been installed and tested.

One of the features of the charity revue is the presentation of "Lost Babes in the Forest," a pantomime, showing Tom Jones as a witch, with Harvey Callender and Bill May as lost children, and Miss Cristine Munoz as the fairy.

There will also be a "Double Sextette," featuring selections from musical comedies. The cast includes Sarah Bowers, Anna Meeks, Frank Smoot, Lloyd Smoot, Evelyn Sheridan, Nellie Sommers, Joe Blackwell, Charles Marbury, Harry Maycock, Everett Swan, William Stephens and Rodifer Wilson. Another vocal scene, with the opera "Faust" as its motif, and including some of the most difficult selections from that musical drama, contains practically every male soloist in the community in the cast, among them being Talbott Haslet, Stephen Field, Armistead Boothe, Raymond Hellmuth, Stenley King, Alvin Friedlander, Windsor Demaine, Joe Blackwell, Charles Marbury, Harry Maycock, Everett Swan, William Stephens, Rodifer Wilson and others. The prelude to this scene is the violin solo by Alvin Friedlander and Bernice Coleman as accompanist.

A tap dance syncopation will be rendered by Misses Hampton, Heathcote and Bild, in costume, with Miss Dorothy Brown at the piano.

This is the most elaborate entertainment by local talent so far this winter.

Silver Moon Council, No. 15, Red Men, of Alexandria, last night installed the recently elected officers, the ceremonies being in charge of Mrs. Thelma Schroyer, deputy great Pocahontas of this district. The new officers were: Pocahontas, Hilda Hudson; Wenona, Virginia Wells; prophetess, Dorothy Sullivan; keeper of records, Lula Rowley; collector of wampum, Marvin Hudson; keeper of wampum, Mae Sarnell.

The Bicentennial degree team, composed of members of the several councils of the District of Columbia, conferred degrees on a class of candidates.

Mount Vernon Chapter, No. 14, Royal Arch Masons, of Alexandria, held a ladies' night celebration last night in the auditorium of the Virginia Public Service Co. An elaborate entertainment program was presented.

Virgil T. Bain, 65, died yesterday at the residence of F. H. Hibbs, 323 South St. Asaph street, Alexandria, where he made his home, after an illness of about one week. The deceased was unmarried and had for a number of years conducted a hardware business, succeeding his brother, the late William E. Bain, who opened the store here 37 years ago.

Mr. Bain is survived by two brothers, the Rev. Edward L. Bain, of Portsmouth, Va., and George E. Bain, of Lois, Fauquier County. The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning from 323 South St. Asaph street, conducted by the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of the Del Ray Methodist Episcopal Church South. Burial will be at Bealeton, Va.

A reorganization meeting of the Alexandria Bar Association was held yesterday with an enrollment of 43 attorneys of Alexandria. A constitution and by-laws were adopted. Meetings will be held the first Wednesday in each month.

Officers selected yesterday were Charles Henry Smith, president; William A. Moncure, vice president; Maurice Rosenberg, secretary-treasurer. Directors are Carl L. Budwesky, Albert V. Bryan and John Barton Phillips.

Representative Ashton C. Shallenberger, of Nebraska, will be the speaker at the Kiwanis Club meeting at 12:30 o'clock today in the George Mason Hotel, Alexandria.

Search For Charming Girls Drawing World Attention

51 Winners in The Washington Post $10,500 Contest Probably Will Receive Many Radio, Theatrical and Movie Contract Offers.

The international attention that will be focused upon 51 charming girls as the result of The Washington Post's search for a group to compose the court of honor at the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago next June will undoubtedly lead to many attractive offers for theatrical, motion picture or radio engagements, but, in keeping with the dignity and serious purpose of the contest, one of the conditions governing entrants is that such offers can not be accepted without the written consent of parents or guardians within the period of a year. This provision is made to further eliminate any commercial associations with the great undertaking that has been inaugurated by exclusive arrangements with the Century of Progress International Exposition.

Because the exposition is international in character the selection of a queen and her ladies-in-waiting will also be unrestricted in its scope. Unmarried girls living in any part of the world are invited to submit their photographs to the Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post, or they may be entered by friends or relatives, by merely providing the information requested on the transmittal coupon which appears on this page today. Either the coupon or the same information written upon a separate sheet of paper should be pasted to the back of the photograph

There are no entrance fees nor any other cost or obligation involved at any time.

During the progress of the contest, which will end at midnight Saturday, April 15, the rotogravure sections of The Washington Post will be featured by the pictures of ten entrants each Sunday and each of the girls represented will be paid $5 for the use of her picture for publication. Such selection will have positively no effect upon final judgments in the contest, however.

The 51 girls who are selected upon the basis of their photographs will go to Chicago as the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune, with every expense paid by these newspapers. They will participate in an elaborate program of entertainment during a stay of two weeks at the most luxurious hotels and will be provided with gorgeous costumes designed by leading modistes.

From this group a queen will be chosen to whom an award of $5,000 in cash will also be given. Two other girls will be selected as first and second ladies-in-waiting and they will receive $3,000 and $2,000, respectively.

The only unmarried girls who are ineligible to compete for these great honors and financial rewards are employes of The Washington Post and members of their families and professionals such as actresses and artists' models.

ROAD BILL IS PLACED IN MARYLAND HOUSE

Gives Counties Right to Say How Oil Tax Revenue May Be Applied.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 8.—The administration's road bill, stating the terms on which a part of the gasoline tax fund shall be diverted to county roads, was introduced in the House of Delegates today, the only important measure to be received in either house.

The bill gives the county commissioners the right to recommend what part of their share of the gasoline tax shall be spent for lateral roads, what part for county roads and streets in towns, and what part for debt service. The commissioners would also recommend the basic pay for road work and what roads should be built and of what material. If these recommendations are not approved, the commissioners may have a hearing before the State Roads Commission.

The law will be in effect only two years, and must be reenacted in 1935 if the diversion of gasoline tax funds is to continue. It provides that where prices are comparable, materials for road work shall be bought in the county where the work is done. Furthermore, the cost of supervising the county road work shall not be charged to the county's allotment of the tax, but shall be paid by the commission.

A bill strengthening the power of Mount Rainier police by allowing them to enforce all State and county laws was introduced today by the Prince Georges County delegation. The first Prince Georges bill to be passed at this session was finally voted on today. It makes minor changes in the Colmar Manor charter and allows the town government to levy a tax for the fire department's support.

About 150 women crowded the House chamber this afternoon for a public hearing on the bill introduced by Delegate Marvin Farrington, of Montgomery County, to allow women to serve on juries. Speakers in favor of the bill included Mrs. James Bennett, of Chevy Chase; Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen, of College Park, and Judge J. H. Shepperd, of Berwyn. Leo A. Rover, United States attorney for the District, told the judiciary committee at this hearing that women on Washington juries had proved satisfactory.

The Meanderer

Mme. Rubinstein Advises Women How to Make Up in Good Taste; Skin Creams With Vitamin D; Suede Jackets; Gown of Crisp Lace; Bouquets.

"Conservative, but flattering."

There, Washington women, are three words sent you by the world-famed Mme. Manka Rubinstein, through the humble Meanderer. The three words are to describe the make-up of the woman of good taste. Mme. Rubinstein knows good taste indubitably. Faces of women of royalty have come under the skillful criticism and treatment of this beautician and her sister, Mme. Helen Rubinstein. High-storied beauty salons in London, Paris, New York, Chicago and other cities attest to their success.

The spacious Rubenstein salon in Paris is opposite the British Embassy. In Grafton, in the Lord Salisbury house, the Rubinstein sisters have established their English home.

Mme. Rubinstein humored the Meanderer a little. She slipped on a beautifully quaint gown of red-and-white striped taffeta, bordered with black velvet ribbon—many yards wide at the hem—because the Meanderer was enamored of this gown—one of many American-made, entrancing costumes in the beautiful visitor's wardrobe. A picture, indeed, was the beauty expert in her gay gown, with her black hair in a most individual high coiffure. There's no room in this short morning column for explanation of Mme. Rubinstein's beauty methods. You must call the Meanderer, National 4205, extension 19, to know where to go to have your face analyzed for treatment by Mme. Rubenstein. She will do it graciously and expertly, with no obligation on your part, in one of Washington's leading department stores.

"Above all, don't let your make-up be obvious," Mme. Rubinstein warned. "The wise woman makes a definite study of subtle ways to enahance her appearance."

While we consider beauty aids, the Meanderer would call your attention to some new skin creams that are guaranteed to contain Vitamin D! The idea of vitamins in skin creams is very new to the Meanderer. The saleswoman featuring these creams in a department store on Seventh street declares that they have won a place in the Hall of Science in the coming World's Fair. Each ounce of the beauty creams contains 200 units of Vitamin D. A 2-ounce jar of one of the creams is $1.

Dashing jackets of suede are brand-new arrivals in a smart shop on F street particularly well known for its sports wear for women. They are in brown, gray, tan, green and a flame red. Some of them are quite short and are known as "monkey jackets." Many of them are priced at less than $10.

A gown of crisp black lace, with the lace appearing to have been starched, is one of the nicest new gowns the Meanderer saw on F street. It had a yoke of similar lace in cream color, and a clever, tied jacket to make the costume a double-duty one.

For a tiny bouquet on a new costume, the Meanderer would suggest bouquets of pansies she saw for 50 cents; or a dozen of the exquisite, tiny sweetheart roses for 50 cents; or a perfect gardenia for 50 or 75 cents apiece. All these are found in a well-known flower store in the heart of the shopping district.

Telephone your questions on items in The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, extension 19; or address The Meanderer, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

A number of prominent citizens of the Chevy Chase area have signed a petition asking that the amendment be inserted and the county delegation has approved the amendment.

Carpenter Is Hurt At Takoma Park

Virginian Partly Buried as Wall of Excavation Caves In.

J. L. Barnes, 42, carpenter of Park Lane, Va., was critically injured yesterday when a section of the foundation wall excavation at the Citizens Bank of Takoma Park Building caved in and pinned him face downward. He was extricated by fellow workmen and then rushed to the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital at Takoma Park by Town Policeman Frank A. Lane.

Hospital authorities reported that he had suffered a fractured pelvis, cuts on the head and body bruises. He was kept at the hospital for treatment.

Barnes was constructing wooden form for concrete foundations when a section of the first wall gave way and knocked him from his feet. He was almost completely buried.

More Lighting Refused For American U. Park

Traffic governs street lighting, the American University Park Citizens Association learned last night.

In refusing its petition for better lights on Brandywine street, between Forty-fourth and Forty-sixth streets northwest, the District Commissioners informed the association that traffic on the street did not warrant the lights.

THE FOREIGN INVADERS.

A vote is to be forced in the House on Feb. 13, on the bill providing for countervailing duties on goods imported from depreciated currency countries. The imports from those countries are reaching alarming proportions, threatening to put American producers out of business. About 150 different products are affected. The enormous increase is not reflected in values, on account of cheaper figures, but the volume increases tell the story.

Despite the assurances of Democratic leaders that they will co-operate in case of necessity to protect American labor and industry against ruinous foreign competition, the policy of Democratic leaders in the House is to squelch the legislation proposed under Republican auspices. This is pure politics, and the victims are American producers employing American labor. But Democrats are not unanimous in obstructing protection of American industry. Some Democrats have jumped the traces and will vote for the Crowther bill.

The situation that confronts the country calls for non-partisan defensive action against foreign competition. The foreigners are not actuated by political motives. They are busily engaged in undermining Americans in the American market, in scores of products. There is reason to believe that the Japanese government is assisting Japanese producers to capture the American market. An economic war is on, according to the finance minister of Japan, and the Japanese hold a trump card in depreciated currency and cheapened labor.

Americans are foolishly permitting foreign producers to flood this market with cheap goods. The inevitable consequence is the closing down of American factories and increased unemployment. It is necessary to set up a barrier against depreciated-currency goods, either by changing the basis of duty to the value of goods as sold in this market, or by arbitrary increase of duties. The bill formulated by the Republicans of the House will check excessive foreign imports against which Americans can not compete. It should be enacted immediately, without regard to politics, as a safeguard for all Americans subjected to ruinous foreign competition. It is a measure as clearly intended for the national defense as if it provided an army to defend American shores against invasion.

MORTGAGE HOLIDAYS.

Both houses of the Iowa legislature have passed almost unanimously a bill which provides for a moratorium on farm mortgages for three years. It is considered certain that it will be signed by the governor. This measure will permit any farmer to ask the district court to grant continuances of foreclosure action to prevent forced sale up to the expiration date, March 1, 1936. If the reasons presented appear valid to the judge he can take custody of property and make disposition of rentals and profits.

This action undoubtedly is the beginning of similar steps in other States. It raises some interesting questions which will have to be settled by the courts. First to arise will be the contention that the Iowa measure impairs the obligations of contracts. Just how suspension of the terms of a mortgage is to be construed will be a development of the near future.

Many inquiries have been received as to whether Congress might authorize a general suspension of mortgage contracts. The Constitution imposes no such restriction on the national Government as it does on the States. United States District Judge Knox some ten years ago cited various cases in which Congress had directly or indirectly impaired contractual rights. He said: "Congress can, and often has, without impinging upon any constitutional guarantee, impaired the obligations of contracts which, when made, were binding upon the parties thereto."

But here again the fifth amendment to the Constitution brings to bear the "due process" clause with respect to the deprivation of property, involving consideration as to whether long-term suspension of principal and interest payments might amount to the taking of property without due process of law. But this phrase is very indefinite. No very precise definition has been given to "due process," though years ago it was held to be "law in the regular course of administration through courts of justice."

Justice McKenna of the Supreme Court, in an opinion rendered in 1906, held that an exact definition of due process had never been given. The cause and the object must be taken into consideration with regard to what constitutes due process. Processes found to be arbitrary, oppressive or unjust doubtless would be ruled out. If a mortgage moratorium by Congress would be open to attack under the due process clause it appears inevitable that State action along this line, when impairment of contracts by them is prohibited by the Constitution, will be nullified by the courts.

GOVERNMENT COMPETITION.

Competition by the Government with its citizens is severely condemned by a special House committee which has conducted an extensive inquiry into that subject. The committee found that "the operations of the Federal Government in the field of private enterprise have reached a magnitude and diversity which threaten to reduce the private initiative, curtail the opportunities and infringe upon the earning powers of taxpaying undertakings, while steadily increasing the levies upon them." Government competition with private enterprise is not only a blow to business but an indirect blow to the Government itself.

The committee makes extensive recommendations, but the general principles which it lays down may be more influential than its specific advice. It concludes:

> Entrance of the Government into commercial and industrial undertakings, backed by public credit and resources and its military and civilian personnel, for the purpose of competing with the business establishments and the opportunities of livelihood of its citizens, is in general repugnant to our fundamental democratic institutions and aspirations.

It is well known that private citizens can not compete with agencies which have the taxing power of the Government behind them. The crushing effect of governmental competition upon business has been demonstrated many times. The chief value of this investigation is that it centers attention upon the destructive effect of Federal business enterprises at a time when efforts are being made to extend such activities as a cure for depression.

Washington is especially interested in the committee's advice as to Government cafeterias. As a rule, the committee found, the establishment of restaurants in Government buildings at the expense of taxpayers is an unwarranted encroachment upon private business without benefit to the Government. No objection is raised to cooperative stores or cafeterias organized by Government employes, provided that reasonable rent is paid for the use of any space in Government buildings and the enterprises are not conducted by Government employes. This seems to be a fair solution of the Government restaurant problem.

One curious recommendation advises the creation of a cost-finding system to compare Federal manufacturing costs with those of private industry. What could be the use of such an agency if competition between the Government and its citizens is to be wiped out? There is no fair basis for comparison of costs between public and private establishments. Even if it should be proved that Government production costs less, the American people would prefer to manage their own enterprises. Business and politics can not be mixed with any satisfactory results in the long run. Let the Government withdraw from all business, except that which falls essentially within its province, such as the postal service. Restoration of Federal business projects to private industry would be a notable contribution toward recovery from the business slump.

A GOOD-WILL CONFERENCE.

President-elect Roosevelt has frequently reiterated his desire to cooperate with the States in disposing of problems in which both the Federal and State governments are interested. His conference with the governors on March 6 is a step in that direction. The President-elect will initiate a discussion which he hopes will bring the States closer together and establish a basis for friendly relations between Washington and the State capitals.

It would be a mistake to expect definite action from this conference. The subjects proposed for discussion will require months of study and negotiations. Conflicting State and Federal taxes, for example, can be straightened out only after extensive preparations leading to action by Congress and the legislatures. At best, governors and the President may only recommend what action should be taken, and it would be impossible, of course, to frame even recommendations in such a brief conference.

No doubt the chief value of the conference will come from the information which the governors will be able to give Mr. Roosevelt as to conditions in their respective States. Added to this will be a spirit of good will which is nearly always generated by gatherings of this kind. If the governors return to their States conscious of the fact that the United States is confronted with problems far more serious than their local difficulties, the conference will not be a wasted effort.

PRESERVING SEA LIFE.

If it were not for protective laws that keep pace with improved modern methods of destruction many of the wild inhabitants of both land and sea would soon be completely annihilated. There is general knowledge of domestic game laws, but comparatively few are familiar with the years of effort that were necessary to secure protection for some of the valuable creatures who live in the ocean. The great tortoises of the Galapagos Islands have been hunted for three centuries. As a result of these raids by voyagers in the South Pacific they were rapidly disappearing.

Apprehending the inevitable extinction of this great tortoise, Dr. Charles H. Townsend, director of the New York Aquarium, brought nearly 100 of them to southern waters and established colonies in Florida, Louisiana, Texas, California, Hawaii and Bermuda, so that this valuable species may continue to live under proper protection.

Thirty years ago Dr. Townsend became aware of the imminent annihilation of fur seals, due to wholesale and uncontrolled slaughter. As the United States Government naturalist, he accumulated extensive data on the subject over a period of years, and at the Russo-American arbitration conference he was instrumental in obtaining regulatory measures looking to seal conservation. The protection afforded these wards of Uncle Sam in Alaskan waters limits the kill and assures a continued supply of fine skins which the Government every year puts on the market.

Today Dr. Townsend's office in the aquarium reflects his present preoccupation. Charts show the distribution and movements of whales in all parts of the world. He hopes to reduce the slaughter of these great mammals which modern methods of killing have made possible. The whale is the last important source of animal oil. In the days of sailing vessels less than 10,000 whales were caught yearly, but last year the kill exceeded 38,000, resulting in an oversupply of oil. The modern whaler, a huge factory steamer of 20,000 tons, carrying possibly eight "killing boats" with cannon harpoons, has wrought great havoc with the whale supply. Dr. Townsend hopes an international agreement may be reached to end unwarranted destruction.

RADIO PROPAGANDA.

Observers comment upon the growing tension among the states of southeastern Europe. General use of the radio appears for the first time as an irritant that is adding to international ill feeling in several directions. Virtually all European governments operate stations capable of reaching the other capitals. These broadcasts, comprising programs that are superior to those of minor commercial stations, are interlarded with talks that are plainly nationalistic propaganda.

Yugoslavia continues to be the storm center, with the feeling growing that Belgrade might welcome a minor war in order to cement the dissatisfied Croats and Slovenes and silence the demand for constitutional government. The Serbian military party is strong, and its resentment of the Albanian border settlement and Italy's recent aspersions renders the situation a delicate one. The fact that Roumania is Yugoslavia's only immediate ally, while both are surrounded by unfriendly nations, does not appear to alarm the fighting Serbs, who in the ultimate analysis look to French support.

Special attention was called to the international radio situation when Poland registered protest in London against an official broadcast that was considered a reflection upon Poland's armament policies and its dealing with the Polish corridor question. Both France and Italy have also found fault with some of the British broadcasts on political questions. Radio accusations back and forth between Germany and France are of frequent occurrence. The stations of both nations are charged with disseminating pernicious propaganda.

Broadcasts from Belgrade outline to the European nations Yugoslavia's contentions in connection with its heated interchange with Rome, and promptly powerful Italian radio waves bring back counter attacks. Just now the Germans are excited anew over the Polish budget, which devotes one-third of the total to the accumulation of war supplies and the extraordinary training of reserves. German radio programs carry sharp criticisms of Poland, which Polish listeners hear with anything but complacency. The verbal war in the air stirs up animosities which increase the difficulties of peace-makers.

The United States can well afford to agree to the proposal that the nations shall refuse to lend money to the bogus state of Manchukuo.

Americans have their troubles, but think of the British Cabinet, which is trying to find a way to prove that a debt is not a debt.

A depreciation of 50 degrees in temperature is a hint of the obstacles that confront Japan.

THE TWO MUSSOLINIS

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

The susceptibilities of France will no doubt be stirred by Adolf Hitler's appeal for "close and energetic friendship" between Italy and Germany made in an interview last week with Italian correspondents. The menace of German Fascism will appear all the more ominous when linked with Italian Fascism. The diminutive Teuton Mussolini will take on a less spurious and humorous air when united with his Italian prototype.

Former Premier Herriot in a speech last Thursday pointed to the danger, as he saw it, of this combination. "France," he said, "would make the gravest mistake if it neglected to ponder on the similarity of the two regimes and failed to sense the undercurrent of Italo-German sympathies." He pointed out the efforts of Mussolini to get a foothold in the Balkans and the sinister possibilities of this move to France's ally, Jugoslavia. He also emphasized the fact that Rome had headed the movement to revise the peace treaties.

As a phenomenon in world politics, Hitler looms larger than he is. His power, especially in binding Italy and Germany together, is apparently exaggerated. There is, of course, the similarity between the political ideas of the German National Socialists and the Italian Fascists. There is the fact that Hitler apes the histrionics of the Italian leader. "The undercurrent of Italo-German sympathies," to use the term of Herriot, is not due to Hitlerism but is a direct result of French policy. Hitlerism also owes its being to the French ideal of the status quo in Europe and of the maintenance of peace through coercion.

The idea of a closer union between Italy and Germany is no new thing. It is an actuality. It is Italy's one way out, surrounded as it is by the little allies of France. It has been manifested in almost every international conference, where the diplomats of Rome have sided with the Teutonic nation. It was carried to its farthest point when Mussolini assumed the role of the champion of treaty revision and a new deal in the interests of peace and justice.

It's Time He Learned.

POST HASTE

The President-elect sent word that he would leave Congress to its own devices, but the "de" was lost in transmission.

What will the next Congress do with all the time it saves from not having to fight over divided party responsibility?

Wilsonian diplomacy of open decisions, openly arrived at, was never John Bull's way, and the surest bet is that the real proposals for debt settlement will not be those now thrown out for public chewing.

Chancellor Hitler and the Senate have effective ways of dealing with their critics.

The incoming President has called all the Governors to a meeting at the White House on March 6. With good luck and night sessions the agenda may be considered in 30 days and if half of it is adopted should obviate any necessity for an extra session.

The potential alacrity of the Senate was well demonstrated by the promptness with which it voted executive authority to cut that $1,000,000,000 from the $50,000,000 overlapping bureaus and commissions.

Senator Tydings' proposal to reduce the "unwieldly" House membership by 110, may, in view of the records of this session, bring a reciprocal proposal from some representative for a like decrease in the Senate.

A New York paper says "Congressmen are cool to British lump sum settlement." On the contrary, the proposal makes most of them hot.

Our modest advice to Mr. Roosevelt would be to bring the 48 governors something to agree on, rather than to attempt to reconcile the four dozen plans they will offer.

The initial business of the first minority senatorial caucus for the next session should be to adopt a plain definition of Republican.

In addition to the toothbrush mustache Hitler also is like Charley Chaplin in his aversion to talkies, at least from the opposition.

Mr. Bullitt, it seems, is not one of the illegal soft-nosed variety—just nosey.

HOPE FOR THE FUTURE.

When capital and labor get back to work again,
Perhaps they'll toil as brothers—not as different breeds of men.
Perhaps they'll see each other not as enemies, but as friends,
With a clearer understanding just how much on each depends.

When capital and labor set the fires aglow once more,
Perhaps they'll know each other somewhat better than before,
And the man who owns the factory may find a way to share
The burdens more effectively of all who labor there.

When capital and labor start the wheels of trade again,
Perhaps they'll see each other just as earnest fellowmen,
And the man who wields the hammer may find something good to say
Of him who builds a factory where he can earn his pay.

When capital and labor start the wheels of lathe and loom,
God grant they'll find the meaning of this period of gloom.
For with better understanding of each other's cares and needs,
Both sides may be less selfish in their thinking and their deeds.

The Only Way to Get Out of a Tight Hole Is to Back Out

By ROBERT QUILLEN

TECHNOCRACY has served the Nation well, if only by calling attention to the increasing dangers of machine production.

The danger, however, is not in machinery itself, but in the abuse of it. Every good thing man has made becomes a curse when wrongly used.

The machines that have done most for mankind were hated in the beginning because they deprived men of their jobs. But in every instance they increased the world's wealth and thus ultimately provided more jobs than they destroyed.

Why, then, do thoughtful men see a menace in machinery at this late day?

Because excess has made a good thing bad. The saturation point has been reached.

The war prompted increased use of machinery to replace men. The decade after the war developed so many new machines that industry began to dream of production without labor.

At the peak of boom times there were three million idle men in America. And more were destined to be jobless, regardless of the times.

Why and how does machinery threaten our civilization?

All modern nations have enough machinery to make more goods than they can use at home. They must find a market abroad. And the struggle for markets, for lack of which machines and men are idle, encourages ever-sharper competition, a more bitter nationalism, international envy, suspicion and hate.

Every international problem and danger that troubles the earth is a product of the struggle for markets. And every boy killed in the wars now in the making will be sacrificed to machinery and the surplus it creates.

We can't prosper by taking jobs from cash customers here at home and fighting the world for new customers abroad.

Must we quit using machinery? No. Invent more and better machines to make life richer and easier. But quit abusing the blessing we have. Limit and control production. If we seized all of the foreign markets, then our best customers would be jobless and unable to buy.

Would it be a backward step to limit machine production? Yes, but a step back to safety. It is a backward step to limit armament, but it is none the less wise.

Wealth is a good thing, but who doubts the wisdom of curbing it when it becomes too great?

POLITICAL COMMENT

Beginning at the Wrong End.
New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial.

American planners who envisage grandiose governmental projects for transforming extensive landed areas would be forced to utilize labor and capital for the purpose without hope of immediate return. Indeed, it is doubtful if the kind of extensive development planning which private enterprise eschews would ever become self-liquidating in the strict sense of that much abused word. In any case, while the work was in process, the labor and capital employed would have to be maintained at the expense of other producing groups. It is true that some idle men would be put to work who would have to be supported by the community if no employment were available. This made employment, however, would be created as a result of heavy outlays of capital, which the Federal Government would either have to borrow or take from its citizens in the form of taxes.

The pressure to force the Federal Government to finance various kinds of construction activities comes from three classes of people: (1) Those who would limit such outlays to enterprises that are fairly sure to prove self-sustaining; (2) those who are ready to promote any kind of undertaking that may conceivably become self-supporting in the dim future; and (3) those who believe that Government money should be spent on public construction in disregard of its self-sustaining character. It is the last two groups of propagandists who endanger the public credit, because they are convinced that if we try hard enough we can spend ourselves out of depression.

Already Gone.

Its advocates say technocracy would do away with money. Three years too late.

The Need for a Tax Treaty.
Minneapolis Journal.

Commended in principle by both President and President-elect, the National Legislators Association has tackled the evil of overlapping Federal and State taxes. Its primary attack is upon the overload imposed by Federal and State income, inheritance and sales taxes—costly, confusing and increasingly burdensome. But this is not the only reason for reform such as the association seeks.

The income taxpayer whose State as well as Federal Government levies income or inheritance taxes, or both, is under the necessity of keeping special accounts for taxing officials. The same thing applies to sales tax accounting. And these two situations lead into the requirement of a multiplicity of tax officials, with their burdens and extensive personnel often concerned alike, with almost identical tax bases.

Support of these taxing and collection agencies falls on the taxpayer, as does maintenance of all revenue-raising and spending officials and employes. The result is a growing bureaucracy, wound round and round about with miles of red tape.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Machinery Makes More Jobs Than It Obliterates—Female Employment Bigger Than Ever.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Perhaps most of the unemployed today, especially among the "dinner-pail" class, feel that they are the victims of the machine age. They have been told that machinery has supplanted them. They have believed this report, and then have accepted as inevitable the conclusion that they are now nothing but unwanted extras in the world scheme of things.

But an important point has been overlooked. What about their value as consumers? Ask the farmer, almost obscured from view by the surplus of his own fields, and he will tell you that these supposedly "unwanted extras" are his most valuable (potential) asset. Ask any other producer and he will tell you the same. Who is going to use the enormous output of these same efficient machines if the laborer is out of the picture? If we are to have mass production we must also have mass consumption. The necessity, then, is to keep the laborer employed.

If machinery is the cause of our present woes, the world should have been living in a golden age 200 years ago. Did the invention of the cotton gin ruin the South? On the other hand, the use of machinery results in such economy of production that the increased demand offsets—sometimes more than offsets, and always to a large degree—any temporary loss to the labor market. The increasing demands of our ever-advancing cultural life always more than take care of any loss of employment. Otherwise how could we have absorbed this unprecedented increase in feminine employment during the last 50 years?

France Owes No "War Debt" to U. S.—Loans Were Made After Armistice.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why befog the issue by referring to "France's war debt" to the United States. She owes us no war debt. We wiped the slate clean of that long ago.

The Berenger-Mellon settlement was on a basis that practically eliminated all the money our Government loaned France to save her from destruction. It included only loans for rehabilitation after the armistice was signed and provision for payment for left-over war stocks and property, the cost of which was over $2,000,000,000, but which France purchased at 25 cents on the dollar—a total of $407,000,000. How absurb to speak of this as a war debt!

All that France in that settlement bound herself to pay was for what went into the permanent assets of France, equipping her to compete with us in the world market. These are facts for the consideration of the incoming administration. They are facts which should be broadcast throughout France. If Frenchmen generally knew these facts, they would cease to speak of it as a war debt. And the $20,000,000 which is less than the interest on the merchandise and property alone would be paid with no further delay.

Economy Is Crippling Necessary Services, While Giving Millions to Veterans Not Suffering From War Disability.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congress is nibbling at economy. It refuses point-blank to further reduce the compensation of members of Congress, but does not hesitate to vote on reduction of Government clerks wages. If a Government clerk can live on an average wage of about $1,600 or less in a time of emergency, upon what does a member of Congress feed?

If Congress must cut the appropriations of the Federal Trade Commission a half billion, the Bureau of Standards to the vanishing point, the Patent Office to the extent of crippling it, the Coast Guard and Immigration Service until they can not possibly be effective—all amounting to no more than nibbling a few dollars—what of the simple procedure of cutting about $400,000,000 from compensation to veterans not suffering from war disability?

"Outdoorsmen" Interested in Many Things Besides Recreation or Sport.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to congratulate you on providing weekly space in the Sunday edition of The Post for the column "With Outdoorsman," and especially for your change in policy, as indicated in yesterday's issue, of taking this column off the "sports" page.

The large conservation groups, such as the American Game Association, with headquarters in this city, and the local chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America, one of the most active chapters of the league in the country, are interested in the preservation and upbuilding of our forests, game and fish; the prevention of pollution of our waterways and the encouragement of recreational pursuits.

From the foregoing it will be apparent that the objectives are much wider than purely the promotion of sport.

"Oh, the Star-Spangled Banner in triumph shall wave

COALE REINSTATED; STUDENTS HOSTILE

Foe of Military Training at Maryland University Finds Self Opposed.

In an atmosphere distinctly antipathetic, Ennis H. Coale is back at the University of Maryland fighting for an education, although university officials and students alike look askance at him.

The youth, whose religious scruples against compulsory military training caused his dismissal from the College Park institution and whose fighting spirit won reinstatement through action of the Maryland courts, yesterday was making plans for the future despite the hostile surroundings of the campus.

That the university officials are unforgiving toward Coale is evident in the bitter fight they carried on in the court, and in their statement that Coale's victory may not be permanent, as they plan an appeal from the court's decision.

The university's reception of the youth indicated that he espoused an unpopular cause. There was delay about the assignment of his room in the dormitory. Two students flatly refused to share a room with him.

About Coale, who said that he refused the military training because he saw his refusal as a way that he could "help to do away with the wasteful and unreasonable war system," a fellow student said his stand had "made a lot of unnecessary trouble for the school."

His reception as indicated in the attitude of students on his return to the university may be taken as an indication of the popularity of military training at the University of Maryland.

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Dearest Mother:

Mrs. Gary was full of entertaining stories.

The most interesting divorce case was about two women who came out here and met each other at the hotel. They remarked what a coincidence that they were both Mrs. Jacksons. Later one asked the other's husband's first name. Henry—just like her husband's. They thought it a wonderful coincidence, when one day they discovered through an old snapshot that one of them had that it was one and the same man. That actually happened.

Another case was a man from Denver, who was in love with a girl there and told her he was going to divorce his wife and come back and marry her. While out here he met a rich New York women and married her, after their divorces were granted. At Sacramento, on their wedding trip, he said he had to return to Reno to attend to business there and would fly back that night. Which he did. Later he had business in San Francisco and would fly back the same night, but he never returned. At the end of a year she decided to divorce him and came back to Reno.

The clerk in the courthouse told her that records showed she was already divorced the second time. She said she couldn't be, that her husband had never asked her for a signature. They showed it to her and then she remembered that one day while they had lived together he had offered to go down town and order her calling cards for her and had got her to write her name. This paper he had taken to Reno and used as her signature to divorce her. She later found that he had returned to Denver and married the other girl who had never known of his second matrimonial venture.

There have been numbers of people here three times for divorces. When you leave here, if you go on paying rent for a small room with one garment hanging in it, you can always get a divorce in 24 hours. Several people have done this to be on the safe side.

I have so far not heard of one case where the husband has refused to sign where there are no children and the wife is not asking for alimony. They are always glad to get off so cheaply and with a free divorce. I don't anticipate any trouble.

Read my letters to any of the family who are interested, because when I finish these I have not got the energy to write any more.

ELIZABETH.

Those taking part will be Blanche Cranmer, Eleanor Dawkins, Harriet Mitchell and Kenneth Herold. The Business and Professional Women's Club of the church is sponsoring this part of the program.

The close-knit program for inaugural eve, Friday, March 3, makes "early dinner" an imperative order of the day. Many dinner parties are scheduled for visiting celebrities by local hostesses for that night. But the conventional hour must be discarded. There is, first, the inaugural concert, set for Constitution Hall at 8:30 o'clock. The inaugural general entertainment committee insists upon a prompt curtain in order that the program may be concluded in ample time for patrons to attend the governor's reception in the Pan-American Building, "next door," which is scheduled for 10:30 o'clock.

The inaugural concert artists are Lawrence Tibbett and Rosa Ponselle, Metropolitan Opera Co. stars; Efram Zimbalist, noted violinist, and the National Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Hans Kindler. Their fame, alone, should assure prompt attendance by seatholders.

Stocks Continue Advances On Larger Trading Volume

Six-Tenths Gain Recorded as Sales Mount to 723,726 Shares.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—For the third successive market stocks closed today with an average net gain, this time with a little larger volume of trading.

Isolated weakness in tobaccos and a few other issues caused some hesitation after a slow morning upturn, but the advance was resumed in the last hour under guidance of the rail shares which thus reassured the leadership they had given on several other upturns of the past month. Net gains ranged from fractions to about a point for many carriers, industrials and utilities. Volume was 723,726 shares.

Expectations that U. S. Steel's backlog rose in January were factors helpful to shares. The steel industry's output ratio, as anticipated, showed a slight recession due mostly to smaller automobile orders, and electric power production figures last week registered a larger decline, as compared with a year ago, than had occurred in the previous week. However, the market seemed to feel that favorable influences held the balance, noting specially in this connection General Motors' January sales statistics which showed a larger volume of business than a year ago.

American Telephone continued to receive support from covering by shorts who were protecting themselves against possible declaration of a regular dividend next Wednesday, and firmness of this leader stiffened the list against weakness of the tobaccos. Selling in that group brought extreme losses of 1 to 2 points which, however, were reduced. National Biscuit and Union Carbide were also heavy. Copper stocks brightened a bit, while oils hardly looked fearful of future price-cutting. Utilities continued firm.

Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Johns-Manville, Case, Chesapeake & Ohio, Union Pacific, American Sugar Refining, American Smelting, Coca Cola and International Nickel joined American Telephone in net gains approximating a point. Consolidated Gas, Harvester, Santa Fe, Illinois Central, Pennsylvania, New York Central and Delaware & Hudson appreciated fractionally. Seaboard Oil rose on the extra dividend news. New York Shipbuilding preferred hopped up about 7.

Sugar futures opened at advances of 1 to 2 points as a result of covering and trade buying, against further sales abroad and some new outside buying, promoted by the firmness of spots and the continued strength in London. This initial demand was supplied by selling through houses with producing connections and following the call there was a partial setback, which brought some of the active positions back to the previous close.

The offerings were well absorbed however and the market headed again toward midday with the market at the noon hour at the best levels of the movement thus far and from 1 to 2 points above the previous close. Private cables from London attributed the strength there to covering, and the advance in refined and said that about 70,000 tons of war sugar had sold to the trade during the past several days.

Refined sugar was steady, but prices were unchanged at 3.90 for fine granulated with the trade buying only for nearby requirements.

(Associated Press.)

London—A more cheerful tone was registered on the stock exchange owing to better Wall street advices which also helped the rise in transatlantic issues. Resumption of buying improved gilt-edged securities, foreign bonds and industrials. Gold mining issues were more quiet, being influenced by profit taking. The close was steady.

Paris—Prices were resistant on the bourse and closed well disposed. Some international issues benefited on buying from abroad.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse was quiet but cheerful, and the closing was firm.

CURB PRICES HIGHER IN QUIETER TRADING

Utility Issues Advance as Sales Volume Drops to 100,000 Shares.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The Curb market developed an irregularly higher tendency in a rather apathetic session today, in which only about 100,000 shares were traded.

Utility shares were not adversely affected by the electric power consumption statistics, for they were believed to reflect principally the unseasonably warm weather last week.

American Gas & Electric and Electric Bond & Share were up fractionally. Bond & Share 6 per cent preferred rose nearly 2 points then lost part of its gain. Columbia Gas preferred rose 2½, and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore 1½. Duke Power receded 2½ in a thin market, and United Gas dropped more than 3.

In the mining group, such coppers as Hudson Bay and Roan Antelope gained fractionally, in sympathy with strength of the red metal group on the big board, evidently reflecting gossip concerning possible production restriction. The bullish flurry in the gold mining issues seemed to be over. Oils were not adversely affected by this weeks gasoline price reductions. Gulf gained a fraction, and Indiana was steady.

Industrials were quiet and mixed. Stutz and Novadel Agene gained about a point, and the better tone in wheat was reflected by a fractional gain in Deere. American Hardware dropped more than 3 points to 12¾, or under its 1932 low, in a thin market. Carnation Co. sagged a point.

GOODS MARKET.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Print cloth sales this week have exceeded the current rate of production and prices are ⅛ cent higher. Moderate trading is reported in finished lines. Demand for rayon yarns was quieter and rayon fabrics continued in moderate call. Business is developing slowly in wool goods. Burlaps were quiet.

Industrial Companies Come Through Storm With Cash

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Large industrial corporations appear in the main to have come through the third year of the economic blizzard still holding big cash reserves.

A number of the companies already reported for their 1932 fiscal year actually show gains in cash and equivalent over the end of the previous year. Statisticians point out, however, that companies which issue their reports in the earlier weeks of the year usually make a better showing in the aggregate than those which report later.

A relatively low volume of bonded indebtedness has stood the industrial companies in good stead. Their fixed charges average lower than those of the railroads or public utilities, so that as inventories have been liquidated, cash accounts have swelled in many instances.

Industrials also have been saved much of the embarrassment of having bonds mature in this period of difficult refunding. A tabulation by Standard Statistics Co. shows that against fixed debt maturities for 1933 of nearly $300,000,000 for leading railroads, and $275,000,000 for utilities, industrial bond maturities in excess of $1,000,000 aggregate only about $82,000,000. Short-term bank indebtedness is a relatively much larger burden for industrial companies than bonded debt, but injects an element of uncertainty only into situations in which the bankers may regard the outlook for restored earning power as unfavorable.

In a number of companies, cash account has grown, despite the fact that deficits have been reported. This has been largely due to the fact that charges for depreciation and obsolescence of plant are charged against operating income, but these charges do not involve cash outlay until such time as money is actually spent to restore the plant. A number of companies have reduced their cash through maintenance of dividend rates in excess of earnings. This was partly responsible for the shrinkage of General Motors' cash account from $205,029,119 on December 31, 1931, to $172,780,695 on December 31, 1932.

In the following table are some of the larger companies thus far reporting, which show gains in cash account at the 1932 fiscal year end over the previous year end (figures represent units of $1,000,000):

	1932	1931

G. M. Denies Move To Reduce Capital

Papers Filed Last Month Show Increase in Share Structure.

Detroit, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—A dispatch from Lansing, Mich., last night to the effect that the General Motors Corporation had filed notice with the corporation division of the department of State of Michigan of decrease in authorized capital stock from $1,253,333,000 to $750,000,000 was described at the corporation offices today as in error.

The facts are, it was stated, the corporation filed last month supplemental franchise papers at Lansing showing its authorized capital as of December 31, 1930, to be $1,259,332,200, indicating an increase of $5,448,300 over the authorized capital filed on December 10, 1928.

The present authorized capital consists of 75,000,000 shares of $10 par value common stock, and 6,000,000 shares of preferred no-par value stock. The change to that capital authorization was filed July 1, 1932. Of the former, 43,500,000 shares are outstanding, and of the latter 1,875,366 shares of the $5 series at $100 are outstanding.

Mortgage Finance Company Planned

Banks and R. F. C. Backing May Be Sought to Meet Maturities.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—An early announcement was expected today of the formation of a new Mortgage Finance Corporation designed to help local mortgage companies meet 1933 maturing guaranteed mortgages.

Details were unavailable, but it was learned that member banks of the New York clearing house had been asked to subscribe to the capital of the new corporation. The mortgage companies would likewise participate.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation would be asked to loan $150,000,000, although it was reported that officials of that organization had stated informally the corporation would not advance funds unless the mortgage companies and New York banks would participate equally.

BONDS RECORD GAINS AS U.S. GROUP SINKS

All Other Issues Join Rise on Sales Increase to $9,560,000.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—With the single exception of the United States Government group, which lost ground, the bond market was decidedly firm today, adding many moderate gains to those scored yesterday. The composite average rose 2-10 of a point, and turnover increased to $9,560,000 from $8,053,000 on the previous day.

Various suggestions were offered to account for the heavy tone of Treasury issues, but none appeared to have a definite relation to the trend. In the case of the 3⅜s the loss was ⅜ of a point, while the 4¼s declined almost as much.

Rails participated in the improvement all along the line, but the secondary issues again led the upswing, with many raising themselves well above the levels prevailing at the start of the week.

Gains ranging from 1 to 4 points were recorded in some loans of the Rock Island, Chicago & North Western, St. Louis-San Francisco, Denver & Rio Grande, New York Central, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, and other carriers.

Domestic industrial and utility issues were steady to firm. Those of good investment rating held well, but some of the more speculative varieties dipped rather sharply.

The major part of the foreign list made further progress led by Germans and Brazilians. Improvement in the former group again extended to the municipal, corporation and bank descriptions.

Argentina Corn Slashed By Drought and Locusts

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Drought and locusts have destroyed more than 25 per cent of Argentina's 14,331,000-acre corn crop now maturing, the ministry of agriculture reported today. This leaves the harvestable estimated crop at 10,625,000 acres, which is the smallest in years. Some of the remainder, it was said, had been damaged to an undetermined degree.

The acreage originally sown was only slightly less than last year.

HEAVY COTTON RISE SLASHED IN SELLING

May Is Sold at 6.10 as Market Closes 1 Down to 1 Point Up.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—A further advance in cotton today encouraged Southern selling and realizing, and after selling up to 6.22 for May contracts, or 37 points above the low price of last Monday, prices reacted in the late trading.

May closed at 6.10 with the general market closing barely steady net 1 point lower to 1 point higher.

The opening was unchanged to 3 points lower in response to rather disappointing Liverpool cables and active months showed net losses of about 3 to 5 points during the early trading.

Trade buying was in evidence from the start, while commission house demand seemed to increase on the dip. Reports of a better tone in the cotton goods market were also a factor of increased demand, which carried March to 6.08 and July to 6.34 or 11 to 12 points net higher. At these figures, the support became less active, and the market met a little more selling from the South as well as considerable realizing and the advances were lost in the late trading.

Weather Is Unfavorable.

Weather conditions in the South were considered unfavorable for the movement and farm work, but it was thought that temperatures were low enough in some sections to kill boll weevil in hibernation. Southern advices that farm work had made slow progress, but that the delay in and preparation is not yet serious, and that soil moisture is generally sufficient for the time being except in the Texas Panhandle.

Liverpool cables reported a quiet, trading market, but one report said that better advices were reaching the cotton goods trade at Manchester from China.

Overnight reports indicated a larger business in some print-cloth constructions here yesterday, but later advices from Worth street said that buyers were reluctant to pay higher asking prices, with business less active today. Exports today, 10,105, making 5,242,277 so far this season. Port receipts, 16,179. U. S. port stocks, 4,722,294.

Iron and Steel Up During January

Ingot Production Advances 19.1 Per Cent From December.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—January percentage gains in pig iron and steel ingot production fulfilled the usual seasonal expectations, though actual tonnage improvement was small, "Iron Age" said today.

Pig iron output rose 4.1 per cent last month, totaling 568,785 gross tons, against 546,080 in December, a daily rate of 18,348 tons, against 17,615 in the preceding month. Steel ingot production, up 19.1 per cent from December, was better than in any month since last May, with the exceptions of October and November, the January average rate was 17.78 per cent of capacity, compared with 18.05 per cent in November and 15.02 in December.

This week's producing rate is estimated at slightly under 19 per cent, a small recession from last week "which is mainly accounted for," said the review, "by a falling off in orders from some automobile manufacturers and the continued suspension of a part of the Ford Motor Co.'s steel releases.

J. J. Bernet Made Head of 3 Roads

Former Blacksmith to Take Charge of Nickel Plate; Leads Two Others.

Cleveland, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—J. J. Bernet, who started out to be a blacksmith, undertook the simultaneous presidencies of three railroads today, on the eve of his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary.

He was named president today of the Nickel Plate Railroad, his old love which he rehabilitated seventeen years ago when it was referred to in railroading circles as a "streak of rust." He already was president of two other Van Sweringer lines—the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Pere Marquette.

As head of the Nickel Plate, Bernet succeeds W. L. Ross, the man who replaced him as president of the Nickel Plate six years ago. Ross retired because of ill health, but will remain with the road as a director and member of the executive committee. He will become president, retired.

WHEAT VALUES RISE ON CROP'S DAMAGES

Reports China Is Now Buying From Argentina Contribute to Price Upturn.

Chicago, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Broadened suggestions of crop damage to United States winter wheat, together with word that China was purchasing wheat from Argentina, helped grain values upward today.

Severe cold throughout the domestic wheat belt emphasized reports of big areas lacking a snow blanket, especially in the Southwest and West and the Ohio Valley. Oriental buying of South American wheat was regarded as showing an unprecedented situation likely to relieve Argentine pressure upon European markets, especially as advices at hand suggested India would later give evidence of wheat shortage.

Wheat closed firm at but little below the day's top, ½ to ¾ above yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ¾ up, oats, ⅛ to ¼ advanced, and provisions varying from 2 cents off to 5 cents gain.

Damage to Crop.

One leading crop expert said it could be definitely stated serious damage to wheat had been done by the sharp drop in temperatures that at some places Southwest amounted to 70 degrees during a few hours. He added that high winds seemed to drift light snows off the fields. Latest unofficial estimates from Kansas, the banner wheat producer, indicated the 1933 harvest in that State would be less than 75,000,000 bushels, compared with 106,000,000 for 1932 and 240,000,000 the year before.

Commission houses were generally on the purchase side of the wheat market and a leading speculator was also conspicuous in the buying. Public participation in the trade, however, was only moderate, and the maximum new advance amounted to but a cent a bushel. One reason given was that many bulls preferred to await growing weather when the extent of crop damage could be more accurately determined.

Corn and oats were responsive to wheat gains and to bullish corn crop estimates from Argentina. Danubian countries were reported as anxious sellers abroad.

Provisions averaged higher with hog values.

The total, $4,417,171,000, was 2.6 per cent larger than for the same 1932 week, most of the rise occurring in New York City where the gain was 9.1 per cent. "The heavier clearings," said the agency, "are attributable in part to the fact that two days of the larger settlement incident to opening of the new month are included in this year's statement. Furthermore, at this time last year this record became decidedly more adverse than previously and the downward movement at that time was quite marked." Clearings were $475,935,000 larger than a week ago.

ATTENDANCE TOTAL OF HOSPITAL JUMPS

Emergency Director Blames Depression for Lowering People's Vitality.

Pointing to the prolongation of the country's economic depression as a contributing cause, Emergency Hospital officials yesterday reported that the number of general medical cases, in addition to an added number of accident cases, was the largest in the history of the hospital.

"Except for two major catastrophes which have occurred in Washington," B. B. Sandage, superintendent of the hospital, declared. "Emergency, with a total of 231 patients last Saturday and 225 today, is housing the largest number of cases ever recorded here."

The seriousness of the situation, he pointed out, is indicated not so much by the number of patients coming in as by the length of their stay, showing a decided decrease in the vitality of the people, due to the depression. During January 2,413 patients were treated in the dispensary, as against 1,821 for the same month last year.

The emergency rooms, Mr. Sandage went on to say, treated 1,428 cases last month in comparison to the 1,-189 last year.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THE popularity of "Rasputin and the Empress," the spectacular Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production in which Ethel, Lionel and John Barrymore are appearing at Loew's Columbia Theater, yesterday afternoon occasioned an announcement of twofold importance.

First, the demand for tickets—only two performances a day are given, at 2:30 and 8:30, with all seats reserved—has been so great that the engagement of this handsomely executed story of the fall of the Romanoff dynasty has been extended three days over its intended two weeks and will not come to an end until next Sunday night. Thus six additional performances are provided for the accommodation of those who have not yet viewed this mammoth canvas of a period of epochal importance in modern history.

Second, the termination of the run of "Rasputin and the Empress" will mark the inauguration of a new house policy at the Columbia.

Beginning next Monday, February 13, the Columbia will adhere to the practice of opening all of its new bills on Monday, instead of Friday as has heretofore been the custom.

In the eyes of parents, this change will at least possess the virtue of enabling them to view first the pictures their children in all probability will scramble to see over the school week-ends. The first picture under the new policy will be "Trailing the Killer," a film play which combines with an engrossing story a considerable degree of merit as an authentic study in natural history.

This change in opening day at the Columbia marks one more step in the general direction of a completely staggered movie week.

With the Rialto clinging with some tenacity to Saturday as the inaugural day of its new bills, the Columbia now switched to Monday and the rest of the downtown houses sticking to Friday, it may not be too fanciful to expect, sooner or later, that the seven first-run picture theaters in the shopping sector eventually will adjust their openings so that each house will have its own day of the week without first-day competition from any other.

Seven houses, seven days—why not?

While, of course, the inspiring chorals that punctuate the action of the play are wholly missing, and one can only surmise the actual settings of the eighteen scenes comprismg the two acts, there is something profoundly impressive in a library reading of "The Green Pastures," the Marc Connelly Pulitzer prize play that comes to the National next Monday night for a two-week engagement with Richard B. Harrison, as "de Lawd," supported by the same cast, with one exception, that appeared in the New York run of the play.

Founded on Roark Bradford's book of sketches of "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun," "The Green Pastures" translates the first two books of the Old Testament into terms of a living religion widely believed in by the Negroes of the Old South. The result is a drama rich in unique effects that never fails, primitive though it is, to preserve a reverent regard for the sacredness of its subject matter.

Many theatergoers have seen "The Green Pastures" many times, with added rather than diminished enjoyment each successive time. Mr. Connelly's play is of such fiber that it can be read repeatedly with comparably satisfactory result.

Washington has in imminent prospect one of the theater's epochal productions. It should set a local record for attendance and popular acclaim.

Or, if you prefer grand opera, there will be "Carmen" to satiate your senses at the Auditorium Sunday night. That would be another of Maestro Alfredo Salmaggi's exhibitions of lyric pageantry, with Rosita Fordieri, Pasquale Amato and other celebrated stars in the title and other roles of prime importance. The hour is 8:30.

And this afternoon at 4:45 o'clock it would be well to remember Conductor Hans Kindler and his very excellent National Symphony Orchestra in concert at Constitution Hall, one of the regular season's events of an organization of which the Capital has every right to be proud.

Another old favorite soon to be seen at the National is "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," recently presented locally in photoplay form with Marian Nixon and Ralph Bellamy in the principal roles, which will be offered in an original version by the Children's Theater Company of New York on Saturday morning.

It was back in 1909 that Kate Douglas Wiggin dramatized her popular story of "Rebecca." In the present production, in its setting, costuming and direction detailed attention has been given to accurate recreation of the original scene—a New England farm in the '90's.

Dorothy Major will appear in the title role, supported by Gene Magnua, as Emma Jane Perkins; Viola Roache and Norma Nelson, who play the spinster aunts; Charles Aitken, as Adam Ladd, and Madeleine Foles.

As long as we are dangling about the National, you should know that on Sunday afternoon at 3:30, Newman will visit "China and Japan" on the fourth of his series of five Sunday afternoon "Around the World" travelalks. This particular tour picks up last week's itinerary in Formosa and proceeds thence to the principal cities of China, Korea and Japan.

The lecture, of course, will be profusely illustrated by new motion pictures and realistically colored still views.

Perhaps it were best to reproduce verbatim the ecstatic phraseology of the romantic publicist.

"A whirl of swift dancing . . . Broadway torch songs that burn the ears . . . Lazy crooning melodies . . . The caressing rhythms of a master dance orchestra . . . All these contribute to the high color of the Madrillon amusement picture."

Well, that will give you a rough idea.

Further pursuing the lilting poesy of a seductive word painter, one learns that a new face in the floor show at Senor Peter Borras' Madrillon Restaurant is the pretty one of Hilda Allison, fresh from a long engagement at the Montmartre, ace supper club in glamorous Havana, laved by languorous oceans and sprinkled with the dust of dreamy stars! Hot diggety!

Then, too, that Russian team of dancers with the seltzer bottle name, Szita and Annis, are held over by popular demand; Beth Renard's personality and voice have conspired to extend her stay, also, while Ted Holt, "indispensable and appealing" singing master of ceremonies, always rates repeated encores for his rendition of the new "Moon Song," being done by Kate Smith in "Hello, Everybody" at the Metropolitan. Herb Gordon and his orchestra provide the teasing tempos for the between-shows dancing.

Maestro Jimmie Lake, Ninth street's panjandrum of pulchritude, announces that come Sunday night the price scale at the Gayety Theater will be adjusted to include reserved balcony seats at 25 and 50 cents a copy, with plenty of good orchestra chairs available at 50 cents, plus the dear, old governmentax.

Post positions for the new week's race for customers in the cinemagogues will be approximately as follows, according to the morning line: Earle, Fay Wray, Glenda Farrell and Lionel Atwill in "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," and Olga Baclanova headlining the vaudeville in person; Loew's Fox, Warner Baxter and Miriam Jordan in "Dangerously Yours," and Ted Lewis and his band, headlining the vaudeville; RKO-Keith's, John Boles and Nancy Carroll in "Child of Manhattan;" Palace, Irene Dunne and Phillips Holmes in "The Secret of Madame Blanche;" Rialto, John Boles and Irene Dunne in "Back Street," return engagement, beginning Saturday; Columbia, "Trailing the Killer," beginning Monday; Metropolitan, Kate Smith in "Hello, Everybody," second week.

Of course, Mr. Groundhog, a shadow is a shadow, I understand all that, but there is such a thing as carrying a joke just a little too far!

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man found as a child in the African jungle by a lioness and raised with her own cubs, is brought to Canada by Martin Sefton and is recognized by James Horton, wealthy Canadian publisher, as the grandson and sole heir of Denison Starke, Horton's millionaire friend, now dead. Under the care and tutelage of Sefton, Kaspa is introduced into society and meets Denison Starke's sister, Mrs. Johnson Marley; her two step-children, Lucian and Sheila; her beautiful companion, Madeline Moore, and Sheila's fiance, Reeves. Madeline and Kaspa fall in love with each other. Sefton also loves Madeline. While willing to sacrifice his own love, Sefton believes that the marriage between this cultured society girl and a half-savage would be wrong. Kaspa, loath to take the girl away from the man to whom he owes so much, and fed up with civilization, anyway, makes preparations to go back to his native Africa. He intends to take two lions that he had purchased from a circus back with him.

CHAPTER XIX.

IN a hired automobile Kaspa sped back to Honeydale to get the two lions which he intended to have shipped to Africa from Toronto. With the exercise of a little caution, he hoped to gain access to his four-footed friends without coming in contact with any members of the house party.

In the meantime Madeline, who thought Kaspa was prowling about in the woods somewhere, awaited his return contentedly. She loved him and he loved her. That was all that mattered. She wondered if he had seen Sefton again after that encounter on the veranda. The Englishman looked tired and unhappy, as though he had been up all night.

Madeline was sorry for him, but what could she do? She knew he was in love with her, though she had never encouraged him. She hoped he would be like all the others and forget about her before long—go off and marry some other girl and laugh over his infatuation for the unresponsive Madeline. She must see Kaspa as soon as he returned and find out exactly how matters stood. That there would be considerable opposition to this love affair she knew, but she had no fears on this subject. Kaspa and she loved each other; the opinions of other people mattered little; she did not think the lion-man one who would be easily turned from his happiness.

She talked gayly with the others by the lake, waiting for her lover, having no qualms for a future that had suddenly become spangled with hope and rapture.

Kaspa was stealing through the grounds searching for his lion friends. In a little paved yard by the stables he found them. They both lay dead in their cage, and he saw immediately that they had been shot.

He stood there looking at his dead friends, butchered helpless in their prison, and slowly his eyes lost their human look and took on a yellow glare. He turned and walked toward the sound of dance music, and his gait had become curiously slinking and silent.

Half-way to the lake he encountered Sefton, who was bound for the house to order more drinks.

Sefton was pleased to see him. "I am so pleased you have returned, Kaspa!" he cried. He took his friend by the arm. "Now look here, old man, you must forget what I said last night I was not myself. I want to talk the whole matter over with you. I think I can convince you to take a sensible view of things." He paused, watching the lion-man's face, for it was obvious that Kaspa had not understood a word he had said. He remembered the lions, and his face became worried as he thought of the explanations he must make.

Kaspa spoke, and his words were scarcely intelligible. "Who shot my lions?"

Sefton turned pale. He held on to Kaspa with all his strength. "Keep calm about it, old chap; you must try and be reasonable," he said quickly.

Kaspa looked a question. It was the question he had asked before, and Sefton knew that he must answer immediately.

"My God! I was afraid of this!" he groaned. "Listen, Kaspa: will you promise not to do anything on the spur of the moment? I can explain everything, old fellow, but you must give me time." His urgent sentences died into silence; he took a deep breath and plunged into the tale.

It was sufficiently absurd. The lions had been delivered that afternoon, and Sefton had taken charge of them. He had found it necessary to go into the town for supplies, and during his absence Sheila had expressed a wish to see the lions. Reeves had protested that they were dangerous, but had finally consented to escort her, having first provided himself with Sefton's shotgun loaded with buckshot, "in case of accidents." When the sightseers arrived before the cage the lions had become very savage, throwing themselves against the door, which Reeves did not consider strong enough to resist their onslaughts. He might have retreated, but was convinced that the lions would escape and ravage the countryside. He had therefore thought it his duty to shoot them. When Sefton returned, Reeves had expressed his sorrow at the occurrence and had tendered a check for the value of the lions.

When Sefton had finished Kaspa looked long at him without a word, then he turned and continued his progress toward the lake, taking Sefton with him like a child.

The four of them were seated in cane chairs near the edge of the water. They had been playing tennis, and were still in their white garments. At the sight of Kaspa, Reeves sprang to his feet and stood facing him, his hands in his pockets. Madeline uttered a little cry of welcome, but the others were silent. They were oppressed by a premonition of impending tragedy; there was something deadly in Kaspa's expression and the inexorable way in which he dragged Sefton with him, but only Reeves thought of the lions at that moment. He had expected some such denouement as this ever since he had yielded to the impulse to shoot Kaspa's pets in his absence. He did not regret his action. He disliked the lion-man intensely and had no intention of allowing his fiancee to run the risk of being killed by the wild beasts that this savage had purchased with the purpose, he declared, of liberating them in the grounds of Honeydale. He had acted in his customary high-handed manner, but, having paid for the damage he had done, was not disposed to grovel for forgiveness. He did not look upon Kaspa as an adult, but rather as a child under guidance of his elders, and had no particular fear of his resentment.

The memory of the lion-man's exploits in the circus arena was disturbing, but this half-civilized animal could not deal with men as he had with his fellow beasts. Nevertheless, he was carrying a revolver in the pocket of his blazer, and he had every intention of using it if he were obliged to. No one could blame him for protecting his life.

He confronted Kaspa, a slight smile on his square face. Kaspa controlled himself by a great effort. He spoke slowly and clearly, and his voice, though thick, was distinct.

"You have shot my lions. Why?" he demanded. His lips writhed in a soundless snarl, and Reeves paled slightly under his tan. "They were my friends," the lion-man continued. "You have killed them; I will kill you."

Madeline gasped, a sound of terror and distress, but Kaspa did not look at her. All his attention was riveted on the man who faced him with his right hand hidden from sight. He stood glaring at the stockbroker with his terrible yellow eyes, and slowly his knees bent until he was crouched with his fingers touching the ground. Then the last vestige of civilization departed from Kaspa and left him pure lion. He growled and swung his head, a gesture indescribably menacing. Reeves, white and sweating at the thought of what might happen if this beast got its hands upon him, stepped back and drew his revolver.

The girls screamed, and Lucian Marley half rose, irresolute, feeling that he must throw himself upon the madman and restrain him, but fearing his own death in the act. Sefton rushed at Kaspa again and clung to him. "For God's sake, Kaspa!" he screamed. "It's murder; they will hang you for it!" Kaspa threw him off, and, with lightning speed, rushed and sprang. The revolver cracked; the bullet struck him in the shoulder, but it takes more than a revolver bullet to stop a charging lion. Reeves, with a boxer's skill, ducked and guarded, but no guard was proof against those terrific sweeping blows. Kaspa had forgotten all that Sefton had taught him; his tactics were those of the lion. Reeves got his head away from a sweeping stroke, but a second one, delivered with bewildering speed, caught him in the ribs. He went reeling, and collapsed like a stuffed sack.

Kaspa was on him in an instant. He raised the inanimate body above his head and, bending his knee, prepared to bring Reeves down upon that member with all his colossal strength. He was roaring now, short coughing roars that echoed about the wooded shores of the lake in terrifying fashion.

To the sickened onlookers there seemed no hope of saving Reeves, but Madeline's beauty could do what man's strength could not. She flung herself upon Kaspa, wound her arms about his neck, and pulling herself upward off the ground, fastened her lips on his. The lion-man tried to shake her loose, but, burdened as he was, he could not get rid of her. In a moment the wild glare began to die out of his eyes; he shook his head slightly like a man awakening from a heavy sleep. Then a frown gathered upon his forehead. He jerked his head backward from that clinging embrace, and spoke in a rumbling, husky voice: "All right, all right, I won't kill him." Madeline saw the human sanity in his face. She unclasped her arms and sank fainting at his feet, and Kaspa, with an easy effort, threw the struggling form of Harland Reeves out into the lake. Sefton and Lucian hastened to rescue him. As afterward transpired, he had several ribs broken, and was unable to swim on account of these injuries. Kaspa bent and picked up the fainting girl in his arms. He looked deep into her eyes for a moment, then he carried her to a chair and set her in it.

He turned and ran quickly up the bank into the trees. In a moment he had vanished from sight, and he did not hear the faint voice that called "Kaspa!" behind him.

Sefton did not waste time upon Reeves; he abandoned him to the ministrations of his friends and sprinted for the house. He hoped to intercept Kaspa, and he was in time to catch him as he climbed into his car. "Where are you going?" he gasped. "Don't clear off like that! I have heaps to say to you, and you are hurt—there is blood on your sleeve."

Kaspa smiled and shook his head as he started the engine.

"But, Kaspa," cried his friend, "don't leave me like this, old man. Haven't we been pals? What have I done that you should go off without a word? I know you are going back to Africa; I can feel it—and I want to come with you." Kaspa shook his head again. He extended his hand, and Sefton came around the car to grasp it.

"Stay here and marry Madeline; settle down at Honeydale, and be happy. I have made provision for you."

He gave Sefton a long look from his wonderful eyes, now filled with a softer light, shook free his hand, and let the car leap forward. Martin Sefton stood looking after the retreating car with tears in his eyes. He wondered if that were to be the last time he would shake hands with Kaspa Starke, the lion-man.

THURSDAY FEBRUARY 9, 1933 SPORTS

G. U. BOWS TO ST. MARY'S; C. U. BEATS WAKE FOREST

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

BOX SEAT prices have been lowered and bleacher seats in numbers made available, but the one-dollar standard for the grand stand is still jealously guarded by the big league club owners, which seems fair enough to this department.

Baseball has always been known as the dollar game, through good times and bad, and, contrary to the general belief, the operating expenses of the big league magnates are greater now than during the prosperous reconstruction days of 1919-1922. The money continued to roll into the big league treasuries as late as 1929 and 1930, but it was not until about 1925 that the players' salaries caught up with the prosperous trend of the game.

The last two seasons, which have seen baseball take it on the chin financially, have not seen the scale of players' salaries recede at the same pace, and, with five clubs out of eight in each league finishing in the red, a majority of the club owners are supporting higher pay rolls in these days of stress than during the first years of the golden era of the game.

Turnstiles Will Give Answer.

Whatever the club owners are risking in refusing to lower the standard price of one dollar, it is their own risk. If the public is unable to pay the price and does not choose to sit in the bleachers in satisfactory numbers, the magnates will soon be apprised of that fact by the infallible count of the turnstiles and will be able to recognize any mistakes in the scale of prices.

Baseball has become a greater financial gamble than ever in the past few years. More elaborate plants call for more overhead expenses and greater taxes, and in the frenzy to get a winner or at least a leading contender the outlay in cash must be terrific. The poorer clubs are doomed to finish in the red unless by some miracle they develop the talent that is on a par with the material that can be bought by the richer clubs with the fatter check books.

No Increases During Prosperous Days.

The club owners, Clark Griffith particularly, take great pride in the fact that the grandstand admission remained at one dollar during the prosperous postwar days, when the high cost of living made the cost of baseball look extremely petty, but that fact must be recognized by even the most rabid objectors to the cost of baseball.

Baseball was one of the last of the industries of the Nation to retrench, and at the present writing is far behind the schedule of other industries, having instituted its salary reductions and cuts in overhead expenses fully two years after the Nation generally had wielded the ax on salaries and overhead expenses.

It was the complaint of baseball leaders as early as two years ago that the game was far late in adjusting itself to the depressionistic times. For that reason, minor leagues crumpled and passed out in great numbers and the majors continued to absorb terrific losses. None are more anxious than the magnates to protect their investment and if it seemed to them that the abandonment of the dollar standard would be a safety measure, then I think that the club owners, in their present mood, would put such a reduction into effect quickly. But apparently they don't think it would solve the problem. And it's their business.

Vance Traded By Brooklyn To Cards

Infielder Slade Also in Deal for Carroll and Flowers.

No Cash Is Involved; Vance Won 12, Lost 11 in 1932.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Dodgers announced tonight that they had traded Dazzy Vance, their famous speedball pitcher, and Infielder Gordon Slade to the St. Louis Cardinals for Pitcher Owen Carroll and Infielder D'Arcy "Jake" Flowers. It was a straight player trade, the announcement said, and no cash was involved.

The announcement came as something of a surprise, although it had been known that Vance was "on the market" for some time. No word of a trade between the Cards and Brooklyn had leaked out.

Flowers formerly played in the Brooklyn infield, but was sold to St. Louis during the 1931 season.

Vance In-and-Outer Last Year.

For many years one of the greatest right handers in the National League, Vance has been a source of worry to the Dodgers during the last couple of seasons. At times he would show all the "stuff" that carried him to one strikeout record after another and won him the league's most valuable player prize in 1924. But he frequently followed with a poor performance or required a long rest before taking the mound again. In 1932 he appeared in 27 games for the Dodgers, winning 12 and losing 11, but he was credited with only nine complete games.

After a couple of earlier trials with the New York Yankees, Vance came into the National League with Brooklyn in 1922 and jumped right into a stellar role. In 1928 he became the highest-paid pitcher in the league when he signed a $20,000 contract. His check was boosted to $23,000 in 1931, but dropped to $15,000 last year and he was asked to take a further cut this year. He had not signed a Dodger contract although he was not listed as a holdout.

Carroll Former Holy Cross Mound Ace.

Carroll, also a right-hander and a former Holy Cross College star, never was considered in the same class with "the dazzler." He played with Detroit and last year with Cincinnati, where he won the doubtful distinction of losing more games than any other National League hurler. He went to St. Louis in the deal which sent Jim Bottomley to the Reds.

Both Flowers and Slade were rated as substitute infielders last year. Slade played in 23 games at third base for the Dodgers and had a .241 batting average. Flowers, usually at third, tried all the infield positions except first, and hit .255.

Four Extra Periods Needed as G.P.O. Wins

It took the G. P. O. tossers four extra periods to ring up a 29-27 decision over Bolling Field in the Government League last night. It was 22-all at the end of regulation time, with no scoring in the first overtime session. The two were tied at 24-all at the end of the second and at 26-all at the end of the third.

Williams, with 13 points, led the winners, with Marcey and Samuels each registering 8 points for the Aviators.

Joey Sewell Among Four Yankees to Sign

New York, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Four more signed contracts were received today by the New York Yankees, and one by the Giants.

Yankee signers included Joey Sewell, the chunky little infielder with the camera eye, who gains the distinction of being the first regular, aside from pitchers to enter the fold.

The other signing McCarthymen were Myril Hoag, extra outfielder; and two rookies, Outfielder Fred Walker and Catcher Joe Glenn.

MARYLAND U. FIVE WINS BY 35-27

UNIVERSITY of Maryland basketeers scored over their old State rivals, Washington College, of Chestertown, 35 to 27, last night in Ritchie Coliseum before a crowd of 1,200. It was the Old Liners' first victory of the season over a Maryland opponent, having previously bowed to Johns Hopkins and Navy. The win squared the Maryland-Washington annual series at four all.

The Eastern Shoremen gave the Old Liners keen opposition in the first half, at the end of which Maryland was leading 18 to 14. However, after the intermission the home team put on steam and compiled a comfortable margin, which it contrived to hold to the final gong.

Rufus Vincent, big center, and Spencer Chase and Bob Snyder, forwards, led the Old Liners to victory with 12, 10 and 9 points respectively. Al Giraitis, rangy Washington forward, was best for the visitors with 10 markers.

Chase opened the scoring by caging a pair of fouls, but Giraitis countered with a double-decker. On a follow shot, Chase scored a two-pointer only to have Proudfoot even the count at 4-all with a pair of fouls. Maryland then took the lead, which was never relinquished, when Buscher, Vincent and Snyder rang up floor goals to give the Old Liners a 10-to-4 advantage. The visitors worked the count to 12 to 10 and again pressed Maryland at 16 to 14, with Snyder scoring a moment before the half ended to give the Old Liners their 4-point lead.

Maryland ran its lead to 24 to 14 in the early minutes of the second half on court goals by Chase, Vincent and Snyder. Although battling hard, the Eastern Shoremen could never get back in the running.

Sheary Leads Cardinals in 38-27 Win

Wake Forest Is Held to One Field Goal in First Half.

C. U. Draws Away in Last Period When Foes Threaten.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY set a fast pace in the first half and then repulsed a challenge by Wake Forest in the final ten minutes last night at Brookland gymnasium to turn back the Deacons, 38 to 27.

Bus Sheary, swift-moving C. U. forward, was the sparkplug in the home team's triumphant march, ringing up 7 field goals and 1 foul goal for 15 points, while he was ably aided by Abe Rosenfield, guard, with 10 markers.

The Cardinals' defense was practically impregnable in the first twenty minutes, C. U. led, 12 to 1, after ten minutes, and Mulhern, rangy Deacon forward, scored his team's first field goal of the game with four minutes to go for the half, the score then being 14 to 3.

Going into the final half, Catholic University held a 19-to-5 lead.

White Leaves Game On Personal Fouls.

Ed White's departure from the game on personal fouls just a few minutes before the first half ended took away much of the power from the Cardinals, although McVean, who replaced him, caged two field goals in rapid succession shortly after the second session got under way.

Five minutes after the second half was under way Wake Forest scored its second field goal of the game, a long shot by Mulhern, and the score stood 25-7. Three minutes later the Carolinians were trailing, 13-29. Wake Forest continued its scoring splurge and was behind, 21-34, with four minutes left, thanks to Malloy's midfloor shot. A minute later Barnes, Swing and Mulhern sneaked under the basket to give the Deacons their last three field goals and Darowish and Rosenfield added to the Cardinals' points with field goals in rapid succession.

Stupple Leads Field In Florida Tournament

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Bob Stupple, unassuming young professional from the Skokie Country Club at Glencoe, Ill., played the dark-horse role in the third annual St. Petersburg open championship here today, putting together cards of 73 and 71 for a total of 144 to take first money.

Ad-ept

Ex-Army Fight Champ, Bunion Derbyist, Steel Worker Out of Job.

SITUATIONS WANTED — MALE — THE WELTERWEIGHT champion U. S. Army wants a job. Will and can do anything, no matter how hard or unpleasant. If you want a man you want me. Address Box 181, Washington Post.

THE answer to the question of what became of C. C. Pyle's once famous "Bunion Derbyists" was answered in part yesterday when a sturdily built young man called at the offices of The Washington Post to insert an advertisement for a job. Announcing himself as former welterweight boxing champion of the United States Army, he also revealed that he was the "Paddy" De Mar who was struck by an automobile at Hatton, Ill., after finishing 2,200 miles of the famous cross-country marathon in fifth place. The accident prevented him from finishing the race and sharing in the prize money, however.

De Mar's honorable discharge from the U. S. Army shows that he was born in Los Angeles, Calif., 26 years ago of French and Italian parentage. Although he enlisted at Buffalo, N. Y., a portion of his enlistment was spent in the Hawaiian Islands, where he claims to have been awarded the lightweight championship of the Army, under his ring name of "Young Firpo," when the titleholder refused to fight him.

In 1925 he also says he fought Andy Biddle, who was known as the West Coast champion. In this fracas De Mar says that he knocked Biddle down nine times within three rounds before he was given the decision. The title which he now claims was won from Corporal Bill Hayes, whom he says he knocked out in one round at Pine Camp, N. Y., during divisional maneuvers in August, 1931.

De Mar has worked on steel construction, as a blacksmith, a chauffeur and boxing instructor. He is an orphan and has no known living relatives, but, as he expressed it, hopes to keep on living himself and sees no possibility of doing so without a job

1922 Saw Peck and Bluege, Famed Infield Figures of Pennant Days, Make Debut Here

Contest Facts In Brief

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, will select in The Washington Post of March 19 his all-time, all-star team from among the clubs that represented Washington during the years from 1912 to 1932 inclusive.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner of the contest.

One man is to be selected for each of the infield and outfield positions with four pitchers and two catchers.

To the winner The Washington Post will award eight box seats to the 1933 opening game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Second place will net four box seats, with third place earning two box seats.

Entrants may use the accompanying coupon for their selections, although the use of the coupon is not necessary for entrance in the contest.

The contest will close March 15.

Corbett Calmly Awaits End With Wife His Nurse

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Attended by his wife of 37 years and two old friends of the fine days when he was heavyweight champion of the world, James J. Corbett tonight calmly awaited the inevitable moment when his weak heart will stop beating.

He is in no pain as he lies on his bed in his roomy Long Island home, looking from his window across Little Neck Bay toward the sound, unless it be the pain of regret at leaving a life that he had found more exciting than most men. For his 66 years have been crowded with many stirring and glamorous incidents of the ring and the stage, on both of which he played a star's role.

Only Mrs. Corbett, his two friends, John and Denny Kelleher, of Boston, are with him and other friends are discouraged from calling because undue excitement might hasten the end.

Palmer Lone District Boxer to Win in N. Y.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Feb. 8.—Nay Palmer, representing the Costello Post, American Legion, was the only entry out of four from the Nation's Capital who survived the intercity boxing tournament at Madison Square Garden tonight, winning a decision over Jim Maresco, of Jersey City, in the 118-pound class. Stanford Carrier, lightweight, lost to James Higgins, of Long Island City, N. Y.; Dan Pyne, of Catholic University, lost on a technical knockout in the second round to Robert Pastor, of New York, in the 175-pound class, while Tom Chester, of New York, 1932 Golden Glove champion, scored a technical knockout over Jack Baxter, of Washington, in the third round.

(Herewith is the twelfth of a series of articles in conjunction with The Post's baseball contest.)

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE story of 1922 must be a story of individuals, for nothing much can be said about the Washington team as a whole. It finished in sixth place. George McBride, tired of baseball, had renounced his managerial duties and President Griffith immediately handed them to another veteran of the pre-1912 era, Clyde Milan, certainly one of the great Washington players of all time.

Washington, off to a good enough start, sank farther and farther into the mire as the season progressed. John Dugan, sports editor of The Post, editorially blamed it on the woeful lack of reserve strength in the pitching box. He pointed out, according to the dusty files, that Johnson was pitching just about as well as he had been doing for four years or so, that Mogridge was taking care of his end and that a lot of good work was being dispensed by Zachary, but as for Erickson, Francis, Brillheart, and Yoingblood, there's wasn't an ounce of genius in the bunch.

Johnson Excused From Relief Work.

The year marked the end of Walter Johnson's age-old duty of pinch-pitching. Johnson for years had been rushed to the rescue of sagging Washington pitchers, but was no longer able to stand such treatment. He took his regular turn, won 15 and lost 16, but for the dozenth time led the American League in strikeouts, by fanning 105 foes. Zachary won 15 and lost 10, and Mogridge won 18 and lost 13, certain no small achievement. The relief pitcher par excellence of somewhat later days, Fred Marberry, was laboring with Jackson, of the Cotton State League, where he won none and lost four for that year.

If Washington finished in sixth place, it wasn't the fault of a veteran and a rookie who had come to the team, the veteran from New York—Roger Peckinpaugh—and the rookie from Peoria, of the Three Eye League—Ossie Bluegé. Peck, for eight years the shortstop of the Yankees, had been traded by them to Boston for Scott, Bush and Jones, and came to Washington from Beantown.

Bluege Impressive as Sub at Third.

Peck, of course, filled right in at shortstop, batted .254 and knotted the link of a great double-play triumvirate, "Peck to Harris to Judge." With Bluege, it was different. On third base for Washington loomed Hank Shanks, one of the Nats' immortals and still going strong in 1922. The raw rookie from Peoria had few friends. He was denounced for "lacking spirit" simply because it never occurred to him to shout "Atta beby" to the pitcher several thousand

Hilltop Team Defeated in Overtime

Bows, 40-39, After Crowley Ties Score by Foul Shot.

G. U. Rally in Extra Period Falls Short; Lynch Stars.

IN a game so hotly contested that it warmed up the northeast section of Washington by ten degrees Farenheit, Mount St. Mary's defeated Georgetown's hapless basket ball team last night by one point, 40 to 39, in an extra period game that knocked a small crowd lopsided with thrills.

Capt. John Crowley momentarily saved the night for Georgetown with 20 seconds left of the regulation game when he coolly sank a foul shot to tie the score at 36-36 and give the embattled Hoyas another chance.

But hardly had the game moved into its extra period when Tom Lynch, veteran Marylander, threw in a shot almost from the middle of the court and Cardell, Mount forward, followed up with one under the basket to give his side a 40-36 lead.

G. U. Within Ace of Tying Score.

Momentarily stunned, Georgetown, led by Tom Carolan, came back fighting in the waning seconds of the game to do everything but tie the score. Carolan started the miniature rally by sinking a foul shot and then jammed in a crushing snowbird with the end of the game in sight. But his work fell short of its intended goal.

Rarely has so close a game been seen at Tech. Never more than 5 points separated the teams. The score at the half stood 19-18 in Georgetown's favor. Bulwarks of the scoring end of the fray were Joe Lynch, a District boy playing with Mount St. Mary's, and Ed Hargaden, ace of the Hilltop forces.

In the preliminary the Hoya freshmen, using three full teams, beat Devitt Prep, 33-20.

GILBERT RIDES CATHOP TO VICTORY AT HIALEAH AT 6-1 ODDS

Dyak's Rush Falls Short By Length

Cathop Runs Mile in 1:36 4-5; Overtaking Mountain Elk.

HIALEAH PARK, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Johnny Gilbert, the solemn Syrian from Kansas who led all American riders last year, was loudly cheered as he drove Cathop, a $14.60-for-$2 shot, to victory in the featured Wildwood Purse of 1 mile here this afternoon. It was the boy's second winner of the day and his thirteenth of the meeting and left him only three winners behind "Duke" Bellizzi, the current leader.

Cathop ran the 8 furlongs in near track-record time of 1:36 4-5, two-fifths of a second slower than the mark created by Repentance. The Supremus colt, in the silks of the R. M. Eastman estate, had a length to spare over the Everglades Stable's Dyak at the wire. G. W. Ogle's Mountain Elk was third, another four lengths behind.

Mountain Elk Leads To Stretch.

Gilbert used good judgment in guiding the winner. He allowed Mountain Elk to show the way to the head of the stretch, then shot Cathop around the pacemaker turning for home and drew clear. Dyak, slow to leave the mile chute, closed courageously on the outside, but Cathop had enough left to hold him safe in a drive.

Red Polly was much the best of the maiden sprinters in the curtain-raiser, coming from far back to score by a length and a half and paying her backers $35.40 for $2. Black Sheep, the favorite, beat Canon Law by a neck for the place. The winner, ridden by Mills, broke into the air at the start, but gradually reached contention and, taking command in the stretch, held Black Sheep safe. Canon Law ran a good race from where he started.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, FEBRUARY 8.

Mike had the laugh on me tonight. He picked Arrow at the Fair Grounds and that one stepped down at a $17 mutuel, while I had to dig into technicalities to prove that I wasn't shut out, something that hasn't been done since the meeting opened. Wise Daughter and Macadam ran one, two in the second race. I had them reversed, but they were both in the field. So I take credit for a winner while Mike gives me the ha ha up his sleeve . . . and I mean his well-worn sleeve. However, the Bennings horses were crowding in the money all afternoon. Mike has a dream hunch on Dry Ridge here and likes Durva, Flirting, Drombo and Duelist at the Fair Grounds. I refused to let him like anything at Havana. BILL.

FIRST RACE—MY PURCHASE, with a shift in the weights, seems ideally placed in the opening sprint. Gets the edge over CAPACITY, which failed to run a true race the last time. PENNATE gets the show call among these.

SECOND RACE—FULL TILT threw in a speedy effort and off that I can't look further for the winner. JUSTA SUNBEAM is well liked. DOMINO PLAYER has been consistent and should work his way into the money circle.

THIRD RACE—I'm forced to run down EVERFAIR. Has an 8-pound break in the weights from STEALINGAWAY, which tonight looms as a heavy favorite. BUN D to show. DANDELION has been working well and is a possible long-shot winner.

FOURTH RACE—SKY HAVEN has beaten this kind twice in a row and I see no reason why the Widener representative can't make it three straight. BOBBING figures to give the top one trouble if any materializes. EBONY LADY for the show.

FIFTH RACE—PREWAR was a hot thing the last time out. I understand that Mr. Gilbert will ride tomorrow with instructions to bring home the onions, even if it costs the 3-year-old a lot of punishment. BOLILEE and PERNICKERTY to battle it out for the rest.

SIXTH RACE — TRAFFIC JUDGE gets another chance. This apparently outclassed colt is in rare form and his recent win over this route stamps him as a possibility. TOTEM to place. MIKE HALL is evidently only a shell of a once great horse or somebody is fooling.

SEVENTH RACE — NOSE IN is mighty formidable here. Will have to be beaten before this purse goes to another. CRAP SHOOTER and GOLDEN FATE for the other money positions.

MARYLAND U. FROSH BOW TO TECH

School Boys Winners in 27-26 Thriller; Foul Shots Aid.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S freshman team, which lists the services of several boys who carved their names deep in public high school basket ball ranks in Washington, took its third consecutive beating from one of the local scholastic outfits yesterday when Tech triumphed over it by a score of 27-26.

Thrilling basket ball, with the score advantage changing incessantly, was the motif of the game. Maryland led, 4-3, at the quarter, 14-11 at the half, and several times during the remainder of the game. The score at the end of the third period was 19-19.

PECK, BLUEGE JOINED NATS FOR 1922 RACE

times per game. Quiet, modest, Bluege worked his head off in practice sessions, improving his fielding bit by bit and then spent the afternoons watching Shanks or LaMott play third base.

Washington went West in July, took a terrific nose dive at St. Louis and began a nonstop flight from third place to next to last. Shanks and LaMott were hurt and Bluege filled in. John Dugan had this to say about him: "Seldom has a recruit infielder caused such a sensation as Oswald Bluege, who has been putting up a bang-up game at the torrid corner since the riffs have been on the road. Injuries to Shanks and LaMott gave him his chance. Vets like Shanks, Peck and Gharrity predict great things of the bright-eyed rookie. His only drawback is his lack of pep. He goes about his work mechanically and is seldom heard shouting encouragement to the pitcher. Pilot Milan, however, claims that he is not strong enough physically to waste his strength yelling all afternoon and is satisfied to leave things as they are with Bluege."

The team batting was pretty terrible. Rice and Judge both batted .295 to lead the team jointly. If there was a slugger on the team, it was Zachary, who as late as August 1 was batting in the .440's for some totally unknown reason. The end of the year saw Val Picinich and Hanks Shanks traded to Boston for Muddy Ruel and Allan Russell, but they did not start in playing for the Nats until 1923, when the tempo of the Senators quickened and came that drive that eventually led to two pennants.

Perhaps it can be said that the championship seeds were sown in 1922, with the coming of Peck and Bluege and the foreshadowing of Ruel and Marberry. Nineteen twenty-two's batting order, generally, ran Bluege, third base; Harris, second base; Rice, center field; Judge, first base; Eddie Goebel, or Brower, right field; Carr Smith, left field, and the battery. Dempsey was finding ways and means of not meeting anybody named Wills except Helen Wills . . . Dennis King, later a Ziegfeld star, was bellowing down at the Garrick, where Hecht's is now . . . Dick Bartelmess had risen to prominence with "Tolable David" but Wally Reid was the ranking No. 1 screen hero . . . Big Ed Walsh became an umpire . . . Babe Ruth was the leading umpire heckler in the league . . . and the citizenry nightly wiggled "cat's whiskers" over little lumps of graphite and faintly heard NOF, NAA, WEAS (Hecht's) and the long since forgotten call letters of the W. J. Boyer Co. and Doubleday Hill.

JONES MEETS McMILLAN TONIGHT

Bortnick Is Likely to Referee; 1 Change in Mat Card.

TWO announcements came from the camp of the rassling trust yesterday on the eve of the renewal of mat operations at the Washington Auditorium tonight. One was that Frank Judson has developed an infected arm as a result of a chipped bone said to have been received in his bout with Jim Londos here, and another that Benny Bortnick, despite the howls of Jim McMillan, would hold forth in his righteous role of referee.

Judson, due to meet Jacques Henriques, will be supplanted by a somewhat abler matman, Dr. Karl Sarpoulas, one of the scientific boys recently elevated to attention.

Bortnick's removal as referee had been asked the day before yesterday by Jim McMillan, principal in the leading bout of the night, with Paul Jones.

Press Agent Joe Holman, the rassling translater, said yesterday that Bortnick had told him that he intended to be as fair with McMillan as with any other mugg, but if the former Illinois grid star starts any funny stuff or attempts to bring disfame on the noble old game of ancient Greece, he'll disqualify him just as completely as he did in the McMillan-Garibaldi bout at the ball yard last summer.

Jones ought to give McMillan a good battle. Big, powerful and with about the best scissors hold in the game, Jones rates pretty well near the top of the better matmen.

Speaking of leg holds, old Joe Stecher, once champion, meets up with young Ernie Dusek in one of the chief preliminaries. In another Rudy Dusek has to do with a newcomer, Frank Brutsh, while Dr. Ralph Wilson plies his heroic trade with the villainous Lou Plummer.

GOLF CHIEFS MEET HERE MONDAY

D. C. Heads to Pass on Club Bids for Tourney Dates.

TENTATIVE dates will be set and courses assigned for District championship and invitation tournaments this season at an important meeting of the executive committee of the District of Columbia Golf Association next Monday night, February 13, at the home of President Clyde B. Asher, 2501 Upton street northwest, it was announced yesterday by Dr. William C. Barr, secretary.

While none of the District clubs which are members of the association has put in a bid for tournament dates, indications are that a number of them will ask permission to be host at next week's meeting. Secretary Barr has requested the clubs that plan to stage invitation events this spring to give the association notice in advance so that some action may be taken at the executive session. The dates and courses for the tournaments will not be passed on officially, it was announced, until the association's annual meeting in March.

Members of the executive committee of the District Association who will attend next Monday night's meeting are Clyde B. Asher, of Columbia, president; Robert Stead, jr., of Chevy Chase, first vice president; O. L. Verhoff, of Washington, second vice president; Dr. W. C. Barr, of Washington, secretary; Dr. Bruce L. Taylor, of Congressional; Albert E. Steinem, of Woodmont, and David L. Thomson, of Manor.

The third hole-in-one made on a District golf course in 1933 was credited to Richard S. Merryman yesterday on the second of the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Merryman used his mashie in scoring the only ace of his life. The hole measures 150 yards. His ball jumped on the green a few feet from the cup and slowly dribbled in. The ace was scored in a foursome of which M. C. List, Dr. R. M. Sutton and F. G. Noland were the other members.

Other scorers of 1933 holes-in-one are G. B. McGinty, of Columbia, and Frank Hessler, of Beaver Dam.

TWO COLLEGE GAMES HERE TONIGHT

Maryland - Virginia Clash; G. W. Host to Wake Forest.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY'S lanky Colonials will see what they can do with this Wake Forest situation tonight at the sumptuous Colonial gymnasium at 8 o'clock, while Maryland's basket ball team ties up with Virginia at Ritchie Coliseum.

Tomorrow night the college boys mark time, but Saturday night sees Maryland play Washington and Lee in basket ball and battle V. M. I. in boxing. George Washington plays Long Island U., Catholic University concludes its season's schedule by meeting Loyola, in Baltimore, and Gallaudet gives up its noble experiment at Tech High and goes back to Gallaudet's bandbox to meet Western Maryland.

Against G. W. tonight, Wake Forest will line up exactly as last night against C. U.

Gonzaga Downs Western, 27 to 14

Western High ran into a tartar in Gonzaga High yesterday on the latter's court, and went down to defeat, 27 to 14.

So impregnable was the Gonzaga defense that Western was unable to score in the first quarter as Orrel Mitchell's tossers ran up a 12-to-0 lead. The score was 14 to 0 before Western finally crashed through with its first two points.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

SHORTLY after the new administration takes hold a drastic reallocation of North American broadcasting stations may be looked for, O. H. Caldwell, of New York, former Federal radio commissioner, predicts.

"Pressure from Canada and Mexico for more wave lengths (however unjustified by proportional population figures) will undoubtedly be met by conceding more channels to our northern and southern neighbors. In this rearrangement, the doom of the United States clear channels, which bring good radio broadcasting to millions in small towns and rural communities, now seems sealed," Mr. Caldwell ventures.

"When this massacre of the clear channels begins, and the airways on which important broadcasters operate become howling bedlams, outside of the immediate neighborhood of the transmitters, the radio industry will have only itself to blame for past apathy. Little or no interest has been displayed by radio engineers or industrial organizations. Radio reception in the vast stretches of America has been taken for granted, like the sunshine. Meanwhile selfish interests and political trading are ever forcing unimportant stations into more advantageous positions locally, to the destruction of Nation-wide good service. At Washington the pressure of those who would ruin outlying reception is continuous; yet never a word comes in rebuttal from radio men who know the inevitable result.

"Soon, those who avow to discredit the radio engineer and his "fool theories" will ride high in the political chariots of officialdom. Ignorant, political tampering with the present fairly smooth-running radio machine will deprive millions of rural communities of good radio."

RICHARD WAGNER'S great legend, "Der Ring des Niebelungen," moves toward its conclusion in "Siegfried," to be broadcast in part from the Metropolitan Opera House over WRC, beginning at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon. "Das Rheingold" and "Die Walkure," the first two operas, were heard in previous broadcasts, and "Gotterdammerung," the concluding drama, will follow on Friday, February 17.

"Siegfried" will be sung in German. Arthur Bodanzky will conduct and the cast today will be as follows: Siegfried, Lauritz Melchior; Mime, Marek Windheim; the wanderer (Wotan), Ludwig Hoffman; Alberich, Gustav Schutzendorf; Fafner, Siegfried Tappolet; Erda, the tarth goddess, Maria Olszewska; Bruennhilde, Frida Leider, and voice of the forest bird, Editha Fleischer.

SIDNEY SEIDENMAN, director of music in the National Radio Forum, composed a new march and dedicated it to Oliver Owen Kuhn, director of the forum. Then he found it was not so simple to introduce his new composition on the air as he had expected. Guest speakers frequently run short, he was told, and on the first occasion of this sort he could complete the program with his new march.

Seidenman rehearsed the band and was all prepared three weeks ago, when Senator Black, of Alabama, spoke. But the Southern Senator talked up to the last second and the premiere was postponed. The next week Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills also used the full time and the composer despaired of ever presenting the march.

But on the third program Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, who usually talks at great length, surprised all by running short, and so Seidenman introduced the long-delayed march.

A series of five programs on various aspects of the coming Presidential inauguration will be carried over WRC and WMAL, starting tonight. They will bring to the microphones chairmen of the committees in charge of the ceremonies. The first preinaugural talk will be given over WMAL at 7:30 p. m. by J. Fred Essary, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, who is chairman of the official program committee. He will speak on "A Foretaste of the Inauguration."

The Aborn Opera Company will revive Victor Herbert's operetta, "The Red Mill," in the Five-Star Theater program, WJSV, 10 p. m.

"The Red Mill" was made famous by Montgomery and Stone and among the melodies woven into the score by Victor Herbert are "Mignonette," "Isle of Our Dreams," "You Never Can Tell About a Woman," "Moon Beams," "If You Love But Me," "Because You're You," and "Old New York."

A SPECIAL program of Canadian music played by the United States Army Band will be heard over WJSV from 4 to 4:45 p. m., Capt. William J. Stannard conducting the concert.

Ed Wynn said if the eighteenth amendment is repealed it would be broadcast "by a coast-to-coast hiccough."

Speaking of his recent visit to Washington, Ed said he saw a car driving away from the White House with the President at the wheel.

"If that was the President at the wheel," asked Graham McNamee, with an air of doubt, "who was that in the rumble-seat?"

"Oh," the comedian replied, "that was the Vice President."

BILLY K. WELLS always laughs at his own jokes, but he never tells them.

He writes the radio scripts for Jack Pearl, and he has been around shows and show business for more years than he likes to remember. He sat Thursday in a little, noisy room off the studio stage, where Pearl broadcasts. It's his listening post for every broadcast.

A small man, with a gray shadow of a mustache, he was clocking every laugh as he pored over the script while the Baron told his fables. Mrs. Winnie Pearl sat at the same table, too, reading a script. So did Mrs. Moe Brillstein, the comedian's sister, and Jack Nelson, of the advertising agency.

"The laughter of the studio audience roared in the loud speaker, like a heavy surf. Wells clicked his clock twice. His free hand pounded gleefully on the table. The long, thin point on his pencil broke," James Cannon, New York radio critic, said, describing the scene.

"'Listen, listen!' he shouted. 'That's a double-header. We got two laughs on that one.' The little man shook with glee. Mrs. Pearl smiled and nodded. Mrs. Brillstein never looked up from her script. Mr. Nelson smiled to himself as though he were recalling something.

"The crowd beat its palms, and laughter once again thundered in the loud speaker. Wells chuckled and looked around the crowded room.

"'Did you expect a laugh on that one?' he asked no one in particular. 'I knew it was a sock.'

"George Olsen's gingery music was blasting from the loud speaker now. Pearl's work was done. He rushed into the room, dressed in the rainbow spangles of the Baron Munchausen.

"'How did I go, Billy?' he asked.

"'Swell!' snapped Wells briskly. 'We got 143 laughs tonight—in 22½ minutes.'

"'I write for the classes, not for the masses,' explains Wells. 'Of course, I write down for the radio audiences. But I get laughs, don't I?'

"He does."

Bob White
The Old Philosopher SAYS:

Question—Do you believe in companionate marriage?

Answer—Yes. Every marriage should be companionate. God intended it thus. Eve was not put into the Garden of Eden as a convenience for Adam. She was put there to dispel loneliness and be a companion to the man who was created in the image of God. When marriage ceases to be a companionate affair it ceases to be the holy relationship originally intended. No script of scribe or priest can make it holy in the sight of God or man when this is broken down. All the angels and archangels of heaven could not proclaim it holy when the very foundations of all marriage is shaken—companionship.

Mind you, I am not speaking of trial marriage, which is something entirely different.

But when one asks the question, whether or not I believe in companionate marriage there is only one answer. Marriage is a state of companionship and comfort. If one does not enter the holy state of matrimony with this as the one objective, then it is not a marriage of true minds, and can not have the benediction of God nor should it have the sanction of the State.

Companionate marriage is the only marriage. There is none other. Other than this, it defies the will of God and throws back in the face of the Giver of all good things His choicest gift to the heart of humankind.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

A New Yorker at Large

By MARK BARRON.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—There is a certain advantage in being a nonentity, as may be observed by a visitor to one of the North River piers when a big liner is sailing.

The many farewell parties are attended by a considerable number of people who come rushing down the gangplank just as the "all ashore" bugle is sounded. As these visitors come off the ship they are searched by customs guards to prevent them bringing off any liquor or other contraband goods.

However, as the visitors are numerous and the guards are few, I notice that they pick only certain people to search, and 90 per cent of the time the ones they stop are celebrities. Which makes one wonder just how much goods are brought ashore by the nonentities who aren't well enough known to rate them with the guards.

When the guards first started this hip pocket slapping of ship visitors, there was considerable indignation in the community. Enraged citizens quoted the bill of rights and threatened to write to their congressman.

But this anger seems to have died out now. They all take it as a picturesque part of the lark of bidding bon voyage to their departing friends.

Fog—More Fog.

Another municipal problem to be taken up by this pulpit this sunny morning concerns fog. I had always thought that fog was merely something that worried airplanes and ships, but now it is discovered that motorists along Long Island shores have their troubles, too.

A motorcycle cop who patrols along the shore of the Sound reports that fog causes almost as many accidents as does reckless driving.

When those heavy curtains of fog roll in off the Atlantic, it is often impossible for a motorist to see ahead even as far as his radiator cap. First thing he knows he's locked horns with another car or tumbled in a ditch.

It's during these fogs at night that the hundreds of milk wagons coming into New York find themselves in great danger. They drive far on the side of the road, but a speeding car will be on top of them almost before the small light on the back of the wagon can be seen.

Few indeed are the veteran Long Island motorists who haven't hung the scalps of one of these milk wagons to their belts.

Rolling In Comfort.

The fast trains carrying New Yorkers to the swanky resorts of Florida and Cuba are getting swankier. One such train now features a recreation car.

It carries bridge and backgammon tables, a small dance floor and a three piece orchestra.

But the prize is in the rear of the car where there is a gymnasium. The feature of it is a portable swimming pool where one may take a cooling dip almost before he has left the cold breezes of the north behind.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MOTHER GOOSE EXPLANATION.

MARY had a little lamb,
Its sale was very slow;
And everywhere she offered it
The buyers answered, "No!"

She ran across a technocrat,
Who looked her in the eye
And said, "You need a survey of Demand and of supply.

"There are too many lambs," he said,
"And that is just because
The big producers do not heed
The scientific laws.

"A survey of the Nation's lambs,"
He cried with spirit hot,
"Is needed so we'll know when lambs
Are needed and when not."

"But you forgot," Our Mary said,
"I'm on my way to school;
I haven't time to survey lambs
Or talk about the joule."

"It's simple," said the technocrat,
"We'll locate every lamb
And put him on a chart and graph
And thus tell lamb from ham.

"The Nation's appetite for chops
We'll measure carefully
And ascertain beyond all doubt
Its chop capacity.

"By scientific data we'll
Control the lamb supply.
And Mary's lamb will bring a price
That's neither low nor high.

"Then every lamb will bring its price,
And, Mary—don't you see?—
A little lamb will never cause
The least uncertainty.

"It's all a case of ergs and joules,"
He argued with elation.
You merely sell a lamb and take
A nice eight-weeks vacation.

"All worries quickly disappear
And want is never known;
You live in simple happiness
Down to the last lamb bone."

"You take the lamb!" Our Mary said;
Such talk's too deep for me;
The wool is just the thing you need
To sell Technocracy."

A NOTE OF CHEER.

SCIENTISTS say they think it will soon be possible to harness the atom. Well, that's a little encouraging to the harness makers, anyhow.

It is now time to rewrite the old-fashioned mellerdrammer so that when Sheriff Hawkins calls to foreclose the mortgage on the old farm, Squire Prouty and his beootiful daughter are saved by the arrival of a messenger from six big insurance companies saying that everything is okay.

AND HOW ABOUT ANTS IN THE PANTRY?

"HOMEVILLE—Never a murder, nor a robbery, nor a fire; never an accident nor a divorce, nor a case in court; four lines to electric; pretty good place to live. Haas Millington."—Real estate advertisement in the Newark News.

MAN SEVERELY HURT IN SEDAN'S 150-FOOT CAREER AFTER CRASH

Machine Tears Across Lawn of Broadmoor When It Hits Steam Shovel.

Ivan Baily, 28, of 2621 Seventeenth street northwest, was critically injured last night when his sedan struck and caromed from a steam shovel just north of Porter street on Connecticut avenue northwest.

The sedan rolled over three times in a spectacular manner, finally coming to a halt, after catapulting across the thoroughfare, on the lawn of the fashionable Broadmoor Apartments.

The terrific contact with the steam shovel, engaged in sewer digging operations, tore off a door of the machine, which came to a rest more than 150 feet from the scene of the impact.

Little Hope of Recovery.

Baily was extricated from the debris of the machine by firemen from No. 28 Engine Company, a short distance away, who heard the crash. The Fire Rescue squad ambulance was summoned and conveyed him to Emergency Hospital where little hope was held for his recovery.

No witnesses of the accident had been found by Eighth Precinct police at a late hour last night, although firemen were informed by unidentified persons of the spectacular details of the accident.

Lanterns, guard horses and other paraphernalia of the sewer digging operations were strewn for many yards around the scene of the accident.

Baily is a hotel worker, but is unemployed, it was said at his residence. He had been visiting a sister in Chevy Chase. He is unmarried.

Clarendon Man Hurt.

Willard Adams, 35, Clarendon, Va., suffered severe bruises and possible internal injuries late yesterday when his car collided with the automobile of George W. Lucas, 42, 405 Twenty-first street northwest, on Key Bridge. Adams was treated at Georgetown Hospital.

Robert Quebler, 12, 3241 Patterson street northwest, received a fractured collar bone and bruises late yesterday when struck by an automobile on Chevy Chase Parkway near McKinley street. He was taken to Emergency Hospital. Police said the car was driven by Miss Virginia Hall, 19, 3112 Thirty-sixth street northwest.

Plan of Fifth New School Progresses

Gotwals Favors Slashing Original Figure to Provide Fund.

Plans to shave $103,500 from the appropriations for four new school buildings authorized in the District bill, to provide funds for a new eight-room elementary school, were disclosed in published hearings of the House District appropriations subcommittee.

Under the proposal, $90,000 would be deducted from appropriations for the new Reno High School, $6,000 each from the new Deal and Browne Junior High Schools, and $1,500 from the Logan Elementary School. The proposal was made by Representative Holaday (Republican), Illinois.

"All of that could be done," Engineer Commissioner Gotwals told the subcommittee. "We would be a little close, but it is often a healthy thing to be close."

Cannon Claims Land Appraisal Is Robbery

Award of $294,000 by a condemnation jury for purchase of additional land for Jefferson Junior High School, was denounced as "highway robbery" by Chairman Clarence Cannon of the House District Appropriations subcommittee.

District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan testified that the first condemnation jury fixed the price at $105,000, the owner appealed, and the second jury made an award of $294,000 on property assessed at $105,000.

"There should be some inquiry into the selection of the jury that would award $294,000 under such conditions," said Representative Cannon.

FIRST LADY TRAVELERS' AID GUEST

Miss Margaret Rice (left) and Mrs. Herbert Hoover were guests of honor and speakers at the Travelers' Aid luncheon at the Burlington Hotel yesterday. Miss Rice is editor of "The Family" and associate executive of the Family Welfare Association.

MRS. HOOVER LAUDS TRAVELERS SOCIETY

President's Wife Says She Plans to See More of the World.

Asserting that she would probably make a good "walking delegate" for any organization dealing with travelers, as she expected to travel more, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, honorary president of the Travelers Aid Society, yesterday paid high tribute to that organization at a meeting at the Burlington Hotel.

"I have been asked," she said, "if I am going to stay in California, and I always answer that I am not. I want to see what the rest of the world is doing, and one must travel to do that."

Aid Always Needed.

"Wherever there is travel, there is need for aid," Mrs. Hoover continued. "One goes to the railroad station, the steamship line or the bus terminal and aid is always needed, and, of course, it is always supplied by the Travelers Aid worker. Any organization which handles this kind of work will always find an additional task, as has been found in this instance, in the work for transient boys."

Mrs. Hoover was accompanied to the luncheon by her house guest, Mrs. Wilbur M. Brucker, the wife of Michigan's governor. Others at the head table beside Mrs. Hoover and her guest were Dr. Frederick W. Perkins, president of the Council of Social Agencies; Mrs. W. M. Doak, wife of the Secretary of Labor; Mrs. William DeWitt Mitchell, wife of the Attorney General; Mrs. Charles D. Walcott, treasurer of the Travelers Aid Society; Arthur C. Moses, president of the Travelers Aid Society; Miss Margaret Rich, editor of The Family, who was the principal speaker of the day, and Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, a director of the National Travelers Aid Society.

Transients Discussed.

Mrs. O'Connor, who is chairman of the Boys Emergency Committee, discussed the problem that confronts Washington in connection with the arrival here every month of 400 or more transient youths under 21. Washington, she said, is a stopping-off place for these boys who come via every manner of transportation from all parts of the country and from all kinds of families.

On motion of Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, chairman of the nominating committee, John H. Hanna, Mrs. Charles Warren, Miss Katherine Dunlop and Albert Atwood were elected new members of the board for three years. Mrs. Herbert C. Woolley, Mrs. Grahame H. Powell and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone were reelected for the same period. The following board members hold over:

Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith, Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, Dr. George Farnham, Mrs. Charles D. Walcott and Mrs. John Jay O'Connor for two years; Arthur C. Moses, Mrs. Joel T. Boone, Mrs. Edgar Brown and Miss Agnes Regan for one year.

HEARING SET TODAY IN SCHOOL DISPUTE

Bride to Sit as Judge on Charges Workers Were Forced to Invest.

Officials of the Industrial Engineering & Construction Co., of Washington, have promised to have all employes on the Kenilworth School construction in the board room of the District Building this afternoon to testify regarding their investments in Southeast realty property, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride stated yesterday.

The contracting firm's executives contend that the employes have entered into agreements to invest in the realty development voluntarily and that they like the arrangement which deprives them of more than half of their wages weekly.

Mr. Bride will sit as judge in the case to determine whether the contractor is evading the Bacon-Davis prevailing wage act, and William H. Wahly, assistant corporation counsel, will act as prosecutor.

Charges that the contractor was violating the wage law and requiring them to buy $300 worth of certificates in undeveloped property on W street southeast, between Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets, were made in affidavits signed by ten bricklayers.

If any threats of penalties are made against employes by the contractor, Mr. Bride said, he would recommend that the contract be rescinded. There is nearly $40,000 as yet unpaid on the project.

Construction work on the school is at a standstill pending settlement.

Grand Jury Indicts House Demolisher

Property Owner Relates How Brick Dwellings Just Vanished.

James Thompson, colored, Washington's "one-man wrecking crew," yesterday was indicted by the District grand jury for wrecking two houses and partially wrecking a third and a fourth. The technical charge against him is that he destroyed private property.

The grand jury returned two indictments against him. The first charges him with tearing down two brick houses, located at 419 and 421 First street southwest. They were the property of Miriam Solomon, of the Wardman Park Hotel. The other indictment alleges Thompson destroyed the front walls of the houses at 423 and 423½ First street. These properties were owned by the Washington Housing Corporation. The damage in the latter instances was estimated at $2,000.

Miss Solomon, owner of the properties that were demolished, said that she visited them on January 15 and found them in good condition. Two weeks later, she said, she visited her properties and found they had disappeared.

Baptist Pastor Engaged For Food Show Wedding

The Rev. Dr. C. W. Austin, of the West Washington Baptist Church, will perform the public wedding ceremony at the second annual United Food Stores Exposition in the Washington Auditorium next week, it was announced last night.

A feature of the week-long exposition, which opens Saturday night, the wedding will take place at 9:30 p. m. Wednesday, with Miss Ruth Odom, of 1733 Twentieth street northwest, and Harold W. Hodges, of 3011 Cambridge place northwest, as the principals.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

Many accidents may be attributed to the reckless driving of young people in the high school and junior college ages.

Often these drivers have no consideration for other drivers, and go blithely along endangering the lives of all those who come in their path. They, themselves, for some reason, seem to bear charmed lives, and usually come out of an accident unscathed.

These young drivers fail to realize that they also must cooperate in order to bring the appalling accident toll down to a minimum.

	1932	1933
Deaths	11	6
Injuries	397	376
Accidents	855	919

"Be Careful."

COLD MAY POSTPONE SHOWDOWN ON MALL WAGE CONTROVERSY

Weather Today Likely to Play Part in Contractors' and Carpenters' Dispute.

With a fair chance that Old Man Weather would intervene, a showdown between carpenters and contractors in the Federal building wage controversy raging on the Mall was due today.

What labor leaders term a "lockout" is in prospect, if working conditions are auspicious, according to last advices from informed union chiefs here.

Union carpenters are determined not to work for an $8-a-day wage, it was apparent last night. Subcontractors are equally adamant against continuing to pay $11 a day. The $3 cut has been posted as effective today.

An alternative course for the carpenters—as against the "lockout" said to be determined upon—has been mapped out as waiting until tomorrow when wages are handed out. This, some claim, would give the carpenters the edge in the argument.

Cold May Intervene.

Under the latter course the Bacon-Davis law—which stipulates that the prevailing wage shall be paid—would be observed by the carpenters, who claim $11 is the prevailing scale.

Cold may stop the pay conflict today. If weather conditions are too inclement for working, the matter will be postponed until tomorrow. This eventually gives a somewhat different complexion to the matter.

An alternative course will then be open to the carpenters. As a matter of fact, some labor leaders last night were inclined to believe this course would be followed, viz:

The carpenters to wait until they are actually paid off at the rate of $8. This, it is claimed would give them ample proof of their contention that Bacon-Davis law was violated by the contractors.

Effect of General Strike.

If the carpenters were to cease work, their quitting would in a few days have nearly the same effect as a general walkout of all trades, it appeared last night.

Inasmuch as all of the buildings are at a structural stage where the cement is being poured to make the walls of the buildings, the carpenters' labors in building molds is of paramount importance. For example, on the Justice Building yesterday workmen pointed out that if the carpenters were to stop work, only about a day's pouring would be left. Other trades would soon suffer from a lack of work.

Banquet Honors Cooper At Mayflower Saturday

Mrs. Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee, and Dr. Joseph E. Rosier, president of the National Education Association, will preside at a testimonial banquet at the Mayflower Hotel, Saturday night, to Dr. William John Cooper, U. S. Commissioner of Education, in honor of the fourth anniversary of his induction to his present position.

Dr. Cooper will address the diners on "The Curriculum of the Future." The Education Association o. the District is sponsoring the testimonial.

Associated Studios To Present Concert

The faculty of the Associated Studios, a society of artists and musicians, will present a concert at the Sears Roebuck Art Galleries, 1106 Connecticut avenue, tonight.

Mme. Geete von Bayer, Henri Sokolov and Richard Lorleberg will present several selections. Otto Simon will direct an ensemble of women's voices.

Scott Urges U. S. Stand for Peace

Lecturer Thinks Nation Should Be as Moral as Individuals.

The United States was urged to act a world example in applying moral principles to foreign relations in a lecture on "International Morality and International Law," by Dr. James Brown Scott, secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, at George Washington University yesterday.

Contrasting the ethics of international relations with the standards of conduct of civilized individuals, Dr. Scott plead for the adoption of "a single standard for the conduct of nations as well as of individuals. We of the Christian inheritance should insist that the law of the individual, who is admittedly a moral being, should be the law of the international community," he said.

In conclusion Dr. Scott expressed the hope that the new administration would "take a leaf from President Cleveland's book on international law and international morality, so that Christian morality may make its entry into a newer law of nations of the New World, through the intervention of the United States."

House Committee Questions Ballou

No Information Given Out as to Happenings at Conference.

Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou was questioned for nearly an hour yesterday by members of the House District Committee, in executive session, but the nature of the questioning was held strictly confidential.

Chairman Mary T. Norton said the conference was "very satisfactory" and that committee members had no criticism to make of Dr. Ballou. It was learned in authoritative quarters that letters attributing "arbitrary methods" to the school superintendent were before the committee, but were not discussed in detail.

Mrs. Norton said members discussed the entire school situation with Dr. Ballou, from the standpoint of policy, and that the school superintendent was "highly cooperative." She says the committee hopes to hold further conferences with him next session.

DR. BALLOU DENIES CHARGES OF NIGHT SCHOOL OVERFLOW

Columbia Heights Group Is Told Facilities Ample; Staff Is Reduced.

Charges of the Columbia Heights Citizens Association that night schools are so congested that 500 applicants have been unable to enter were denied by school officials yesterday.

Upon hearing of the association's complaint yesterday morning Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, asked for a report from E. J. Lockwood, director of night schools.

Mr. Lockwood's report showed that although a number of classrooms are overcrowded that there are sufficient teachers and accommodations to care for the present enrollment. The most serious situation exists at Central night school, where there are not enough typewriters for students wishing to use them, the director revealed.

Teaching Staff Curtailed.

Miss Lucy Swanton, chairman of the educational committee of the Columbia Heights Association, is believed to have based her charge on the situation at Central, but even allowing for this Mr. Lockwood can not understand where the report originated that 500 applicants were turned away.

Mr. Lockwood said that when he addressed the full attendance of Central on the opening night of the present semester that about 700 students were present. He pointed out that if 500 of these had been denied admission that the enrollment of the school would now be only 200. The present enrollment is about 600, Mr. Lockwood said.

The night school teaching staff was curtailed at midyear because of a reduction in the enrollment of pupils, is was pointed out.

68 in First Grade.

A manual arts room is being used at the new Lafayette School, Thirty-third and Northampton streets northwest, to help care for the overflow enrollment, Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools, revealed yesterday.

An item of $103,000 for an addition to the school was eliminated by the Budget Bureau. School officials declare this addition is imperative to care for the increasing enrollment.

An increase in enrollment in the first grade is a clear indication that congestion will continue as these pupils move to higher grades, Mr. Haycock pointed out. At present there are 68 pupils in the first grade and 45 in the sixth. Enrollment in the school when it was opened in October, 1931, was 343 pupils. The enrollment now is 387, much beyond capacity.

2 Mann Act Writs Accuse Shropshire

Women Are Detained as Witnesses in White Slave Case.

The District grand jury yesterday returned two indictments against Homer B. Shropshire, 20 years old, charging him with two separate violations of the white slave act. Shropshire is the youth who was arrested two weeks ago on the complaint of "Dorothy Pollard" that he had brought her here from Roanoke, Va., and had induced her to "pick up men" in the streets.

When it was learned that the complaining witness' name was in reality Della Wills, the office of United States Attorney Leo A. Rover moved for a new indictment with the girl's real name, and that was returned yesterday.

The second indictment accuses Shropshire of having brought Miss Essie L. Parker here from West Virginia for immoral purposes. Both girls are being held as material witnesses in the House of Detention. Shropshire is being held at the District Jail, having failed to post a $5,000-bond that was set when he was arraigned two weeks ago.

Man Is Indicted in $300 Community Chest Theft

Charged with the theft of $300 from the Community Chest, John A. Scruggs, a former employe of the Chest, yesterday was indicted by the District grand jury on a charge of grand larceny.

Scruggs is said to have taken a canvas bag containing some $300 from the Chest headquarters last November. He was arrested in Absecon, N. J., and was brought back here.

Luna Trick

Moon Will Give Regulus One Good Occulting Tomorrow Night.

Alpha Leonis, a brilliant star, better known as Regulus, will be occulted by the moon as that body passes between it and the earth 7:51 p. m. tomorrow.

This phenomenon is similar to a solar eclipse when the moon obscures the sun from vision.

The full moon will be seen to approach Regulus at 7:45 o'clock tomorrow night, seemingly about to collide with it, but as there is enough room between the eaith and Regulus to place 1,300,000,000 moons equally spaced in the intervening space, there is no danger of a collision.

To the person observing the celestial occurrence without the aid of a telescope, it will appear as though the bright star is diving into the moon. At 8:40 p. m. the star will reappear to earthly vision.

HOLADAY CHARGES ARCHITECT WASTE

Illinois Member Says Harris' Office Has No Regard for Economy.

Reorganization of the District municipal architect's office was demanded by Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), Illinois, before the House District Appropriations Subcommittee, published hearings disclosed yesterday.

This statement climaxed friction of long standing between some members of the House subcommittee and Municipal Architect Albert L. Harris.

"I am leaving the committee, but I would feel a good deal better if we could get the municipal architect's office remodeled before I left," Representative Holaday said.

"In my opinion, in every building of any size that has been erected here in the six years I have served on this committee there has been a waste of from $25,000 to $100,000 because of the incompetency of the architect and his refusal to have any regard for economical expenditure of public money."

Holaday charged the architect is using bricks made by private concerns, when prison-made bricks from Occoquan are going unused.

Examination Announced To Pick School Matrons

An examination to obtain a list of eligibles for matrons in the white junior and senior high schools will be held February 24 and 25, it was announced yesterday at the Franklin School.

Applicants must have completed a four-year high school course and a two-year course in a normal school, college, university or recognized nurses training school. No vacancies exist at present on the matron's staff. Vacancies will be filled from the list of those selected as the result of the examination.

One-Act Play-Tourney Plans to Be Made Today

Final plans for the tournament will be announced today following a meeting of the District one-act play tournament committee at 4:30 p. m. in the Community Center Department.

The complete program will be issued and contestants will be notified on which day they may present their performance.

Extra Police Train For Red Disorders

Brown Issues Orders for Out-of-Town Force at Inaugural.

The out-of-town policemen who will come to the Capital to assist in the policing of the inaugural period will be required to have experience in suppressing radical demonstrations, Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown said yesterday.

The reason for this requisite, Maj. Brown said, is because radicals, especially Communists, in the last few years, have capitalized public occasions to stage demonstrations. Formerly, policemen brought here for inaugurations were required to be adept at detecting pickpockets.

The Senate yesterday approved an appropriation of $25,000 for additional police protection during the inauguration. This appropriation now goes to the White House for approval.

INAUGURAL PARADE SIGHT TO BE MODEL OF 'OLD IRONSIDES'

Full-Rigged Small Edition Will Be Manned by 15 Sea Scouts.

A precedent more than three-quarters of a century old will be reestablished through the acceptance yesterday by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson of the proposal made by the mechanics at the Washington Navy Yard to enter the model of the U. S. S. Constitution in the Inaugural Parade.

A full-rigged model of "Old Ironsides" was first placed in the inaugural parade of President James Buchanan in 1857 by Washington Navy Yard employes. On that occasion it was mounted on a tremendous float drawn by horses and was manned by ten sailors. The same float was brought out 12 years later for the first inauguration of President U. S. Grant. In the intervening years telegraph wires had been strung along Pennsylvania avenue and the replica of the famous frigate ran afoul of these at Fifteenth street and had to be withdrawn.

The model which will be in this year's parade is the 47-foot one, constructed by Capt. James A. Callan. The only suggestion which the navy yard group made which was vetoed by Col. E. M. Watson, chairman of the parade committee, was a proposal that a salute of 13 guns be fired from the port holes as the ship on a 60-foot motor truck turned from Fifteenth street into Pennsylvania avenue. Col. Watson and other members of the inaugural committee were afraid that any such demonstration would bring down upon the crew of the Constitution the entire secret service force. Instead of the salute, the miniature warship will break out the President's flag when it makes that turn.

Manned by Sea Scouts.

The Constitution will appear in the parade with all sails and other equipment just as it appears upon the old man-of-war. Approximately 15 sea scouts will man the ship under the command of Capt. Callan. In addition there will be a guard of honor, consisting of eight sea scouts in front and an equal number marching behind the float. The emblems which the vessel will fly in addition to the President's flag are the national emblem, the colonial flag and the sea scout flag.

Old friends and fellow patients from Warm Springs will be the guests of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the inaugural ceremonies, according to notice received yesterday by Admiral Grayson. Special preparations for their entertainment will be made, Admiral Grayson said, as soon as details as to the number coming and the date of their arrival are received.

Mr. Roosevelt, as one of the founders of the Warm Springs foundation, has always taken tremendous interest in the development of this center for the treatment of infantile paralysis, and all of those who have been patients there. Scores of the Warm Springs residents have been his friends for years.

Rosa Pouselle to Sing.

Rosa Ponselle will sing the Star-Spangled Banner as one of the highlights of the inaugural ball on the night of March 4, according to an announcement by Mrs. John Allen Dougherty, chairman of the Inaugural Ball Committee.

Miss Ponselle, in an interview yesterday in Baltimore, revealed the interesting fact that within the space of two months she will appear as a guest artist in conjunction with national ceremonies in two nations. Her appearance here in which she will sing before Mrs. Roosevelt is to be followed on May 4 by an engagement in Rome, which will be attended by Premier Mussolini.

Congress sent to President Hoover yesterday a resolution designed to provide police protection for the crowds expected here for President-elect Roosevelt's inauguration.

The Senate agreed to a resolution already adopted by the House to appropriate $25,000 for bringing 200 Baltimore policemen to Washington and 75 detectives from other cities.

5 Gypsies Indicted In Holdup of $490

Woman and Her Mother Are Complainants in Robbery.

Five Gypsies, arrested in Philadelphia, Pa., on charges of robbery, were yesterday sindicted on that charge here by the District grand jury. The complainants against the quartet were Rose Demetro and her mother, Mrs. Tinker Demetro.

Those named in the indictment were Mary, Steve, Tom, Bolita and Louis Stanley. All are being held in Pennsylvania pending the arrival there of the papers necessary to bring them to Washington.

The five are charged in the indictment with having robbed Rose Demetro and her mother of $490 after they had trussed up the two complainants and had strung them over door sills in the Demetros' Florida avenue home.

Looked Like

Fire in Mall Skeleton and Was, but It Was Not Unruly Variety.

Visions of another disastrous fire in the towering framework of a new Government building arose last night when flames were seen high in the steel work of the new Department of Labor Building at Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue.

A passerby pulled a fire box and there was no mistake about the fire. But the flames were in the caldrons, kept burning during the night. Their glowing mouths are shielded by curtains, but no curtain could keep its corners mored in last night's gale.

Hence on the fire records it was merely another false alarm, and in this instance, the firemen were plenty glad.
